Schreyer Regime Shaken By Suspension of Minister

PRISON TERM FOR SLINGSHOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rodney Dunnett, 24, was given sentences totalling 2½ years on charges resulting from mob demonstrations outside the United States consulate and the city police station May 8.

Dunnett was sentenced to six months for possession of an offensive weapon, a slingshot; 12 months consecutive for aiding a prisoner to escape and 12 months consecutive for assaulting a police officer. He was also given a six-month concurrent sentence for obstructing police.

Provincial court judge Les Bewley, in passing sentence, said:

"It is illogical to the point of paranoia and dishonest in the extreme to assert that anyone can commit any crime in the furtherance of one's political views and then demand exemption from punishment because of one's motivations."

He said the time had come when "exemplary sentences must be imposed" in such cases.

Election Looms In Manitoba

Times News Services

WINNIPEG—Manitoba's New Democratic Party government, already precarious, got a severe jolt today that could precipitate a fall election when a cabinet minister was suspended from the legislature.

The opposition gained a 29-27 voting edge over the government when Highways Minister Joe Borowski was suspended for refusing to retract remarks linking opposition members with alleged highways department irregularities.

Borowski said the courts would soon be dealing with members of the former provincial Conservative government.

Although the suspension was only for the morning, Borowski told reporters outside the chamber:

"If the house does not permit me to speak the truth, then I don't want to sit in the damn place."

If he stays out, it will further complicate the political problems of Premier Ed Schreyer.

LACKS VOTES

Barring any change of heart by the opposition on amendments scheduled to be introduced at the afternoon sitting, Schreyer already lacks enough votes to pass his compulsory state automobile insurance legislation.

He has said defeat of the measure would be tantamont to a non-confidence vote and valid cause for an election.

There are 28 NDP members in the 57-seat house, including speaker Ben Hanuschak and Borowski. There are 22 Conservatives, four Liberals, one Social Credit and two independents, including Liberal Democrat Larry Desjardins who last week bolted government ranks on the insurance issue.

Borowski, 36-year-old MLA for Thompson, was asked repeatedly by both sides of the House and by the speaker to withdraw his remarks about the former Conservative ministers. At one point he told opposition members to "go to hell."

Conservative leader Walter Weir threw a rule book on the centre floor of the chamber as debate raged on.

When the speaker asked him a final time to retract, Borowski sat silently and shook his head.

3-FINGER SALUTE FROM WAC

Premier Bennett says he has just the right salute to give to young people who flash the two-fingered "peace" sign at him.

It's the three-fingered boy scout salute which Bennett says means, "have you done your good deed for today?"

He said he used it on a couple of long-haired folk in Winnipeg. He appeared pleased with the results.

A spokesman for the boy scouts said he wasn't sure that Bennett's interpretation of the sign was exact, but didn't contradict the premier, either.

Forest Inquiry Rivals Tangle

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—The Nemetz inquiry into the coast forest dispute resumed Tuesday, with the two sides arguing over the outlook faced by timber companies in B.C. and the United States.

MEDIATION REPORT READY IN TWO WEEKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the British Columbia Appeals Court said Tuesday his report containing recommendations to end the contract dispute between 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America and the vital British Columbia coast forest industry should be ready in about 10 to 14 days.

The open sessions of the one-man inquiry were expected to end today, but Mr. Justice Nemetz plans to hold closed-door meetings with both sides later this week.

International Woodworkers of American representing 27,000 men, has maintained B.C. operators will outpace American competitors over the next few years with prospects of increased production and expanding international markets.

The union's main demand is for a $1 an hour increase on the current base rate of $3.12.

Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining for 116 coast firms, argued last week world markets are shrinking and cited rising labor and other operating costs as justification for postponing any wage increase for another year.

Most of the discussion Tuesday centred around the topic of stumpage rates in the U.S. and B.C. Stumpage is defined as the rate paid by companies to the state or provincial government for the privilege of cutting trees.

TAX ADVANTAGE

An F.I.R. witness, Robert Wood, management consultant for Rim Resources Ltd., said the over-all cost of cutting and processing timber is cheaper in the U.S. than here, because while American companies pay higher stumpage rates, they benefit under U.S. capital gains taxes.

Wood attempted to show by an illustration that a U.S. operator could make a greater net profit than a B.C. operator if they logged identical stands of timber.

B.C. firms logging Crown land must pay a great deal more than U.S. firms working on private land, he said.

However, IWA regional president Jack Moore pointed out that much of the logging done by major B.C. firms takes place on private land, not Crown land, with companies paying royalty rates that vary from $1 to $9 per 1,000 board feet, depending on when the land was purchased.

"How would you compare the stumpage paid by MacMillan Bloedel in the Alberni Valley with what is paid in the U.S.?" Moore asked. Wood said he did not have the information.

"I understand it's fairly low," Moore added.

'Employees Regarded As Servants'

TIMES STAFF

VANCOUVER — Coast sawmill and logging companies regard their employees as servants, the International Woodworkers of America charged Tuesday.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said at a hearing into the dispute between the union and 116 employers that the employers proposals for ending work stoppages were reminiscent of the master-servant relationship.

"They tend to harken back to the Master and Servant Act, and this is why we have some of the problems we do," Moore said.

'LOT OF BUNK'

"A lot of bunk," retorted John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for the companies.

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemez, who heads the inquiry into the forest dispute, commented:

"I don't think anything useful can be obtained by this. I heard it all in 1966." (Nemetz headed a similar inquiry into a dispute between the IWA and interior companies.)

The exchange came as the union prepared to rebut two FIR briefs presented last week.

Employers called for a ban on all work stoppages and slowdowns, and asked for adoption of a system of penalties for workers who participate in strikes.

Soviet Freighter Put Under Arrest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sheriff's officers today boarded the Russian freighter Sergey Yesenin in Vancouver harbor and placed the vessel under arrest.

They tacked to the vessel's wheelhouse a warrant which had been issued Tuesday by the Exchequer Court after the British Columbia government filed a writ seeking unspecified damages as a result of a collisoon between the freighter and the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria Sunday.

The formal arrest was made despite assurances from the ship's Vancouver agents that it would remain in port until investigations are completed.

B.C. Supervising coroner Glen McDonald said earlier an inquest into the collision would call several witnesses from the freighter.

The 14,700-ton freighter cut deep into the port side of the 4,900 ton ferry—carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50—in Active Pass, a narrow and tricky channel in the gulf islands between the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Ann Hammond, 31, of Victoria, was fatally injured and her seven-month-old son, Peter, killed on the car deck of the Queen of Victoria. Sheila Taylor, 17, of Allendale, N.J., was killed in a sundeck lounge.

Eight others were injured.

TOLL STILL UNCERTAIN

It is not known for certain that only three persons died, because no passenger list was kept.

A spokesman for Mr. McDonald said about six Soviet seamen will be among an estimated 30 witnesses to be called Thursday.

Meanwhile, a closed hearing Tuesday conducted by the department of transport heard four witnesses from the Sergey Yesenin. More Soviet witnesses will be heard today, and crew of the Queen of Victoria will be called.

DRUG RAID NETS KENNEDY'S SON

Times News Services

HYANNISPORT, Mass. — Robert F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late senator, and R. Sargent Shriver III, son of the former United States ambassador to France, have been arrested on drug charges, it was learned today.

The two 16-year-old youths were to be arraigned in district court today along with 15 other persons arrested Tuesday night in marijuana raids carried out by local police in and around Hyannisport.

Judge Again Denies Manson Mistrial Bid

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Superior court judge Charles H. Older today denied a defence motion for a mistrial in the Tate-LaBianca murder case based on President Nixon's remarks about the guilt of Charles Manson.

Judge Older said that he was satisfied that the jurors hearing the case are "able and willing to be fair and impartial" in deciding a verdict for the hippie leader and three young women codefendants.

"The time has come to place this in its proper perspective," Judge Older said.

The judge said it was not important whether Manson had deliberately invited prejudice by holding up a newspaper in front of the jury Tuesday with the headline, "Manson Guilty, Nixon Declares."

"The important point is whether the members of this jury are capable of rendering an impartial verdict in the case," he said.

The latest trial crisis came when Manson, chief defendant, brandished the Los Angeles newspaper before the eyes of the jury.

When Daye Shinn, lawyer for defendant Susan Atkins, 22, told the judge he had inadvertently let Manson get hold of the newspaper, Older sentenced him to three nights in jail for contempt.

Shinn will be let out during the day to defend his client.

Man to Die For 'Mercy' Killing

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters) — A 60-year-old Melbourne man who told a court he shot his wife because he believed she had incurable cancer was sentenced to death for murder today.

Max Enkhardt told the judge: "I believe that my wife was dead before I shot her. Thank you for having listened to me."

Before pronouncing the statutory death sentence, the judge told Enkhardt it was the only penalty he could impose.

The prosecution alleged that Enkhardt shot his wife Nov. 3 after she had nagged him about drinking brandy. At the time, she was in bed with gastritis.

PREMIERS SUPPORT WATER BOMB PLAN

The conference of premiers in Winnipeg was "very enthusiastic about a B.C. proposal for a national water bomber fleet, Premier Bennett said today.

Bennett, who returned Tuesday night from the conference, said the premiers supported his suggestion that the federal government be approached to form the national airborne firefighting fleet.

B.C. will co-operate with other provinces in the battle against pollution and in favor of a better life on all fronts, Bennett said. See details on Page 31.

Small Businesses 'Special' Benson Says, Hinting Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons finance committee today that his officials are studying plans to give relief to small businesses when new tax law is presented and suggested a timetable for implementation of the government's white paper on taxation.

He said his department has a special group working on several plans to encourage the growth of small business.

"Sometime this fall" the officials would have some conclusions on the problem.

But, answering questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the minister declined to describe the incentives.

Mr. Benson repeated earlier estimates that legislation based on the white paper might be implemented by Jan. 1, 1972.

He said the government would wait to see the reports presented by Commons and Senate committees studying the white paper.

It would then take "several months" to draft legislation incorporating the white paper proposals and suggestions of the committees.

So the legislation could be presented to Parliament next spring, and go into effect Jan. 1, 1972, Mr. Benson said.

While refusing to give details, the minister told the committee the department is considering several changes to the white paper.

"Major changes will have to be made in a number of areas," he said.

"The government is impressed by many of the arguments that have been made for changes in the white paper proposals."

He said it "would not be proper" to define the government's present position on the proposals before the parliamentary committees have published their reports.

Mr. Benson said the growth of small businesses was a "special problem" because of their difficulty in raising capital.

Mr. Stanfield, a guest at the committee hearing, said he was glad Mr. Benson had recognized changes were needed in the tax system, and that no changes would be introduced in 1971.

He asked whether the government was planning tax relief for low-income groups before implementation of the rest of the white paper.

Mr. Benson replied this was a budget matter and would only be announced in the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government still considered as a "serious proposal" the white paper suggestion to tax deemed realization of capital gains on stocks every five years.

The finance minister said "all proposals in the white paper are serious" and repeated that no announcement would be made until publication of the committee reports.

. . . SOVIET

Canadian pilot aboard the Soviet ship at the time of the collision will also be called.

The transport department investigation will conclude with a report to Transport Minister Don Jamieson, who could then call a public inquiry.

The arrest warrant and the action for damages were filed in the Exchequer Court of Canada, B.C. admiralty district, at the Vancouver courthouse.

The warrant to arrest the freighter is signed by lawyer John I. Bird, of Vancouver.

The provincial government charges the Soviet vessel was at fault in the collision, in which the freighter's prow came close to cutting the Queen of Victoria in half, causing extensive damage to the ferry and to more than 20 vehicles on its car deck.

DAMAGES SOUGHT

An affidavit was also filed by lawyer William O'Malley Forbes of the same legal firm in which he states he was informed by M. F. Aldous, general manager of B.C. ferries, that the Ferry Authority has a claim against the Sergey Yesenin as a result of the collision "which was caused through the fault or negligence of those persons navigating the Sergey Yesenin," and that compensation has not been received by the Ferry Authority.

It calls on those connected with the ship or a representative to appear in Exchequer Court on the damage action within a week of service of the writ.

NO COMMENT

Attorney-General Peterson refused to say why the warrant and writ were not served.

"I have no comment on that," he said.

"We're taking action and all things will be made clear. Steps will be taken at the appropriate time."

Mr. Peterson said the action has as its objective the recovery of damages, but he refused to say how much they might come to.

"We have a preliminary estimate," he said, "but I am not at liberty to make it public in light of the action we are taking."

The 110-car capacity Queen of Sidney will replace the Queen of Victoria today as a regularly scheduled ship on the run between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

B.C. Ferries will compensate passengers whose cars or other property were lost or damaged in the collision.

* * *

B.C. to Wait

Premier Bennett said today the provincial government will wait until all official reports on Sunday's collision are made before deciding whether to seek new regulations for traffic through Active Pass.

The government will also wait before deciding the question of compensation for damages and injuries suffered in the crash of the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria and a Russian freighter in Active Pass.

Three persons died in the collision.

Soviets Cancel Appearance At Air Show

The appearance of a promising Soviet jet, which was to be a main event at Canada's biggest air show, was cancelled today by the illness of its aircrew.

The tri-jet YAK-40 passenger craft designed for short takeoff and landing was to start a cross-Canada tour after appearing at the Abbottsford Air Show, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

But Soviet authorities, possibly influenced by the recent collision in Active Pass and criticism of Russian trawlers, halted the jet trip indefinitely.

They told International Jet Air Ltd., of Calgary, sponsor of the tour, that members of the flight crew were ill. The company said the crew consists of five or six men, but it had not been told how many were ill or what thy were suffering from.

NO RESCHEDULING

There was no suggestion that the trip would be rescheduled.

Jet Air negotiated with Russian authorities for more than a year to import the aircraft for sale on the Canadian market.

The plane, with a cruising speed of 400 miles an hour, seats between 24 and 33 and can operate from runways as short as 3,500 feet.

F. J. Woodhall, engineering and maintenance director of Jet Air, said the attraction of the YAK-40 was that there was no comparable western-built aircraft and the tri-jets were relatively inexpensive at less than $1 million apiece, or one-half to one-third the price of comparable aircraft available in North America.

THE WEATHER

There was cloud all around today, and Victoria's weatherman expects more of the same Thursday, brightened with a bit of sunshine here and there.

The weather office at Victoria International Airport said the bands of cloud are coming off a storm system 600 miles west of Victoria moving southeasterly down the coast.

Temperatures will reach an overnight low of 50, and a high Thursday in the high 60s, holding to the mid-60s near the water. Thursday's winds are expected to be generally light.

Weather statistics are on Page 43.

Hovercraft Service To Resume Next Year

Island to mainland hovercraft passenger service is expected to resume next summer on a seasonal basis, the managing director of Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. said here Tuesday.

Barry Jones, here in connection with a demonstration of the modified PHL-2 cargo craft in the Inner Harbor, said Victoria, Nanaimo, Vancouver and Seattle could be served by a 35-passenger SRN-6 hovercraft, depending on whether the transport department evolved new operating regulations. A trial Vancouver-Nanaimo passenger service was dropped last year.

At present there are no rules for the operation of passenger-carrying hovercraft because they do not fall into existing categories covering aircraft and marine vessels, Jones explained.

GEARED FOR CHARTER

In any case, he said, Pacific Hovercraft — the only company operating air cushion vehicles on the west coast — is geardd now for charter duty and freighting in the B.C.-Washington coastal area, Alaska and Canadian North.

"There is no question hovercraft will service the south-western B.C. coast," Jones predicted, and when passenger regulations are set out, the more practical size vehicle will be one that may carry 150 passengers or a 25-ton payload.

The British Hovercraft BH-7 is such a machine, Jones said, and one could be in service for Pacific Hovercraft within two years. An established regular service could follow within three to five years, he said.

ACCESS DIFFICULT

The next area in which Pacific Hovercraft could operate is Williston Lake, the debris-choked reservoir for Bennett Dam on the Peace River. Presence of logs and floating debris makes acces by forestry crews difficult, using aircraft and boats, Jones noted.

He also said it was "not improbable" the company may operate on the east coast of Canada, between the mainland and Newfoundland.

The company has four craft, one on the north slope of Alaska servicing the oil industry, and one in the Arctic islands, besides the converted SRN-6 shown here.

No Change Shown Since 1709 Play

By AUDREY JOHNSON
A Review

If anyone thinks that the world has changed its ways in 250 years, Turcaret, the comedy written in 1709 by Alain-Rene Lesage, will disabuse them.

Turcaret is a vivid reflection of the chicanery, the swindling and moral turpitude that permeated the social order of 18th century France from the petite bourgeoisie of officialdom to the presumed aristocracy.

In the English version provided by Ralph Allen, now in repertory at McPherson Playhouse, its analogies to our own time are prickingly clear.

But the over-all effect, as seen Tuesday night when it joined the other two Victoria Fair theatre productions, was much too vastly entertaining for the pricks to cause any discomfort.

The company's ensemble playing here reached its highest level. Like a fast game of badminton, the bird was kept flying, only fumbled occasionally by a couple of the secondary leads and minor characters.

PACE PROFESSIONAL

Harriet Allen and Patricia Leith establish a crisp, professional pace from the opening moments and this is sustained at top level substantially throughout the three acts.

There were some brief areas of sag but it is inevitable that this should not be, at present a company of actors whose abilities are uniform.

The remarkable thing is that within the range of experience and technical abilty represented, director Allen should have achieved so well sustained a style and so excellent a tempo.

To Richard Galuppi's richly comic, beautifully timed interpretation of the title role, to John Krich's elegant posturings as the Knight, to Anthony Jenkins' simpering, superbly controlled and sustained Marquis, must go the greenest laurels.

FRONTIN SMOOTH

A key role in the play is Frontin, the conniving and table-turning servant to the Knight. It offers fewer spectacularly comic openings to the actor but maximum value was derived from it by Eric Schneider, who is a stylish, smooth and authoritative player.

Mrs. Allen is entirely in her element as the coquette who is two-timing Turcaret. She uses face, body and voice most expressively and as a comedienne outshines her notable Dorine in last season's Tartuffe.

Such a play as this fills the air with curving loops of dialogue that require skilfull fielding with a sort of verbal double-take. As Lisette, Maria Wozniak has poise and assurance, but needs to field with more precision and vitality.

SPECTACLE ENRICHED

Brief, lively character studies that particularly enrich the spectacle of the finale, are provided by Wandalie Henshaw as Turcaret's vulgar sister and Ann Purdon as his wife.

All this animated, delicately acrid entertainment which keeps bursts of applause and gales of laughter coming throughout its couple of hours, owes much to the Robert Cothran set that manages to imply vulgarity with subtle humor and to Allan Granstrom's bright costumes that echo the buoyancy of the whole.

Turcaret, continuing in repertory, will be seen tonight and Saturday this week.

. . . FOREST

The union leader said cost of logging land owned by the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway — one of the province's major land owners — is considerably lower than on crown lands.

Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan IWA local, said companies in the Alberni Valley, Nimkish Valley, Inglewood Valley and West Coast of Vancouver Island are paying extremely low rates on land purchased before the turn of the century.

HIGHER IN B.C.

Wood disagreed. Under questioning from Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, who is hearing the inquiry, he said logging costs for a large B.C. company are higher than for a large U.S. operator.

Nemetz told him it is impossible to draw a direct comparison between the two regions due to the multitude of differing factors.

Wood had pointed out in his brief the two regions have different corporate income tax laws, different government jurisdictions, different means of measuring wood volume, variations in timber quality and terrain, and different laws governing export of logs and by-products such as chips.

Couple Hurt In Crash

A Victoria couple is listed in fair to poor condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries they suffered when their sports car left the Malahat highway near the Shawnigan Lake cutoff and rolled into a ditch Monday night.

Herbert Ford, 46, of 411 Kingston, received multiple fractures to his neck and skull while his wife, Mar, 41, suffered broken ribs and other undetermined injuries.

. . . SCHREYER

The suspension was moved by Resources Minister Sidney Green, government house leader.

"It gives me no choice," he said. "The rules require certain measures and I have no discretion."

The blowup began when Gordon Johston, Liberal house leader, asked Borowski for a report on the highways situation in Dauphin. The minister announced earlier that certain irregularities, dating back to the Conservative administration defeated by the NDP last year, are under investigation and charges will be laid.

Borowski said favoritism and kickbacks had been involved.

He said former Premier Weir and Harry Enns (PC—Lakeside), a one-time highways minister, should be suspended from the house because of their involvement.

At another point he made a reference to Stewart McLean, former Conservative attorney-general and MLA for Dauphin defeated in last year's election.

Borowski said a report had been received and criminal charges would be laid against two in the Dauphin district office of the highways department.

TAX CHARGES

There was a possibility of other suspensions and demotions, he said, and possibly charges by the federal income tax division.

At this point he said the former ministers holding the highways portfolio knew of the situation and should be suspended from the legislature until the matter is fully investigated.

As shouts, catcalls and angry retorts echoed through the chamber, points of privilege were raised from all corners.

Weir demanded an immediate retraction and said the minister had gone far beyond his rights.

When the courts find the leader of the opposition innocent, T'll be glad to apologize," Borowski said.

Premier Ed Schreyer told the house he would not tolerate any minister of his administration making statements on matters that were before the courts, and at one point attempted to retract Borowski's statement for him — an attempt that the opposition members refused to accept.

"This is a sad day for Manitoba and I believe that the level of debate has lowered to an unbelievable level of mediocrity," said Conservative economic critic Sidney Spivak.

Ulster Riots Threaten Government

BELFAST (Reuters) — The Northern Ireland government is faced with possible mutiny within ghe ranks of the government Unionist party following yet another night of sectarian rioting against British troops in Belfast.

Children lined the streets and cheered mobs of youths who hurried into battle with the troops in the sixth consecutive night of strife.

The youngsters shouted encouragement when about about 100 Roman Catholic youths hurled rocks and cobblestones at the troops in the city's embattled Ballymurphy housing project.

Party hardliners called on the government today to invoke special powers of arrest and internment without trial, a measure contained in the Special Powers Act and hated by the Catholic minority.

The government appeared unlikely to do so, despite a warning from a member of the Ulster Parliament that he and other hardliners might withdraw their support from the government unless it invoked the act.

BRITISH FIRM GIVES PILL TO EMPLOYEES

WALSALL, England (AP) — Tarantellar Ltd., which makes sporting and industrial protective gloves, is going to set up a lunch-hour birth control clinic and provide free contraceptive pills for the 110 women it employs.

A spokesman said the company wants to reduce labor turnover since it costs up to $3,500 to train a girl. The company figures the birth control program will cost a maximum of $1,000 a year.

"Many young girls we train find that they have an unwanted pregnancy and have to give up work," the spokesman said.

"For many young married couples the financial loss can be a tragedy. And everyone knows how it affects a single girl."

Dawson Creek Residents Go Wild About Trudeau

By KEVIN DOYLE

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — This city of 13,000 in the middle of the Peace River country exploded with enthusiasm Tuesday night at its first visit by a prime minister.

About 1,200 singing, chanting residents greeted Prime Minister Trudeau when he arrived at the airport after almost three days in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

At least another 1,500 lined the streets and the entrance to the hotel where Mr. Trudeau was staying. He was obviously pleased with the reception as he mingled with crowds in the airport.

Today, Mr. Trudeau meets farmers from this area in northeastern B.C., in what he hopes will be a free-wheeling discussion of farm problems.

To make certain the farmers feel free to express their views, the prime minister ruled that only one of the more than 12 reporters with him, could attend. The reporter will be allowed to make notes and pass on the information to other members of the press party.

MEETS THE YOUNG

While Mr. Trudeau talks to farmers, Works Minister Arthur Laing will meet representatives from local groups which have been pressing the government to pave the Canadian section of the 1,500-mile Alaska Highway, which runs from here to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Mr. Laing, who has accompanied the prime minister since Monday, leaves the tour tonight.

The Dawson Creek reception came at the end of a day marked by a series of meetings between young people and the prime minister in the Yukon capital of Whitehorse.

Mr. Trudeau spent about two hours attending an outdoor picnic in Whitehorse at which he was mobbed by about 150 children and teen-agers and the same number of adults.

He was given an honorary membership in the Yukon Order of the Garter and dubbed the "best darn garter-watcher in the Yukon" after he qualified by removing a red garter from the thigh of Debbie Murdoch, 20, who led a group of dancers wearing Klondike saloon costumes.

As he sat on the ground eating lunch, dozens of small children, some barely old enough to walk, packed around the prime minister, nibbling at his food and chatting.

WILL APPOINT SENATORS

After half an hour with the children, Mr. Trudeau was rescued by aides and whisked off to an hour-long question-and-answer session with about 200 youths in a school auditorium.

The questioning drew answers from the prime minister on subjects ranging from Senate appointments to drug use.

Mr. Trudeau said he will announce some appointments to fill the 16 vacancies in the 102-seat Senate within the next several weeks.

The federal government had been trying to work out a system enabling the provinces to have a say in Senate appointments to promote more regional representation, but this was not developing quickly.

As a result, Mr. Trudeau said he would make some of the appointments himself and announce them soon.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will not make any substantial changes in existing drug laws until it receives the final report of the Le Dain commission inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs.

But the government was considering a recommendation in the commission's preliminary report, tabled earlier this year, calling for an end to jail sentences for those convicted of possessing marijuana.

He said he doesn't "dig" the use of drugs, alcohol or any other intoxicants.

Mr. Trudeau said he respects the freedom of others to do many of the things they want to do, but for young people especially, escape from reality through intoxication seemed unnecessary.

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — A pet hawk named Hansel escaped from its owner's shed but was captured within four hours by Elsie Eagles with the help of Police Constable Richard Partridge.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE SUM RECORD HIGH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian foreign exchange reserves rose $110.6 million during July to reach an unprecedented $4,444 million at the end of the month, the finance department reported today.

Part of the increase was in the purchase of U.S. dollars to keep the floating Canadian dollar from climbing too high on international exchange markets.

Some commitments to buy at a later date, made during May before the dollar was set free of its former 92.5-cent peg, also came due during July, adding to the reserves.

'Obscenity Not Cause Of Crime, Immorality'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president's commission on pornography has reached the tentative conclusion that obscenity does not cause sex crimes or corrupt youngsters' morals.

Discounting two overriding fears of affects of the current wave of sexual freedom in films, books and magazines, the first draft prepared by the commission staff says:

"There is no evidence to suggest that exposure of youngsters to pornography has a detrimental impact upon moral character, sexual orientation or attitudes."

It adds:

"Research indicates that erotic materials do not contribute to the development of character defects, nor operate as a significant factor in anti-social behavior or in crime. In sum, there is no evidence that exposure to pornography operates as a cause of misconduct in either youths or adults."

The commission's report is not to be released until late this month, but most of the first draft has been leaked to a House of Representatives subcommittee that is trying to convene hearings next week to challenge the findings.

WOMEN AROUSED

Other major findings in the report obtained by The Associated Press—all subject to revision or deletion from the final report:

—Women as well as men are "highly aroused" by stag films and erotic pictures. Tests often show that women who did not think they were aroused actually were.

—Political conservatives are not as easily aroused by pornography as liberals.

—Despite the arousal and in some cases increased sexual activity in the 24 hours after seeing highly erotic material, basic attitudes and sexual patterns do not change.

—In general, 90 per cent of couples aged 20 to 25 were aroused by erotic films in three studies, while between 30 and 60 per cent of persons 40 to 50 years of age were aroused by the same films.

—"There are no recorded instances of sexual aggression, homosexuality, lesbianism, exhibitionism, or sexual abuse of children attributable to reading or viewing erotic stimuli among the several hundred participants in the 12 experiments reviewed."

CHALLENGE TESTS

While the House postal operations subcommittee is trying to line up expert witnesses to challenge the findings, Chairman Robert Nix (Dem. Pa.) said his concern is with some of the experiments conducted.

Nix termed "horrifying" an experiment conducted for the commission by the University of North Carolina, in which instruments were used to measure the physical responses of 23 college men to prolonged exposure to erotic material.

"I didn't dream such experiments were being conducted," Nix said. "I question the morals of people who do that kind of thing. I can't see any justification for it."

Escaper Frees Hostage After Talk With Family

BRIGHTON, Ont. (CP) — A prison escapee held a woman hostage at knifepoint for 7½ hours Tuesday before surrendering to police after a tearful reunion with members of his family at Cobourg, 23 miles west of here.

Maurice Lauzon, 24, of Sudbury, serving the 13th month of a nine-year sentence for armed robbery at Warkworth medium security prison 13 miles north of here, was to appear in provincial court today charged with kidnapping and escaping custody.

Lorraine Barry, 26, of Campbellford, Ont., a classification officer at Warkworth, was not harmed in the ordeal which included a three-hour ride in a commandeered police car, a lunch of fried chicken and an impromptu news conference on a Cobourg beach.

"It really wasn't too bad. I knew he didn't want to hurt me," she told reporters.

The escapee surrendered to police after meeting his mother, sister, brother, sister-in-law and infant niece and strolling with them along a beach at Cobourg's Victoria Park followed by two provincial police officers and Miss Barry.

The escapee held an impromptu news conference at which he told reporters he had escaped to "relieve the tension" caused by his enforced association with sex offenders at the prison.

"They are animals and I don't want to have anything to do with them," he said.

After the news conference the escapee returned to the commandeered police car with his family, the two officers and Miss Barry.

Sudden Storm Kills Five At Beach

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — A sudden storm that caught bathers on beaches and small boats sailing offshore ripped along the southwest coast of France Tuesday. Officials said that five persons were known dead, two others reported drowned, and seven are missing.

The known dead were a man and his wife—both past 60—drowned when their sailboat sank in the landlocked bay at Arcachon; one man killed by a falling tree, and two persons killed in camping grounds. Witnesses said they saw two persons drown but no bodies have been recovered. The seven missing perons were aboard two sailboats.

Lawless City

SESSER, Ill. (AP) — This is a lawless city—or nearly so. That was revealed by city councilmen who said all city ordinances except those governing traffic had been stolen about a year ago.

Cowboy Movie No Doubt

ROCHDALE, England (UPI) — Barry Thompson and his wife were watching a midnight movie on television when they heard a clip-clop come from their back stairs and what sounded like a knock at the door.

On investigation, Thompson found a neighbor's horse who had wandered from a nearby field and climbed the flight of stairs to their first floor apartment.

For Cool Appraisal

THE FIRST SERIOUS SHIP collision within memory to occur in Active Pass has focused attention on the increasingly busy traffic in the narrow waterway. Despite many years of skilful and collision-free use of the Pass the time may be near when some regulations should be imposed.

The cause of the accident appears to have arisen from a combination of conditions: the simultaneous passage of a ferry and a large Soviet freighter through the narrow western mouth of the Pass, the presence of two seiners and a large number of pleasure fishing craft, and the beginning of the tidal run. The Pass was used for decades by the CPR Princess ships without mishap, and has long been a choice fishing ground for sportsmen. Until the recent collision the situation had been viable, but many persons familiar with the area foresaw the day when the combination of larger and larger numbers of pleasure boats and the mounting schedule of ferry transits might reach a critical level.

There is room in the Pass for a large number of fishermen, but, as with highway traffic, there are always some who are slow or foolhardy in making way for the ferries and other shipping, and the potential hazard has increased each year.

There are no specific restrictions regarding use of the Pass, other than the usual requirements of seamanship and high seas regulations. But choice of the passage lies with the master of each ship, and many opt for the longer but more open route outside the islands.

Many seamen hold to the rule that a ship should not enter a narrow passage under rudder, since a failure of the steering mechanism would leave the ship in a perilous situation. A wider approach, so that the vessel can enter on a direct run, is preferred. This is not often employed by ships in entering Active Pass. It might have been a means of avoiding the recent collision. In addition there is communication by whistle, and by radio, the latter usually on British Columbia's 2182 frequency. Apparently this frequency was not in two-way use last Sunday.

It would be unfortunate if increasing regimentation were to curtail fishing pleasure in Active Pass. There is room for a large number of boats, but it may be necessary to ensure that they remain in certain areas which will keep them free of the traffic lanes. The government ferries should certainly have a high priority in use of the Pass. Eventually it may be necessary to declare the waters restricted to certain uses or to certain conditions for general shipping. Everyone familiar with Active Pass will hope that reasonable safety can be assured with a minimum of restriction for this important feature of our local marine paradise. Better communication between ships in or near the Pass appears to be essential, and this should not be difficult to enforce.

A Wasting Asset

BRIEFS PREPARED FOR THE E & N Railway enquiry being held today, and the evident trend of public opinion, indicate that two considerations are paramount in popular thinking. One is that the CPR should put the E&N operation on a serviceable basis and continue it for the use of residents and visitors as an increasingly valuable Island transportation medium. Failing this, the company should return to the province the valuable land grant which was turned over to the continent-wide railway line back in 1905.

There are legal considerations, of course, and the company will present strong arguments in support of discontinuation of the service and retention of the land and its natural riches. But the experience of recent years has been that — by a seemingly deliberate policy — the use of the Island line has been made more and more unattractive by reason of the schedule and the general operation. This is certainly a negative and uninspired attitude.

What appears to be a potential asset of great value, particularly if the locomotives could be re-converted to steam, is being downgraded and written off. Railway buffs, and persons even casually interested, travel for many miles to have a ride around a meadow behind a steam locomotive. The up-Island route, with the Port Alberni branch restored, could, with suitable publicity and imaginative development, become an attraction known throughout the continent and beyond.

Vancouver Island communities and their elected and business representatives should give all possible support to such a project, and exert such pressure as they can in urging the CPR to take a new and imaginative look at the whole situation.

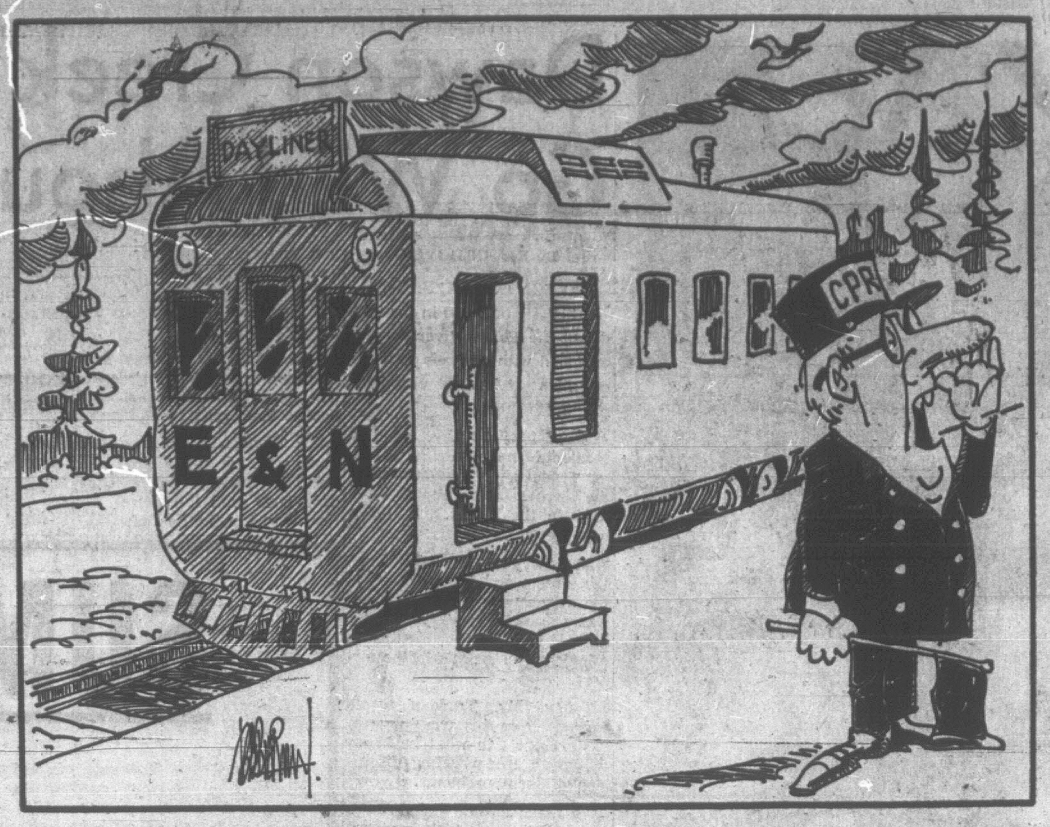

A Person, Not a System, Failed

THE VIOLATION BY AN INmate of the women's prison in Kingston of her three-day temporary leave permit has brought a common sense statement from the solicitor-general's office. The violation, not the only one, will not lead to a review by the authorities of the leave-permit system, says a spokesman. Incidents of this nature were bound to occur when the federal authorities adopted what is generally regarded as an enlightened attitude toward temporary leave.

The encouraging fact is that such a high percentage of those given consideration honor their obligations. The purpose of the plan has been adequately stated. Temporary leaves can be given by wardens after careful assessment of the applicant. They can be granted on medical, humanitarian and rehabilitative grounds—the last perhaps the most important.

As a result of this concession a number of prisoners are helped to return to society, and to overcome the psychologically adverse effects of prison. Some are able to improve their educations or increase their earning capacities.

The benefits in the main exceed the disadvantages to society. Of course some of those shown consideration will abuse their privileges — with detriment to their prospects of parole. But until proof is provided that the system itself is failing, it should be maintained. No convincing proof has so far been provided despite the violation of permit terms by some inmates.

Bill 33 Failure

The fiasco arising from the attempted enforcement of Bill 33 is cause for concern on two counts. First, it is dangerous to allow any group successfully to challenge constituted authority and, second, it is equally unwise for governments to attempt to do the impossible by legislative means.

If it is now generally accepted that no man can be forced to labor against his will, surely it is futile to provide penalties for those who refuse to do so. While a government must not tell any man that he has to remain on a particular job longer than he wants to, it has every right, once a strike is declared to be illegal, to penalize others for causing him not to do so, whether this is done by employers, union directives, picketing or any other means. In other words leave the individual worker alone and concentrate on higherups who counsel and encourage violation of the law.

My impression is that Bill 33 was hastily drawn up and never properly thought through because any legislation that tries to do the impossible is bad legislation. Amendments along the line suggested might make it workable. Compulsory arbitration is unpalatable to many but if the choice is between that and economic collapse and anarchy there can be no doubt as to which must be chosen. — F. L. P. Anderson, 430 Chester.

THE OLD QUESTION RISES

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Have Canadians the Lifestuff of Nationhood?

PIERRE BERTON'S latest book, "The National Dream" (McClelland and Stewart), raises certain grave questions. But not about the merits of the book which is one of the finest historical works ever written in Canada, a genuine masterpiece unexpected, perhaps, from this lighthearted author. No, the questions raised by a fascinating history of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the great native adventure concern the nation itself.

Hutchison

In a word (leaving the book to the expert reviewers) does modern Canada, with all its wealth, technology and sophistication, still have those qualities that made it in the first place? Or, reducing the question to personal terms, does it have in the brilliantly educated worldling, Pierre Trudeau, a leader anything like the primitive genius, John A. Macdonald?

Completely Relevant

Do not dismiss these questions as merely restrospective speculation, irrelevant to our current Canadian dilemma. Nothing could be more relevant and contemporary, nothing more decisive in our future prospects. For we now face precisely the question faced by Macdonald when he built the nation on two frail bands of steel and nearly ruined it, and himself, in the process.

To be sure, the outward circumstances have changed. The labels, slogans and theories of our policies have changed. The so-called culture of the people has changed also, to the point where a "drug culture" (sic) recently petitioned the government for official recognition as, doubtless, a Criminal Culture and the Society of Degenerates Inc., will soon demand letters patent wtih laws to safeguard their legitimate intersts. But the inward question has not changed at all. On the contrary, it has emerged more starkly than ever, in a more difficult, dubious form.

Prime Minister Trudeau's many-sided problem, that is to say, is harder by far to solve than the problem of Prime Minister Macdonald, for obvious reasons.

An Old Stability

"Old Tomorrow" could work in a time and a society where tomorrow seemed to be a repetition of today. He could depend not only on the world's most powerful empire to back him, not only on British capital for his railway, not only on an economic system and a political philosophy accepted by almost everyone. He could count, too, and more importantly, on an accepted code of morals, however they might be bent in practice, and a unanimous faith in the future of mankind under a merciful God.

Mr. Trudeau can count on none of these certainties. The empire is gone. The economic system has changed so drastically that no name fits it. The political system, unchanged in its legal machinery, has changed its purposes and philosophy as even Macdonald could not have foreseen in his most prophetic moments. The moral code is rejected by the young, and weakly, almost shamefacedly, defended by the old. God, we are informed, is dead. And for the first time in human history the survival of our species, against the threat of pollution or nuclear war, is seriously questioned.

Ignoring these imponderables, common to all mankind, Mr. Berton's excellent book reminds us, as well, that Mr. Trudeau has suddenly encountered the same Canadian conundrum that Macdonald seemed, and only seemed, to have solved, like a man stumbling into a familiar, re-run movie. The conundrum, of course, is the American presence besides us, the mouse-and-elephant parable in Mr. Trudeau's imagery, the rapacious Yankees in Macdonald's nightmare.

Looking back, it is almost unbelievable that the first prime minister and less than four million Canadians could resist the northward thrust of Manifest Destiny. Almost unbelievable that the expanding republic did not fill the vacuum of the West before Macdonald's railway penetrated it. Totally out of character, in a dominant power, were the conscience and natural decency of our neighbors. Nevertheless, all things considered, Macdonald's task was much simpler than Mr. Trudeau's because a majority of Canadians then agreed on what they wanted to do and where they wanted to go.

No Majority Opinion

They wanted to possess half a continent and its treasure. They wanted to go to the Pacific. Today, however, there is no majority opinion, no settled conviction, on anything of importance; or if there is, it has yet to express itself in a coherent national policy, despite all the white papers, task forces, royal commissions and prime ministerial brilliance of mind.

In Macdonald's time there was a National Policy, given that name and sanctified in capital letters by its architect, mainly to disguise with patriotic generalities its real intent, the protection of Canadian manufacturers against American competition by high tarriffs.

A voter could agree or disagree with it. The Liberals could denounce it as original sin. At least everyone could understand it, and in our time, ironically enough, a Liberal government not only is enforcing but planning to strengthen it. That would amuse Macdonald if he were here, but his National Policy, unchanged except in semantics and pious denials, is now seen to be much more complicated and uncertain in its consequences than he imagined.

Trudeau's Torments

The consequences of restricting American capital, for instance, the inevitable fall in living standards that must follow, above all the difficulty of preventing the bottomless maw of the American economy from swallowing our resources and finally gutting the whole continent — these things, too complicated for discussion here, will torment Mr. Trudeau to the end of his career and long outlast him.

Still, they are no more than the outer layer of his great unanswered question, the bitter icing on the cake. For in truth, and gambling with larger stakes, we are back essentially to the question that Macdonald tried to answer with his primitive methods at the beginning — namely, whether the Canadian people have the permanent lifestuff of nationhood in them, the will to surmount new obstacles of the spirit unknown when the physical task of the CPR was done.

An optimist like this reporter will say that the people have these qualities and will show them in the crunch. But, given the imponderables of a mad world and the deepening cleavages of our society, that proposition, apparently proved by Macdonald, has yet to be re-proved by his successors. Old Tomorrow has disappeared. Young Today is only beginning to appear.

Correspondence From Our Readers

Deserved Condemnation

Your correspondents Forbes and Hamblett seem to regard themselves as authorities on South African affairs and have taken up pen in defence or partial defence of the system prevailing there.

As a born South African who has spent his whole life in the country (except for the last three years when I emigrated to Canada), who speaks all the main languages fluently, I also claim to know something of conditions over there. Mr. Forbes I am afraid has apparently been reading too much S.A. Government propaganda material and Mr. Hamblett (with all due respect to his opinions) apparently did not delve very deeply beneath the surface during his 10 years stay in the country.

Let me assure you, Mr. Editor that the Afrikaner Government and their apartheid system deserve all the condemnation that they have received. The oppression, suppression, race discrimination, unjust laws, etc., are very real indeed. This state of affairs however will never be solved by verbal condemnation, sanctions, UN resolutions, arms, embargoes, etc., but by the underdogs themselves. It will take a long time but remember the black man has everything to gain and the white man has everything to lose.—L. G. Kidson, Box 705, Sidney.

Torn Mail

Recently I received some Hansards from Ottawa with the backs nearly torn off. They were put through my mail slot into the house. The pieces were lying on the mat on the verandah. I measured the slot and there was a clearance of four inches.

I accosted our postman and he tried to make out it was sent from Ottawa that way. After an argument he said "If you have any complaints to make, make them to the post office here but you won't get anywhere." I replied, I have complained before about other carelessness and got no results, so this time I'll send it to Mr. Kierans". He replied "Yes and you'll get the same results".

Why should the public take their insults? After all we have to help pay their wages, which is absolutely adequate for the service we receive. — Margaret E. M. Derbyshire, 146 Simcoe.

Nelson's Blood

It's nice to see the rum issue has not been stopped in our Navy, it was with a great deal of satisfaction we could offer our foreign friends a wee nip. As a matter of fact the U.S. Navy boys never got over us lower deck types being treated so well. They felt they were not to be trusted in this regard and consequently we appreciated this privilege all the more.

There was many a time when half frozen and coming off watch a hot toddy was most welcome. Beside this made our ship more like a home away from home, where you had all the comforts the officers did except only in degree. Mind you, according to the rules you weren't permitted to save your rum but no one was actually forced to drink it if he elected to take his rum in lieu of cash.

The argument against the issue of rum was that it led to trouble. Perhaps it created more good than evil and repressive regulations only bred frustration which in the absence of one manifestation turn up in another.—H. F. Leggett, 948 Lyall.

Reactionary Road-blocks

The municipal and city councils and their engineering departments must view with some dismay the reactionary attitude of some of their citizens who wish, of all things, to preserve trees along the roadside — can one imagine anything more simperingly sentimental? Surely these people must be made to appreciate the fact that the price of progressive suicide must demand sacrifices that every good citizen must subscribe to willingly.

The elected city fathers in their wisdom have taken the hard-headed, realistic view that the Victoria region belongs to the private motor car and all other creatures and considerations must be subservient to it.

Any fool can see we must sacrifice our few remaining trees if we want to attract more and more and more cars. How else can we rival Los Angeles or Tokyo? — Monica Oldham, 511 Victoria.

'A Thing of Beauty . . .'

I would like to express my appreciation of the exquisite hanging baskets, flower tubs, etc. in our city, also the beautiful miniature garden in Centennial Square.

Tremendous effort goes into the care of these beauties, and our thanks to all who tend same.

Also I would like to recommend the retention of our lovely cluster lights. The baskets look so beautiful on them.—Mrs. Sybil Blyth, 460 Chester.

A Little More Service

I would like to see our postmen appreciate the example of better service, by the distribution of mail on a Saturday as it used to be.

It would be a wonderful example to others, too, for the policy of more for less work really has no basis to start from in a really good business country. —"Old Timer."

Looking Back

From the Times of August 5, 1910:

Now a party has arisen in Great Britain which denounces the idea of Canada and the United States reaching an agreement on the tariff issue, on the ground that improved trade relations might endanger the integrity of the Empire. Could anything be more dangerous to the Imperial idea, about which the British Conservatives are making such a din these days, as creating a political issue of the relations of the Motherland with her dominions beyond the seas?

Women's Lib: A Revolution in Thought

By GLORIA STEINEM

This is the year of Women's Liberation. Or at least, it's the year the press has discovered a movement that has been strong for several years now, and reported it as a small, privileged, rather lunatic event instead of the major revolution in consciousness — in everyone's consciousness, male or female—that I believe it truly is.

It is a movement that some call "feminist" but should more accurately be called humanist; a movement that is an integral part of rescuing the U.S. from its old, expensive patterns of elitism, racism and violence.

The first problem for all of us, men and women, is not to learn, but to unlearn. We are filled with the popular widsom of several centuries just past, and we are terrified to give it up. Patriotism means obedience, age means wisdom, woman means submission, black means inferior; these are preconceptions imbedded so deeply in our thinking that we honestly may not know that they are there.

Unfortunately, authorities who write textbooks are sometimes subject to the same popular wisdom as the rest of us. They gather their proof around it, and end by becoming the theoreticians of the status quo. Using the most respectable of scholarly methods, for instance, English scientists proved definitively that the English were descended from the angels while the Irish were descended from the apes.

It was beautifully done, complete with comparative skull measurements, and it was a rationale for the English domination of the Irish for more than 100 years. I try to remember that when I'm reading Arthur Jensen's current and very impressive work on the limitations of black intelligence, or when I'm reading Lionel Tiger on the inability of women to act in groups.

★ ★ ★

It wasn't easy for the English to give up their mythic superiority. Indeed, there are quite a few Irish who doubt that they have done it yet. Clearing our minds and government policies of outdated myths is proving to be at least as difficult, but it is also inevitable. Whether it's woman's secondary role in society or the paternalistic role of the United States in the world, the old assumptions just don't work any more.

Part of living this revolution is having the scales fall from our eyes. Every day, we see small obvious truths that we had missed before. Our histories, for instance, have generally been written for and about men. Inhabitied countries were "discovered" when the first white male set foot there, and most of us learned more about any one European country than we did about Africa and Asia combined.

I confess that, before some consciousness-changing of my own, I would have thought that the women's history courses springing up around the U.S. belonged in the same cultural ghetto as home economics. The truth is that we need Women's Studies almost as much as we need Black Studies, and for exactly the same reason: too many of us have completed a "good" education believing that everything from political power to scientific discovery was the province of white males.

We believed, for instance, that the vote had been "given" to women in some whimsical, benevolent fashion. We never learned about the long desperation of the women's struggle, or about the strength and wisdom of the women who led it. We knew a great deal more about the outdated, male supremacist theories of Sigmund Freud than we did about societies where women had equal responsibility, or even ruled.

"Anonymous," Virginia Woolf once said sadly, "was a woman."

I don't mean to equate our problems of identity with those that flowed from slavery. But, as Gunnar Myrdal pointed out in his classic study "An American Dilemma," "In drawing a parallel between the position of, and feeling toward, women and Negroes, we are uncovering a fundamental basis of our culture."

Blacks and women suffer from the same myths of childlike natures; smaller brains; inability to govern themselves, much less white men; limited job skills; identity as sex objects, and so on. Ever since slaves arrived on these shores and were given the legal status of wives — that is, chattel — our legal reforms have followed on each other's heels — with women, I might add, still lagging considerably behind.

As Margaret Mead has noted, the only women allowed to be dominant and respectable at the same time are widows. You have to do what society wants you to do, have a husband who dies, and then have power thrust upon you through no fault of your own. The whole thing seems very hard on the men.

Before we go on to other reasons why Women's Liberation is Men's Liberation, too—and why this incarnation of the women's movement is inseparable from the larger revolution—perhaps we should clear the air of a few more myths—the myth that women are biologically inferior, for instance. In fact, an equally good case could be made for the reverse.

Women live longer than men. That's when the groups being studied are always being cited as proof that we work them to death, but the truth is that women live longer than men even when the groups being studied are monks and nuns. We survived Nazi concentration camps better, are protected against heart attacks by our female hormones, are less subject to many diseases, withstand surgery better and are so much more durable at every stage of life that nature conceives 20 to 50 per cent more males just to keep the balance going.

The Auto Safety Committee of the American Medical Association has come to the conclusion that women are better drivers because they're less emotional than men. I never thought I would hear myself quoting the AMA, but that one was too good to resist.

I don't want to prove the superiority of one sex to another; that would only be repeating a male mistake. The truth is that we're just not sure how many of our differences are biological and how many are societical. What we do know is that the differences between the two sexes, like the differences between races, are much less great than the differences to be found within each group.

★ ★ ★

A second myth is that women are already being treated equally in this society. We ourselves have been guilty of perpetuating this myth, especially at upper economic levels where women have grown fond of being lavishly maintained as ornaments and children. The chains may be made of mink and wall-to-wall carpeting, but they are still chains.

In many parts of the U.S.—New York City, for instance—a woman has no legally guaranteed right to rent an apartment, buy a house, get accommodations in a hotel or be served in a public restaurant. She can be refused simply because of her sex.

In some states, women get longer jail sentences for the same crime. Women on welfare must routinely answer humiliating personal questions; male welfare recipients do not. A woman is the last to be hired, the first to be fired. Equal pay for equal work is the exception. Equal chance for advancement, especially at upper levels or at any level with authority over men, is rare enough to be displayed in a museum.

You may wonder why we have submitted to such humiliations all these years; why, indeed, women will sometimes deny that they are second-class citizens at all. The answer lies in the psychology of second-classness. Like all such groups, we come to accept what society says about us. We believe that we can make it in the world only by "Uncle-Toming" by a real or pretended subservience to white males.

Even when we come to understand that we, are individuals, are not second-class, we still accept society's assessment of our group—a phenomenon psychologists refer to as internalized aggression. From this stems the desire to be the only woman in an office, an academic department or any other part of the man's world. From this also stems women who put down their sisters—and my own profession of journalism has some of them.

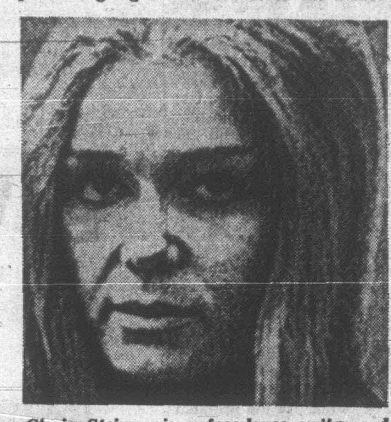

I don't want to give the impression, though, that we want to join society exactly as it is. I don't think most women want to pick up briefcases and march off to meaningless, depersonalized jobs.

We want to liberate men from those inhuman roles as well. We want to share the work and responsibility, and to have men share equal responsibility for the children. Probably the ultimate myth is that children must have full-time mothers, and that liberated women make bad ones. The truth is that most American children seem to be suffering from too much mother and too little father.

Women now spend more time with their homes and families than in any other past or present society we know about. To get back to the sanity of the agrarian or joint family system, we need free universal day care. With that aid, as in Scandinavian countries, and with laws that permit women equal work and equal pay, man will be relieved of his role as sole breadwinner and stranger to his own children.

No more alimony. Fewer boring wives. Fewer childlike wives. No more so-called "Jewish mothers," who are simply normally ambitous human beings with all their ambitiousness confined to the house. No more wives who fall apart with the first wrinkle because they've been taught that their total identity depends on their outsides. No more responsibility for another adult human being who has never been told she is responsible for her own life, and who sooner or later says some version of, "If I hadn't married you, I could have been a star." Women's Liberation really is Men's Liberation, too.

The family system that will emerge is a great subject of anxiety. Probably there will be a variety of choices. Colleague marriages, such as young people have now, with both partners going to law school or the Peace

Gloria Steinem is a free-lance writer and contributing editor of New York Magazine. This article from the Washington Post is excerpted from a commencement address at Vassar College.

Corps together, is one alternative. At least they share more than the kitchen and the bedroom. Communes; marriages that are valid for the child-rearing years only — there are many possibilities.

The point is that Women's Liberation is not destroying the American family. It is trying to build a human, compassionate alternative out of its ruins.

One final myth: that women are more moral than men. We are not more moral; we are only uncorrupted by power. But until the old generation of male chauvinists is out of office, women in positions of power can increase our chances of peace a great deal.

I personally would rather have had Margaret Mead as president during the past six years of Vietnam than either Lyndon Johnson or Ricard Nixon. At least, she wouldn't have had her masculine mystique: The idea that manhood somehow depends on the subjugation of other people. It's a bipartisan problem.

All in a Brave, Not So New, World

By ART STOTT

With a filing non-system such as mine a person can be sure of one thing only. When he wants the clipping he set aside a few months ago for future reference, he won't be able to find it.

So I can't put my hands on the item quoting a maturing hippie who told the older generation not to worry about the children born to her and her contemporaries in the cult. She and they would know what to avoid in child rearing because they would have made the mistakes themselves and would be stricter than their own parents in raising the young.

●

I don't subscribe entirely to the implied philosophy of that statement—that only through experience can the individual learn what is good and what is bad, what should be encouraged and what should be discouraged. Some people seem incapable of learning from experience and some experience can be so corroding that it destroys the individual, leaving reason battered into distortion and behaviour a pathetic parody of acceptable living.

●

On recent evenings I have listened to two television personalities in the modern mold talk about their children. One was as sickly sentimental as a mawkish grandfather—I speak with the authority of experience on the latter. The other was obsessed with his own concept of freedom, which persuaded him, a widower, not to consider remarriage "for the sake of the children."

The personal freedom exponent assured viewers and his interviewer that he didn't need a woman to raise his children. He could do it himself quite adequately and that the bonds of marriage imposed a stricture which he thought would be destructive. Maybe he's right. While I'm inclined to believe that child raising, like marriage, is very largely a matter of luck, I also happen to believe that each takes a certain amount of sacrifice, which implies a restriction of freedom. That sacrifice, it seems to me, is one of the conditioning elements that helps a person to grow up.

Philosophically I don't think any mature person can be absolutely free. Maturity involves the acceptance of responsibilities. Responsibilities impose restraints on the individual. He is not in a position to do anything he wants anytime he feels like it. At best, he responds to the strongest compulsions to which he is subjected—even if the strongest compulsion is an obsession with personal freedom. Free will and freedom of choice, as I see them, are relative.

The sentimentalist of an earlier television interview has another problem to face. He has apparently made his pile by doing his own thing. When he comes, in the processes of nature, to paternity he reacts like any normal person. His child is the greatest. He learns from his little son. The infant is brilliant. No other child has been quite like him.

How conventional can you get? Anytime now I expect someone to tell him that to the mudhen her chick is a swan.

But the sentimentalist has something big going for him, as I see it. He has an overwhelming affection for his little boy. Under certain circumstances, that could lead to the rearing of a spoiled brat. But without the affection, I don't know how a child has a chance to flower into an attractive individual.

●

Somewhere along the line, I believe, discipline has to be imposed and the hope persists that it can be taught, not necessarily applied by physical means. Strange, though, how many of the good people you know had their bottoms spanked without developing the horrendous quirks some psychologists attribute to this "inhumanity" on the part of elders to the very young.

I listen to these financially successful spokesmen for the modern, entirely new era—spokesmen ranging from age 15 to just under 30—and I wonder.

●

They appear to assume that they, and only people of their years, are embarked on the brave new world that is going to stride close to perfection. I hope they do. Yet it seems to me that every child born from the beginning of thought processes in evolving humanity has been brought forth into a brave new world of sorts.

Certainly, from the time my generation was 15 until it was 30, we were engaged in verbalizing a brave new world. We saw the problems. We had the answers. Since then the answers seem to have slipped from failing minds and the problems appear to have grown. Or did they?

Just possibly, in the decade and a half between 15 and 30, we may have failed to grasp the problems. Just possibly our answers, predicated on a misunderstanding of the issues, may have contained some flaws.

●

The young hippie lady in the clipping I have mislaid already has announced her future design for child rearing, avoiding the pitfalls into which she tumbled. The sentimentalist doesn't seem to know where he's going in the process of raising the young, but has the great, basic ingredient of success in that endeavor, affection. And the freedom lover does not yet appear to realize that restraints are placed on absolute liberty by the person who accepts responsibilities.

They're all going to learn that young sons and daughters bring infinite joy and heartache as they move through the years. The lucky parents will be those wise enough to savor the joys and realize that the heartbreaks are also part of growing up.

'A Right to Live Natural Way'

By IRSTON R. BARNES

In his latest book, "The Storm Petrel and the Owl of Athena," Louis Halle asks the pertinent question whether wildlife can survive in a world increasingly dominated by man and his works. It is a timely question that calls for more than a theoretical answer.

Most of the public discussion concerning wildlife has focused on endangered species and the actions that are needed to preserve and perpetuate the species.

If action comes in time and if circumstances permit, the most appropriate action consists in preserving natural environments of adequate extent so that the endangered species can rebuild its numbers and survive without becoming directly dependent upon human support. This is certainly one of the major goals of our national parks and wilderness areas, but wildlife can be wild in many natural areas of more limited extent.

As man occupies more and more of the habitats suitable for wildlife, wildlife may become increasingly dependent upon man-oriented communities. Halle is understandably depressed by the differences between city pigeons and their ancestors, the wild rock doves, between truly wild ducks and the semi-tame creatures that inhabit city parks. The sight of a bear begging a handout from a park tourist cannot compare with that of a wild bear in the hills.

The wild and the tame may be members of the same species and indistinguishable in appearance, but they are worlds apart in their elan and temperament, in their ways of life, and in their competence in taking care of themselves.

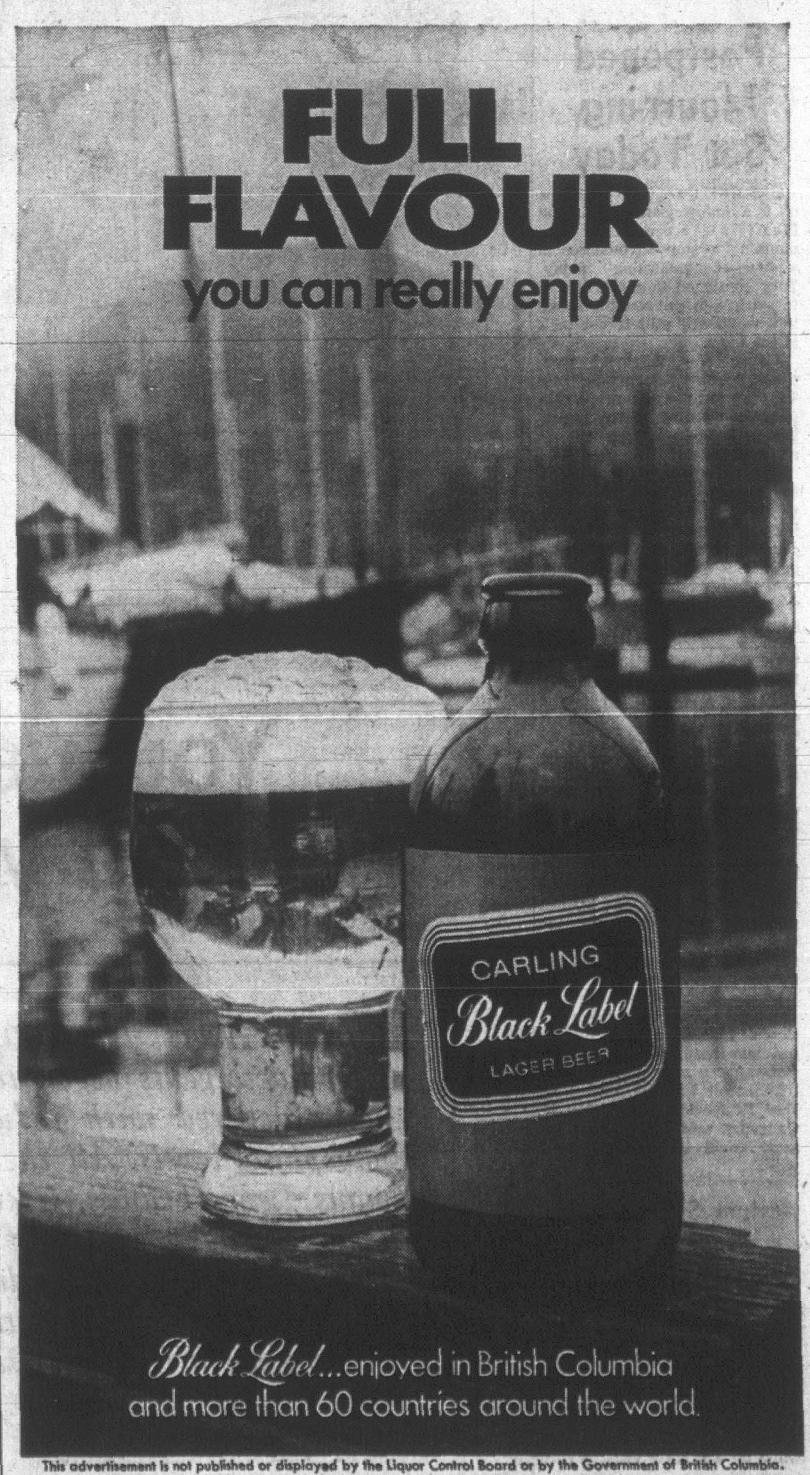

It is not enough to preserve a species in dependent status, a relic in a man-altered environment. Every form of life deserves a right to live its life in its natural way. We can not in good conscience condemn wild creatures to survival as members of an unfenced zoo.

People enjoy seeing and observing wildlife. This is obvious at every wildlife refuge and national park. But this pleasure will be diminished greatly if the "wildlife" is "kept" wildlife.

In contrast to the dependence that is exhibited by park creatures that panhandle from visitors is the quiet unconcern of the truly wild creature that has not yet been persecuted by man. I have had sandpipers and plovers, the young of the year, walk quietly between my feet on winter beaches.

If we are to keep our wildlife truly wild, we must know their requirements and provide the adequate natural environments which will permit them to live naturally and without direct dependence on man.

Fishermen Seek Meet With PM

VANCOUVER (CP)—At least 500 British Columbia fishermen are prepared to sacrifice a big catch for meetings with either Prime Minister Trudeau or Fisheries Minister Jack Davis—but they want the meeting held in a central location, preferably Port Alberni on Vancouver Island.

Barry Robinson, the Port Alberni fisherman whose troller was sideswiped by a Russian trawler July 25, said Tuesday night the fishermen would willingly cut short their trips to return to port and talk out their problems.

The troller incident, previous near-misses and alleged harassment of Canadian fishboats by Russian trawlers, have triggered a wave of bad feeling among the B.C. fishermen.

Ottawa has protested to the Soviet Union and increased air and sea surveillance of the fishing grounds, but feeling ran so high at one stage, the fishermen swore they would take the law into their own hands and shoot at any foreign vessel interfering with their catch areas.

"I know the men have been talking to one another on the radio telephone all the time about a meeting and the feeling right now is they'd cut short their trips and sail 200 miles said Mr. Robinson.

TOO FAR AWAY

Both Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Davis have scheduled public meetings to discuss the problem in Bella Coola and Prince Rupert later this week, but Mr. Robinson says that's not close enough.

"If a meeting is not held in a central location like Port Alberni it would be a mockery," he said.

"Even Victoria or Vancouver, but the men are just not willing to go that distance to the north to attend.

"Under the circumstances, with a situation as serious as this, Trudeau should come himself. I can assure you if I were prime minister, I would be out here having a look and talking."

However, a spokesman for the B.C. Trollers' Association said there is no official move to press for a meeting with either Mr. Trudeau or Mr. Davis because most of the fishermen now are at sea and would not be able to return in time.

He said the association meets regularly with the fisheries minister in the fall and expects to do so this year.

Postponed Mourning Set Today

CABANO, Que. (CP)—Citizens of this industry-starved Gaspe Peninsula community were planning to stop all business in a day of "mourning" today. They continued threats Tuesday to set fire to surrounding forest if a wallboard mill is not built in the town.

Mayor Guy Michaud postponed the day of mourning from Tuesday to take advantage of a possible visit by Kevin Drummond, Quebec minister of lands and forests.

The citizens and demonstrators, who set fire last weekend to d'Auteuil Lumber Co. buildings, say they are protesting the company's failure to construct a promised wallboard mill while exploiting wood-cutting rights in the area, granted by the Quebec government.

Angry citizens of town, nestled in the Lac Temiscouata valley about half-way between Riviere du Loup on the Gaspe coast and the New Brunswick border, also destroyed all bridges to company logging grounds last weekend.

The Cabano Citizen's Committee threatened Tuesday to start burning the nearby forest if Mr. Drummond does not visit the own today.

The minister, who said he was unsure of his plans, has blamed municipal authorities for the violence and threats and asked residents "to exercise all their remaining patience."

Mayor Michaud said the entire region has been "dying a slow death" since fire destroyed the last lumber mill in 1966, throwing 200 men out of work.

D'Auteuil Lumber, owned by New Brunswick industrialist K. C. Irving, said rebuilding in the area would be financially unwise.

Asylum Sought

NUERNBERG (AP) — Kristina Hanzalova, Czechoslovakia's entry in last month's Miss Universe contest at Miami Beach, Fla., has asked for asylum in West Germany. The government office for refugees said the 20-year-old Miss Hanzalova, Miss Czechoslovakia of 1969, had approached the office for asylum several days ago while on a private visit to West Germany.

LEVER DETERGENTS HAVE DONE MORE THAN JUST LOWER PHOSPHATE LEVELS.

All these famous Lever Brands have been reformulated to give you great washday performance along with lower phosphates!

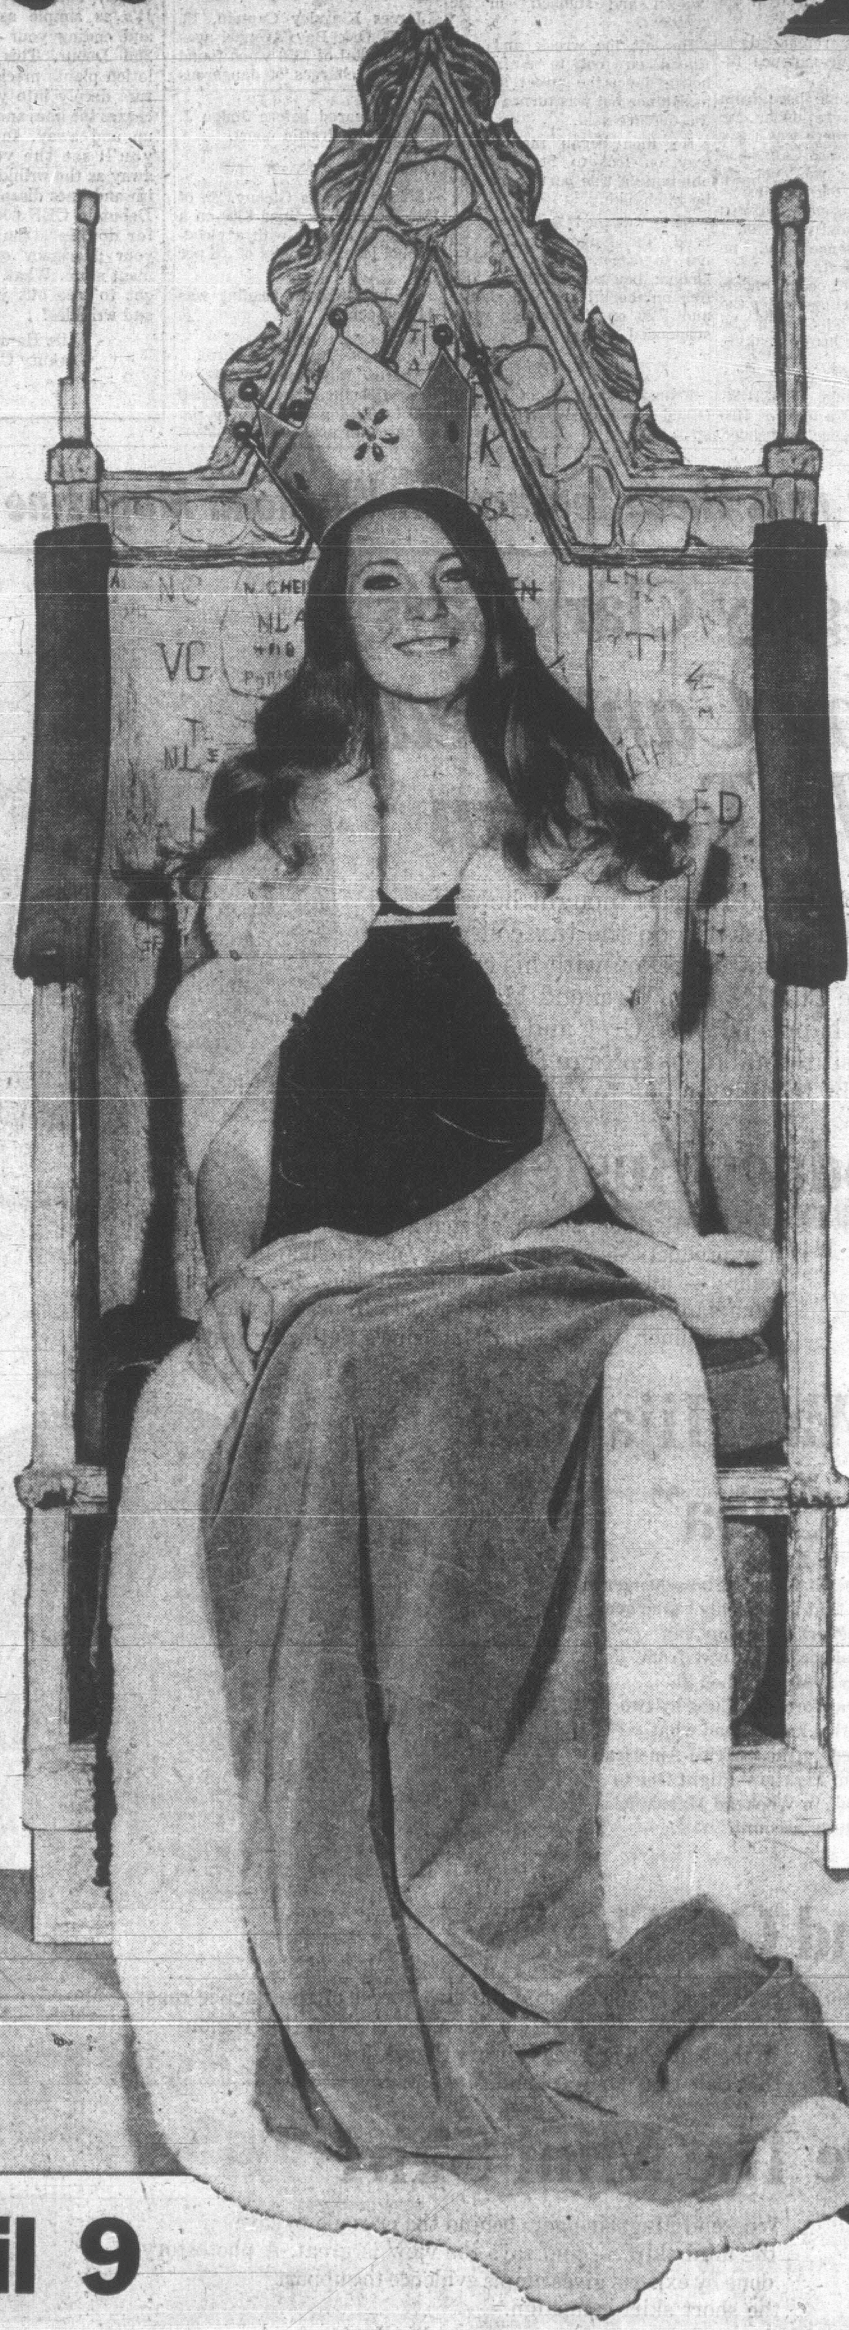

You've known them for years and you can still trust them.

Effective August 1st, 1970, all Lever detergents began to be manufactured with reduced phosphate levels. All the famous Lever brands, Breeze, Omo, Sunlight, 'all', Surf and Drive. All of them with reduced phosphate levels. All of them offering you high quality results.

When Lever scientists started to reformulate all the Lever brands they had to keep two things in mind. First, the reduction of phosphate levels. Second, Lever Detergents' reputation for high quality products. The new formulas had to conform to government regulations, while at the same time maintaining the high quality reputations of all Lever brands. Every new formula was a complete success. Every one achieved really high quality results, yet with a lower phosphate content.

This is just the beginning. Lever research will continue to try to find ways to get the phosphate levels in all their brands even lower. When this can be done and the high quality performance maintained, Lever will make these products available to you with all possible speed.

Fire Law Violation Costs Owners $1,000

Carmel Holdings Ltd., charged with four counts of violating the Fire Marshals Act, was fined a total of $1,000 before Judge J. A. Byers in provincial court Tuesday.

The charges involved violation of regulations governing community and public halls by allowing public use before authorization by fire officials, and with inadequate fire safety facilities as required by the act.

Carmel Holdings Ltd. owns the Queen Victoria Inn.

Court was told during a lengthy trial that not only had functions involving more than 100 people taken place at the building at 655 Douglas, but that availability of the hall for public use had been regularly advertised in both daily newspapers.

DOORS TOO NARROW

There was no authorization for such use from fire officials, court was told, because doorways were not wide enough to meet requirements of the act.

Section 11 of the act specifies that doors must be a minimum of 44 inches wide in public halls, but fire officials said the doors at the Queen Victoria Inn were too narrow at 36 inches.

Court was told that April 18 and 25 the hall was used for hosted parties involving at least 100 people.

Defence lawyer David Wilson argued that while Carmel Holdings owned the building it did not operate it, and that "simply standing by while an offence goes on is not an offence."

He said furthermore that the parties were private and not public functions.

NO TEST CASE

Before Byers brought down sentence Tuesday, Wilson said the trial had been a test case, but the judge said he considered the case no such thing.

"Fire is no respecter of persons or property," Byers said after delivering a lengthy judgment.

"It is clear from the evidence that the Queen Victoria Room was used as a public hall."

He ordered maximum fines of $250 on each of the four counts, and gave Carmel Holdings a week to pay.

Anti-Herbicide Law Stays—RD

SQUAMISH (CP) — Donald Gow, chairman of the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District, said Tuesday the district is ignoring a letter from the provincial municipal affairs department which says its anti-herbicide bylaw should be repealed.

J. D. Baird, assistant deputy municipal affairs minister, said it is not in a regional district's power to regulate herbicides and pesticides.

The district passed a bylaw recently prohibiting the use of the herbicides 2,4D and 2,4,5-T in an attempt to stop a British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority spraying program in the Pemberton area, north of Vancouver.

However, the spraying program has continued as the district awaits results of laboratory test on foliage sprayed within the last 10 days.

"We are going ahead and preparing charges," said Gow.

"We still think there is something wrong, letter or no letter.

"If there were more stringent controls from the department of agriculture or some other government body, we would be delighted to rescind the bylaw."

Jail Term For Impaired Driving

Lila Martin, 57, of 601 Cook, was sentenced Tuesday to 20 days in jail for impaired driving after being involved in a two-car collision Monday night.

She was driving a car south on Cook at 11:30 p.m. when she collided with another car driven west on Pandora by Douglas G. Tees, 18, of 3210 Quadra.

Tees was taken to hospital with head cuts after the crash. Damaged totalled $1,400.

Mrs. Martin had a blood-alcohol reading of .16 per cent, court was told, and she had a previous conviction for impaired driving.

"I regret the law compells me to send you to prison," Judge William Ostler said before passing sentence.

In another accident Monday an 18-year-old girl was taken to St. Joseph's.

Katherine Smith, 2019 Runnymede, was a passenger in the car of Sheila Agnes Colquhoun, of 713 Mt. Joy, when it collided with a car driven by Gary Douglas Shrive, 1444 Yates.

IN POLICE COURT

An American teen-ager who told Judge William Ostler he thought drug use had been legalized in Canada was remanded to August 11 for pre-sentence report and sen- in provincial court Tuesday.

Richard Sirota, 18, of Los Angeles, was arrested August 1 when a routine customs check at the Inner Harbor turned up 19 capsules of LSD which he admitted was his.

Lawrence S. Nelson, 19, also of Los Angeles, was arrested at the same time with 2½ ounces and 30 cigarettes of marijuana and 2 ounces of hashish in his possession.

He, too, was remanded to August 11 for pre-sentence report.

"Before we came here from California we were under the impression that there was a six month trial period in Canada in which drug use was not restricted," Sirota told Ostler.

He said he was very anxious to return home and requested a suspended sentence and no pre-sentence report.

Ostler said he could understand Sirota's feelings under the circumstances but said he wanted a report before making sentence.

Adrian Batterbury, 25, 1324 St. David, was fined a total of $400 and had his licence suspended for a year when he pleaded guilty to charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving while suspended.

He was arrested August 2 at St. Joseph's Hospital where he was seeking treatment for a hand injury suffered earlier that day in a car crash at Bay and Scott.

The defence argued that while Batterbury was pleading guilty, there were extenuating circumstances.

Court was told he had suffered a broken hand and been "dazed and stunned" in the accident.

He left the wreck and continued on foot to a friend's house down the street seeking assistance but was turned away, the defence said.

He then began making his way on foot to St. Joseph's, obtaining a ride part of the way by hitch-hiking.

Ostler warned Batterbury to heed "the danger signals" and not to become involved with alcohol, before sentencing a $150 fine on the hit and run charge and $250 on the driving while suspended charge.

★ ★ ★

Frank Hoshal, 22, of 170 Old Island Highway, was fined $250 on a charge of failing to stop after colliding with a parked car at 2754 5th Street Tuesday.

Court was told he had a lengthy and "simply atrocious record" of 13 minor traffic offences since 1966.

The prosecution asked a prison sentence, but Ostler demurred, stating that none of Hoshal's previous convictions involved a criminal charge.

"I wonder if you are as much a puzzle to yourself as you are to me," Ostler said in passing sentence.

James Kingsley Captain, 19, of 2073 Oak Bay Avenue, was fined a total of $350 when found guilty on charges of dangerous driving.

. . . DAVIS

Bamfield, Davis said he only saw two of the huge Soviet trawlers on the horizon.

"We had a normal night. The trollers were anchored in two groups, 21 in ours, and there were a few Russian boats in the area.

"In the second group a Russian ship came within 100 yards of them but that was the only ship to come near the anchored Canadian fleet."

Davis, along with Rod Hourston of the fisheries department in Vancouver, spent a night on the Big Bank off Pachena Point as a result of a side-swiping incident two weeks ago in which a Port Alberni troller, the Deas Isle, suffered, $1,500 damage when struck twice by a Soviet trawler.

Coast fishermen, up in arms over the third incident this year involving Canadian and Russian fishboats demanded Ottawa give protection to fishermen.

In reply to the fishermen, Davis said he would spend a night on the banks to see what is actually happening.

Davis and Hourston left Bamfield Tuesday morning on board the troller Cymry owned by Jack Meredith-Jones, president of the Pacific Trollers Association.

AERIAL VIEW

The boat returned to Bamfield this morning and Davis, fisheries officials, and newsmen were to take an aerial view of half a dozen Russian ships still operating off Barkley Sound.

He took a similar trip last year aboard a Canadian Forces Neptune in an effort to see whether there was any truth to Canadian fishermen's allegations that the Russian trawlers were taking salmon in their nets.

Asked by reporters what would happen if there were further incidents between Canadian and Russian boats, Davis replied "I'm keeping my fingers crossed that nothing will happen."

Davis said the Russians appear to be moving south and he expects few, if any, Soviet trawlers will be operating off our coast in the next two weeks.

NOT FRIGHTENED

The minister said he does not believe the Soviet fleet is being frightened away from our coast. "Moscow must be aware now of the incident between the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria and a Soviet freighter and also of the incident between their trawlers and the Canadian boats.

"The Russian captains must be getting some guiding comments from Russia."

The minister said the Russian fleet apparently does not care what is in its way on the surface. "They just barrel their way through."

"There must be something we can do so that our people and theirs can operate together on the banks."

Davis said at the next United Nations law of the sea conference expected in 18 months, Canada is hoping to secure a fishing zone to the edge including the slope of the Continental Shelf.

RIGHT TO REGULATE

The shelf extends approximately 30 miles off Pachena Point and Davis said this will not mean the Russians cannot fish there but that Canada will have the right to regulate fishing on the banks.

He said the smaller and the defensive nations in the world are supporting Canada's stand, but the agressive nations such as Russia, Japan, the United States and Britain are all against Canada.

"Countries such as Japan want maximum sea in which to fish."

Davis pointed out that any agreement Canada may get at the conference would not protect salmon and tuna, only groundfish.

Loss Account Questioned

Victoria City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady challenged the validity of operating loss statements for the E and N Railway presented before the Canadian Transport Commission hearings today.

O'Grady proved that the application to discontinue the Dayliner service between Nanaimo and Victoria did not originate with the CPR but with the E and N Railway.

He then told the commission that the operating loss for the E and N was listed as a loss for CPR, not the E and N.

Freighter Ban Urged In Pass

Freighters should be banned from Active Pass during major ferry sailing hours, Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle said today.

He made his comment following Sunday's collision which separates Mayne and Galiano islands. Three passengers on the ferry were killed.

Tisdalle said when government ferry service began 10 years ago, ferries were not allowed to meet in Active Pass. One would wait for the other to get through.

"We could brew it quicker... but it wouldn't be near so good"

Tiny Island Shelled by U.S. Navy

Tiny Culebra Objects to Being Gunned, Bombed and Strafed by Navy

Culebra, an island off the coast of Puerto Rico, has been an uncomplaining gunnery target for U.S. Navy practice since World War II. But recent disclosures that the Navy has been trying to move the 900 inhabitants elsewhere and take over the whole island finally stirred the islanders into protest, and now they want the Navy out.

Uncomplaining target of gunnery tests.

The tiny island of Culebra off the eastern edge of Puerto Rico has everything it takes to be a small spot of paradise in the Caribbean—sandy white beaches, waving palms, an unobstructive fishing industry and a population of 900 friendly Culebrans.

Unfortunately for anyone who chooses to make Culebra home, the 18-square-mile island also is the target of some of the most sophisticated weaponry known to man.

During the Second World War, Culebra was established as a target practice area for the United States Navy, and the navy has been reluctant to relinquish it ever since. The navy calls the island an "indispensible link" in the Atlantic Weapons Range of Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, located on the eastern shore of Puerto Rico, 22 miles away.

American ships fire almost ceaselessly at Culebra's northwest peninsula, and navy planes bomb and strafe its surrounding keys with a ferocity that might indicate the presence of a grave threat rather than the peaceful people who live there. And Uncle Sam has given permission from time to time for the navies of allied nations to get in their licks at little Culebra.

The navy owns one-third of the island, including the entire shoreline, which puts a bit of a crimp in the island's only industry, fishing, and somewhat stifles plans to develop any tourism.

But Culebrans suffered in silence until recently, when it became known that for the past 15 years the navy has been trying to acquire the whole island and relocate the residents elsewhere. The islanders voted in a town meeting—Culebra actually has the status of a municipality in Puerto Rico—to demand that the navy get out altogether.

A navy official in San Juan said in May that the navy would "smooth troubled waters" by asking Congress to return 680 acres of Culebra to civilian administration—but he said the navy would have to lease 2,100 more acres to use as a safety zone because it planned to increase the intensity of practice attacks against the offshore key of Culebrita.

The navy proposal went before the real estate subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee. Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D—Fla.), subcommittee chairman, urged that the White House get involved in the decision and invited the navy to explore unpopulated substitutes for battereed Culebra.

Bennett and other subcommittee members flew to Culebra and spent two days talking with the islanders and watching Naval operations.

Italy's New Leader Forming Government

ROME (Reuters) — Premier-designate Emilio Colombo started forming a new government today following the end of a month-long political crisis.

The door was opened for Colombo by the Social Democratic party, which joined the Christian Democrats, Socialists and Republicans in approving his platform.

It seemed likely that Colombo would call on President Giuseppe Saragat at Quirinal Palace sometime today to tell him officially that he can accept the mandate to form a four-party coalition government—a political formula lying at the base of Italian government the last seven years.

Colombo also was expected to begin discussions with his partners in forming a cabinet. The names would be made known in a few days.

Italy's new premier, a 50-year-old economist, is a Christian Democrat.

The crisis started July 6 with the fall of Mariano Rumor's 100-day government because of the Communist issue. Socialists and Social Democrats are divided on the issue of local government alliances with the Communists, which the Socialists claim the right to form.

The issue frustrated the efforts of the first premier-designate, Giulio Andreotti, and in his platform Colombo tackled the problem head-on.

EDNA JAQUES, POET

'The Words Just Keep Coming'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Edna Jaques, Canadian poet, says that although she has been trying to retire since the middle fifties "the words keep coming . . . and when they do you just grab for a pencil and get them down fast."

Forbes

Right now she has more than 3,000 poems in neat scribblers at her Toronto home.

She's willed them to the University of Waterloo where the Lady Aberdeen Library of books by and about women, has been placed in trust by the National Council of Women.

"They can't have them until I die," she explains. "If I let them go now it would be like turning my children out in the cold."

This energetic, clear-thinking 80-year-old was in Victoria in the course of a whirlwind western tour "to see my relatives, my friends and some of the places I remember and that I loved."

One such place was Lantern Lane in Gordon Head, where she was often a guest of Canadian author Nellie McClung.

"What have they done to it?" she mourned. "All those houses . . . it's not Lantern Lane any more."

Edna Jaques' life has seldom had a dull moment. She was born in Collingwood, Ontario, but her family moved to a prairie homestead when she was a small girl. It was then she started to write verse.

Some of those first efforts found their way into a Moose Jaw newspaper where a discerning editor predicted "this little girl will be famous one day."

Her first published works of major importance came in 1929. Then, during a six-year period when she lived in Victoria one of her early books "Dreams In Your Heart" was written about people and places here.

Altogether, 13 books of her poems have been published, the last "The Best of Edna Jaques," only four years ago.

Critics said she had reached her peak of popularity in the 50s. That's when she said she was going to retire.

But she's still writing and her poetry is enjoying a sales-rating that is "wonderful." Especially, she says, when you remember that those same critics labelled her on more than one occasion—and with tongue in cheek—"the poet laureate of the prairies."

Before she left on this tour, Edna Jaques selected from [illegible] precious scribblers [illegible] lers' poems requested [illegible] or of the popular [illegible] "Ideals."

"I going to stockpile [illegible] use them in coming [illegible] of various ideals [illegible] ribbons." Some have already appeared.

On the prose side of the [illegible] which she is about as [illegible] as in verse she has just completed two flash-backs for Reader's Digest, one on the Alaska Highway as she [illegible] in the making back in [illegible] and another about pioneer days on a prairie farm.

No wonder she can say quite out with conviction "I'm all right."

In the past four years she has travelled "right around the world and to a good many out-of-the-way places."

She's visited the Holy Land and the Dead Sea where she insisted on going wading.

At the Sea of Galilee she drank some of the water "much to the disgust of others in the party" and she travelled out to see the Pyramids in Egypt, on a camel.

"The guide said 'perhaps lady like a buggy' but I told him to whistle up a camel . . . I hadn't come all that way to ride in a buggy."

She looked at me with a twinkle in her eyes and added "that old camel was all right, we liked each other."

Wherever she has been she has brought back seeds for her garden. Favorites are Flanders poppies and hollyhocks from Jerusalem. "They're quite different to ours, there's a big black cross in the centre.

Edna Jaques left Victoria on Sunday for Vancouver where she will stay a few days. Then she starts a leisurely hop, skip and jump from place to place until she arrives home about the end of August.

Where will she go next? She doesn't know, "but as long as I have my health, it will be somewhere."

And will she keep on writing verse? "I guess I'll have to, as long as the words keep coming."

Uniform Request Comes From Ghana

What do you do when the Scout troop in Tamale, Ghana asks you for 24 uniforms? You send them of course, but first you have to find them.

Last year when the Victoria Scout district made an appeal for books and uniforms to send to West Africa, Mr. A. J. Broome, of 865 Patrick, who has been involved with scouting for 14 years, sent some books and pieces of uniform.

'SURPRISING'

Michele Buabeng, the Tamale scoutmaster, wrote a letter thanking Broome for the equipment, so Broome wrote back saying if there's anything else I can do for you, let me know.

"So, I got the rather surprising request for 24 uniforms. It would cost $400, so I can't buy them. I'm trying to find pieces of uniforms from as many different places as I can," Broome said.

Any navy blue shorts, khaki shirts, long navy blue stockings, and green berets would be greatly appreciated.

"These boys haven't any uniforms. In fact, they haven't very much at all. They are quite unable to buy uniforms, but are naturally keen not only to be Boy Scouts, but to look like Boy Scouts," said Broome.

Any uniforms people would care to donate will be picked up on receipt of a phone call to 385-3960.

Flower Group No Closed Circle

Nobody can accuse the Victoria Glad and Dahlia Society of being a closed circle. As proof: This year there will be special categories for begonias and fuchsias when the annual show opens Saturday at the Pearkes Arena on Tillicum Road.

And to show that the society is not the least bit glad about pollution (they see no fushsia in it), the advanced arrangers are producing a number of special flower designs with anti-pollution themes.

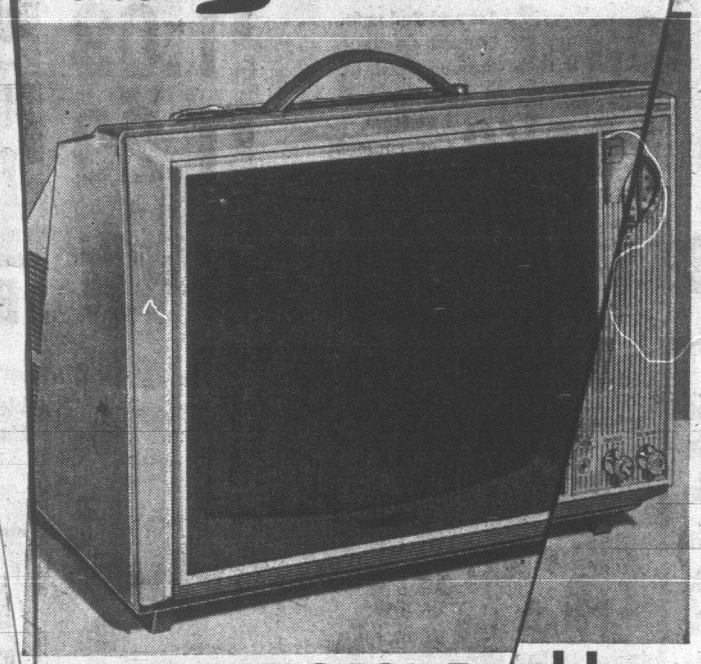

Visiting exhibitors are coming from Washington, Oregon and the B.C. mainland, and there is competition in novice, amateur and open classes.

Gen. George R. Pearkes will officially open the show at 3 p.m. Saturday. Mayor Hugh Curtis and Ald. Edith Gunning of Saanich will present awards at 3 p.m. Sunday and, at 8 p.m., all the exhibits will be auctioned off.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Du Pont

Du Pont of Canada reports second quarter earnings of $2.75 million or 34 cents a common share. First quarter earnings were 18 cents a share; second quarter last year, 58 cents.

Despite seasonal improvement over the first quarter, second quarter net sales of $58.45 million were down 7 per cent and earnings declined 40 per cent compared with a year ago.

President E. H. Bleckwell noted that "the company continued to be affected by adverse trends of higher costs, reduced demand and selling price erosion."

Earnings from normal operations for the first half year totalled $4 million or 52 cents a share. For the first six months of 1969 comparable earnings were 95 cents a share.

Endako

Endako Mines Ltd. earnings for the first half of 1970 reflected the company's change to a fully taxable position, decreasing to $5 million or 66 cents a share, from $7.7 million or 99 cents a share, for the first half of last year.

The company said sales increased to $17.6 million to June 30 compared with $16.6 million for the same period last year. However, income tax for the six months increased to about $4 million from $1 million.

The conversion of U.S. dollar holdings and the revaluation of accounts, resulted in a loss of $487,000.

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. had net earnings for the first six months of the year of $12.65 million, compared with earnings of $6.55 million for the same period last year.

President D. D. Morris said the marked increase in earnings resulted from higher tonnage of concentrate sales, higher lead and zinc prices and substantially higher sales of high grade ore.

Earnings for the six months to June 30 were worth $2.60 per share, compared with $1.45 a share for the first six months of 1969. Sales totalled $27.89 million compared with $18 million for the first half of last year.

Hudson Bay

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. reports six-month earnings of $12 million or $1.35 a share, down from $12.78 million or $1.41 a share for the corresponding period of 1969.

President Eric Austin said higher revenue during the first half of 1970 was partly offset by increased costs but earnings from operations were still greater than in the first six months of the previous year.

Austin said weak copper prices will reduce revenue for the rest of this year. He also said freeing of the Canadian dollar affected first-half earnings.

Anaconda

Anaconda Co. reports its earnings for the second quarter of 1970 dropped to $28.17 million or $1.29 a share from $32.6 million or $1.49 a share for the same period last year.

C. Jay Parkinson, chairman also said sales for the second quarter this year totalled $262.08 million compared with $353.26 million for the same period last year.

Parkinson said earnings for the year are expected to approximate those for 1969 "if general business conditions do not deteriorate further in the coming months."

Imported Gas Decision Hits Western Producers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oil industry spokesmen were generally critical today of a ruling by the Exchequer Court that a ban by the National Energy Board on selling imported gasoline west of the Ottawa Valley is unconstitutional.

The decision announced Tuesday in favor of Cal Oil Inc. of Montreal opens a breach in the eastern flank of national oil policy designed to preserve the market west of the Ottawa Valley for higher-cost Western Canada petroleums.

The judgment said Cal Oil is "entitled to import gas without any restriction as to how it is to be marketed." It is understood the gas was from Spain.

Raymond Dulude, company secretary of Cal Oil, welcomed the decision as a blow against restrictions on interprovincial trade and a victory from the consumer's right to buy lower-priced petroleum products.

But spokesmen for Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Imperial Oil Ltd. said they expect further government action on the oil policy.

EXPECT ACTION

"It is certainly unfortunate that a matter as vital as Canada's national oil policy has been frustrated by this turn of events," said Jerry McAfee, Gulf president. "However, we are confident that the government is determined to enforce its policies and we trust that they will promptly find a means of doing so."

An Imperial spokesman said: "We presume the government will appeal the decision or seek an alternate legal arrangement. Otherwise this appears to doom the efforts of those responsible for the national oil policy to reserve the Ontario market to products of Canadian origin."

The imported gasoline in Ontario has been selling at a price five to 10 cents a gallon cheaper than domestic gasoline.

In Calgary, Alastair Ross, vice-president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada said the decision could mean that markets for up to 75,000 barrels of crude oil a day would be lost to western producers.

Two weeks ago the association sent a telegram to the federal government asking that all foreign imports of refined petroleum products be banned in Canada and that imports of unrefined crude be licensed.

CAN CAUSE 'HELL'

A. F. Campo, chairman and chief executive officer of Petrofina Canada Ltd. said in a Montreal interview that the ruling "can cause hell" in the domestic gasoline market.

He said "Montreal needs protection from these imported products in the worst way, not just Ontario."

In Edmonton, Mines Minister A. R. Patrick said it was not immediately a problem because high freight rates on oil from the Middle East and Africa made oil from Western Canada "competitive." But ultimately it would be a problem.

"I am satisfied the government of Canada is trying to get the ruling changed.

Mr. Dulude said justice department officials gave his company the impression that an appeal is not likely. Observers said they believe the reason for the decision rests chiefly on the claim that the federal government has no power to control trade within a province, even though it does have some authority to regulate trade between provinces.

Prices Increase Rate Will Ease

OTTAWA (CP) — Prices may rise in Canada this year by as much as they did in 1969, but a slowing down in the rate of increase will be more evident in 1971, says the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development.

The 22-nation body based in Paris also says in an economic survey of Canada that there will be increasing under-utilization of Canadian industrial capacity during 1970, and the unemployfent rate for the whole year will average between 5.5 and six per cent despite slower growth of the labor force.

The report released in Paris and received here in advance of publication was prepared by OECD officials with help from Canadian authorities, and approved by the organization's economic and development review committee in May.

That was before Canada set the dollar free to find its own level in international exchange markets and the government here revised some of its anti-inflation policies.

The OECD's assessment of the Canadian outlook, for instance, is based on an assumption that retail credit controls would be in effect by now. The government announced in March it would introduce such controls, but dropped the plan when it set the dollar free May 31.

ROSE 4.5 PER CENT

Prices rose 4.5 per cent in Canada last year, as measured by the average of 12 monthly increases in the consumer price index. They were 1.26 per cent higher at mid-year than last December, and the 12-month rate of increase has slowed to 3.2 per cent from 4.6.

Some gradual slowing in the rate of price increase within the year was foreseen by OECD. But it said: "The result will depend on the effects of easing demand pressure, the amount of success in promoting voluntary wage and price restraint, and the amount of deceleration in price trends achieved abroad.

"The moderation of price rises through such factors is expected to have its major effect in 1971, but there may be some gradual slowdown of increases within the present year."

OECD said inflation, up to the time of the organization's review of the Canadian situation, "proved surprisingly resistant to policy measures." It cautioned against relaxing anti-inflation policies too soon, and added:

"It is clearly important to avoid a resurgence of demand which would increase pressures on resources and fuel inflationary expectations. The maintenance of a certain margin of slack is undoubtedly a necessary condition for restoring better price stability."

FEWER JOBS

On labor and employment, the survey said the growth of job opportunities will be weak. Productivity gains may be slower in 1970 than in 1969, when they amounted to only 1.2 per cent per person employed in commercial industry.

"The size of collective bargaining setlements continues to be high, and wage rates have shown no sings, as yet, of slowing their advance," the survey added. But since it was written the labor department reported here there was some moderating trend shown in the second quarter of this year.

The survey said the failure to obtain the support of organized labor for voluntary wage and price restraint does not mean that the efforts of the prices and incomes commission have been fruitless.

"The agreements made with business and provincial governments can, in themselves, contribute to a slowing down in the inflationary spiral-directly as well as through their impact on wage demands as the rise in living costs eases."

The commission headed by Dr. John Young obtained agreement among 300 representative business and professional leaders in February to keep price increases in 1970 less than cost increases.

Quebec Power Plant To Revolutionize Reactor Systems

OTTAWA (CP) — Next year's start-up of the power plant at Gentilly, Que., is more than just another nuclear power source.

Successful functioning will be a further stage in the evolution of what is expected by scientists and engineers to mean a new generation of reactors capable of being built at a capital cost saving of up to 10 per cent.

L. R. Haywood, vice-president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., Chalk River, Ont., nuclear laboratories, visualizes combining Gentilly plant features with a fuel recycling system now being studied at Chalk River.

Key elements in the capital cost saving are Gentilly's requirement for less heavy water than earlier power reactors and the plant's need for fewer pressure channels in the reactor itself.

These combined with re-use of what now is regarded as "spent" radioactive fuel are expected to give a saving that will keep nuclear power competitive with fossil-fuel power a decade from now.

The re-cycling of spent fuel by extracting plutonium from it will mean new usefulness for natural uranium fuel from existing nuclear reactors.

The plutonium will be combined with uranium oxide and inserted in reactors to provide another fuelling charge. Eventually, the expectation is that it will be possible to use plutonium alone without the addition of uranium oxide.

3 Escape to West

BERLIN (AP) — A mother, her seven-year-old son and her 11-year-old daughter have evaded East German border patrols and escaped into West Berlin, police reported.

Mr. Haywood says the modification will not require the kind of costly prototype work that has gone into earlier nuclear power plants.

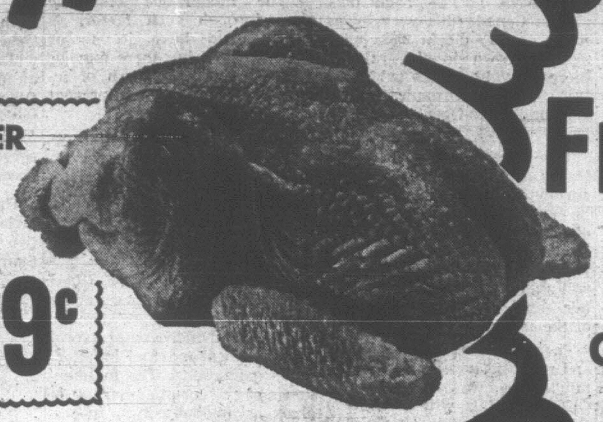

The Gentilly plant, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence about 10 miles east of Trois-Rivieres, Que., is designed to take substantially less heavy water by substituting ordinary water as the medium of heat exchange.

Water will be converted to steam by the nuclear reactor to drive steam turbines which, in turn, power electric generators.

In present Canadian nuclear plants, this heat exchange as well as the modification or slowing of the nuclear reaction are done by heavy water.

Gentilly will require some heavy water but only in its present role as moderator of the nuclear reaction.

Fertility Pill Works, Sixfold

ROME (AP) — A plumber's wife who had taken a fertility drug gave birth to sextuplets Tuesday night. Four died early today and a doctor said the outlook for the other two was "not rosy."

The three boys and three girls were born to Loredana Luzzitelli Petrone, 35, who had been childless for 11 years of marriage. They were three months premature, and the doctors said two boys and two girls died during the night.

More than 20 sets of extuplets have been reported born in other countries since 1900, and the rate has increased since the taking of fertility drugs became widespread.

The Petrone babies and the babies born May 21 to Mrs. Martin Danoff of New York are believed to be the only sextuplets all born alive. All six of the Danoff babies died within seven hours.

The largest of the Petrone babies weighted 1.9 pounds and the smallest 1.4 pounds.

BILL WALKER

That word "snicker" has already come to have a significance of sorts in the Canadian Football League season, which is barely a week old. How meaningful remains to be seen or snickered at.

Coach Jackie Parker used it after the Lions got beaten up by the Roughriders a week ago. This was because Jackie had indicated better things, and that the Lions would be able to take care of themselves. And so everyone felt sorry for Jackie, now in his first full season, and laughed along with the Lions. There was little else to do.

But actually it is no laughing matter, as this is the day of decision; the day that will determine where the member clubs will finish the season, and why.

And if you are planning to go to the Grey Cup, get a Stetson, and look for an easy mark in Toronto. The price will be in your favor.

Because that's it on Nov. 28, Grey Cup Day.

The Stampeders will come down from the hills to meet the Toronto Argonauts who have been waiting for this date for 19 long years. It was in 1952 that the Argos last were in the Canadian classic.

But first to the west.

Calgary and Saskatchewan, or Saskatchewan and Calgary. It is that close with the nod going to Calgary. The Riders have lost two great players, Jim Worden and Hugh Campbell. All their veterans are a year older, and have slowed up half a step or more. True, they have a great backfield in George Reed, Silas McKinnie and Bobby Thompson, managed by a superb quarterback in Ronnie Lancaster. And they looked very good against the Lions in the opener. But . . .

And the "but" is there because the Stamps weren't that far behind the Riders last season, and their tough defence should be even tougher with Wayne Harris healthy again.

●

Terry Evanshen may be hard to replace but the Stamps will try with a talented rookie, Hugh McInnis. And in this book Jerry Keeling has come of age at quarterback, and he has an excellent back-up man in Larry Lawrence.

Which puts the Lions and Eskimos in the other section along with Winnipeg. And as the Lions have been discussed before, and Winnipeg is in the middle of a rebuilding program, that leaves everything up to the Eskimos as to how the other two clubs will fare.

Defence has been the recent Edmonton strong point, and quite obviously still is. And they do have a new quarterback in town who can throw th ball almost as well as Rusty Clark. Don Trull is a veteran of American Football League action, and should help. But will the Esks, without "long-gone" Jim Thomas, be able to muster a running game to go with what could be an excellent passing attack? The thought is no, not yet, which puts them on a par with the Lions, who do have fast backs, and a good passing attack, but are weaker on defence. Whichever team improves the most will finish third, and from here that club must be the Lions.

Winnipeg has a new coach in Jim Spavital, and many new players, and a brand new outlook, and will likely come awfully close many times this season, but not close enough to win too many. Which is what happened at Calgary last week. The Bombers stopped short in the stretch, and will do it again, just as they did last night.

There just has to be better ahead for the Lions, although they have been over-rated by the coaching staff. Still, there is the nagging suggestion that there is an explosive quality here that only needs igniting.

Now, if someone can only find a match. . . .

●

In the east, the Argos were almost there last fall. And if it hadn't been for Russ Jackson and a fine Ottawa team, they would have been. This is a high scoring club, loaded with talent, and an excellent second quarterback to go with Tom Wilkinson who did well enough last season. Don Jonas is the 30-year-old rookie from the Continental League on whom the Argos are banking highly, and who eventually could be No. 1 in the signal-calling stakes.

Put the Tiger Cats from Hamilton close up for one important reason. Joe Zuger is back, and running the club. It may be old hat to suggest that the Hamilton team was Grey Cup bound last fall, going 10 games without defeat early in the season. But it is true. Then Zuger injured his throwing hand and the Tabbies went limp. So if he is healthy, watch out.

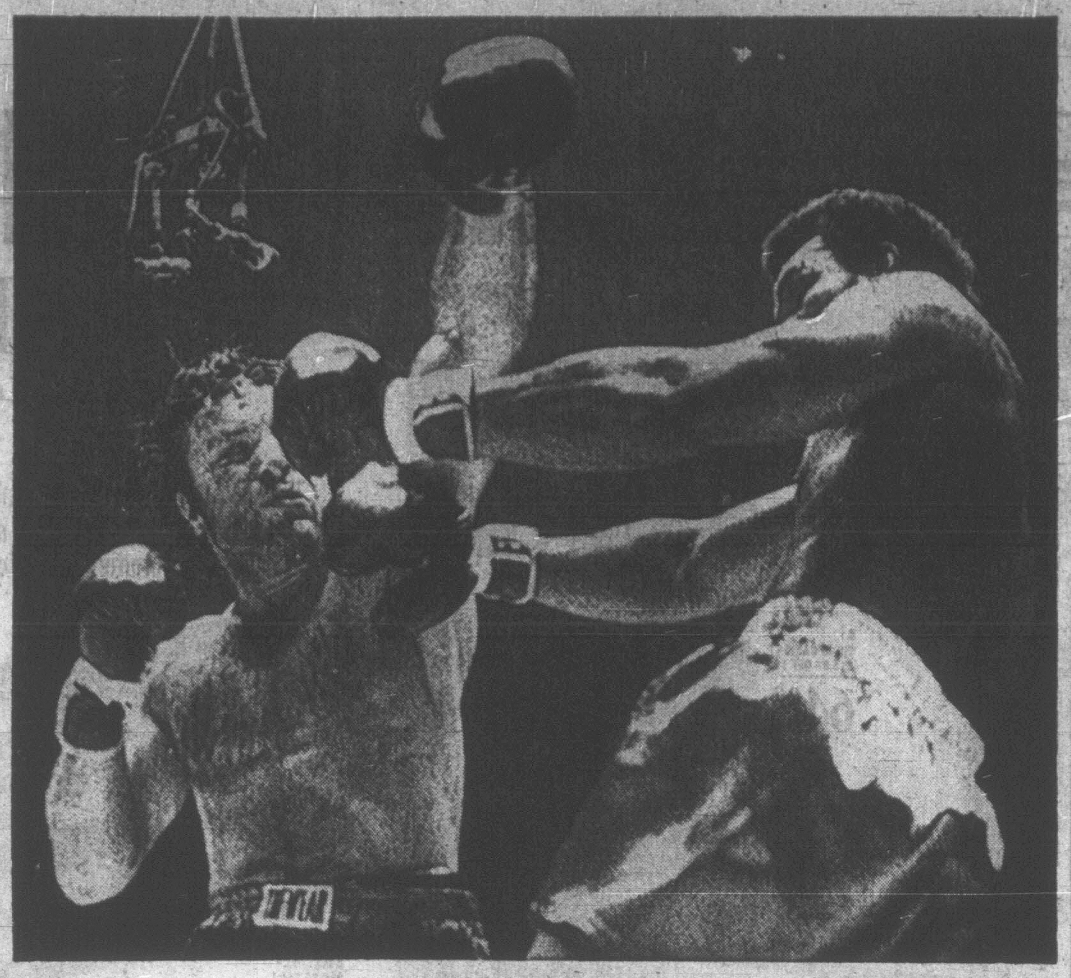

Which puts Ottawa in the playoffs, but only if they can hold off the Montreal Alouettes. There is a new broom in Montreal, and it may not get all the housework done in a single season. Slingin' Sam Etcheverry is comparable to B.C.'s Jackie Parker. He may lift the team spirit by the mere mention of his name, but it will take more than that for the Als to keep up in the tough Eastern Conference. Yes, even with Evanshen, Sonny Wade, and whatever. And the last-named will have to perform awfully well for them to succeed.

But it will be a tight fit.

And all that relegates the champs, Ottawa Rough Riders, to third. First, because they don't have Jackson. They do have a fine replacement in Gary Wood, who is down from the New York Giants, but Margene Adkins and Vic Washington aren't there any more, either. Then, too, Frank Clair has moved upstairs, and new coach Jack Gotta must find a new way of inspiring an old but tough club, especially on defence.

There it is then; make your Grey Cup plans now. (And please don't call, because I had a dream last night and it was Montreal and the Lions on TV in the silly-season final.)

Sure, go ahead and snicker. But think of the odds.

TWO-FISTED APPROACH

Using both gloves to push back George Chuvalo (left) as Canadian misses with looping left is George Foreman. Foreman, unbeaten former Olympic heavyweight champion, stopped Toronto battler on technical knockout in third round of non-title heavyweight battle at Madison Square Garden in New York City Tuesday night. (AP Wirephoto)

Chuvalo Shuns Plan to Retire

NEW YORK (CP)—George Chuvalo must have known it was coming.

Chuvalo had just suffered a third-round technical knockout Tuesday night at the hands of young George Foreman and the press was gathered in the post-fight interview area with both fighters.

"Will you have any more fights?" was one of the first questions directed at him.

"Yes," was the terse reply from the veteran Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto who has been asked the same question more times than he would like to remember over the years.

"I have a lot of things to think about," he said later in the dressing room, answering the same question again, "but I don't have any plans for retiring."

Foreman, former Olympic heavyweight champion from Hayward, Calif., picked up his 22nd straight victory without a loss and his 19th knockout when referee Arthur Mercante stopped the fight at 1:41 of the third round. It was only the second time Chuvalo had been stopped.

Foreman had scored repeatedly from the beginning of the fight with sharp left jabs and drove Chuvalo against the ropes with a looping left in the third. He then uncorked a beautiful left hook to Chuvalo's head which did most of the damage.

The 21-year-old Foreman then threw every punch in the book at Chuvalo, who did not appear able to fight back. Some of Foreman's punches missed, however, and Chuvalo escaped further punishment only to find himself backed into his own corner seconds later. After Foreman pounded him some more, the referee stopped the fight.

WASN'T HURT

"It most certainly should not have been stopped," Chuvalo said.

"I was hit with some good punches, but I wasn't hurt. He (Foreman) was just blowing off steam. I think they were a bit premature in stopping it. Another round or so and I would've started catching on."

Chuvalo is 32 and this was his 77th fight in a long and varied career which has included a heavyweight championship bout with Muhammad Ali and a crack at the World Boxing Association title in Toronto against Ernie Terrell. He lost both and had been hoping to defeat Foreman in a bid for one last crack at the title.

Chuvalo now has a record of 59 victories, 16 losses and two draws. He has knocked out 51 of his opponents.

Prior to his fight with Jerry Quarry here some New York sports writers said Chuvalo was washed up. Angry at the suggestions, Chuvalo knocked Quarry out in the seventh round.

A crowd of 12,526 paid $107,185 to see the fight.

Chuvalo was guaranteed $50,000 and Foreman earned $17,500, his largest purse.

BLUES NEXT IN LINE AFTER POSTPONEMENT

Victoria Royals' scheduled Western Canada Soccer League game tonight with Vancouver Cougars has been postponed.

According to Royal manager, Brian Hughes, the game was postponed in order to accommodate a match between the mainland side and the Winnipeg Blues of the Prairie Division.

The Royal-Cougar game has been re-scheduled for next Wednesday.

Victoria, which is in first place in the Coastal Division, is scheduled to play its next home game against the Blues on Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Burrards Break Adanacs' String

Mathematically speaking, the picture is simple.

Victoria Shamrocks, who have seven games remaining in their Western Lacrosse Association schedule, need to win at least four times to tie Coquitlam Adanacs for third place and the final playoff spot.

That's assuming, however, that Adanacs will lose most of their five remaining games.

Shamrocks have a chance to start a victory streak tonight while facing league-leading New Westminster Salmonbellies in the first tussel of a three-game series.

Game time is 8 in Memorial Arena.

Meanwhile, Coquitlam dropped a 10-8 decision to Burrards in Vancouver Tuesday and ended a six-game winning streak.

Playing before only 600 fans, both teams mustered a loose defence and most shots were wild.

Vancouver led 4-0 before Coquitlam answered back with seven minutes remaining in the first period, led 5-3 going into the second frame and boosted that up to 7-4 going into the final 20 minutes.

Bill Rawson and Bob Holmes led Vancouver with two goals each while Mike Gates paced Adanacs by scoring twice.

Renfrew Rink Reaches Final

Hughie Renfrew's quartet from the host Victoria Lawn Bowling Club will meet the Jack Lambrecht foursome from Seattle in Saturday's rink final of the annual men's tournament currently underway at the Beacon Hill greens.

Renfrew advanced to the final Tuesday with a 17-10 victory over Harry Tuck of Nanaimo while Lambrecht defeated Colin Fleck's Burnside quartet 15-8 in the other semi-final encounter.

Colwood's Comeback Checks William Head

Down 2-1 going into the last two innings second-place Colwood Inn rallied for three runs to defeat William Head, 4-2, Tuesday in the Steelers' last Stuffy McGinnis Softball League game of the season at Heywood Avenue Park.

Taking a two-run lead on a run-scoring single by Jim Ouellette and run-scoring double by Ralph Sterman in the second frame, William Head held Colwood down until the sixth when Ron Griffis led off with a double, advanced to third on Amos Happy's single, and scored when Terry Tweedy hit into a double play.

With the score tied, 2-2, Ray Mellings singled in the seventh and crossed home on two Steeler errors for the winning run.

Ken Griffin then doubled in Bruce Smith for the insurance marker.

Favored Netters Rolling Along

TORONTO (CP) — Seeded players continued to advance easily through second round play in the Canadian closed tennis championships here Tuesday.

Top-seeded Mike Belkin of Montreal, nursing an injured foot, beat Mike Carroll of Ottawa 6-2, 6-1, to avenge a defeat several years ago when Carroll beat him for the Canadian junior title.

The 25-year-old, who injured his foot in his first Davis Cup match against Brazil in the North American zone final, advanced along with seven other seeded players.

Second-seeded John Sharpe of Toronto toyed with John Racjic, also of Toronto, 6-2, 6-0. Fourth-seeded Keith Carpenter of Toronto ousted Bob Howes of Vancouver 6-3, 6-1.

Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., third-seeded, scored a 6-3, 6-4 win over Joe Osadca of Toronto. In other play, fifth-seeded Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver beat Andre Cote of Montreal 6-3, 6-3, while sixth-seeded Harry Fauquier of Toronto, trounced Dave Brown of Toronto 6-1, 6-1, by hitting shots deep to the baseline and waiting for Brown to make errors.

Roger Skillings of Victoria was defeated 6-2, 7-5 in the second round of the men's singles competition by Ed Pribyl of Toronto.

Ex-Victorian Susan Butt, now playing out of Vancouver, downed Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver 6-2, 6-2 in the women's second round and partnered her opponent to a victory by default in doubles competition.

Eighth-seeded Brian Flood of Toronto advanced by beating Jim Shelton of Vancouver 6-1, 6-1.

Top women's seeds also had little difficulty advancing to quarter final play.

First-seeded Andree Martin of Montreal defeated Sylvia Rysanek of Toronto 6-1, 6-1. Jane O'Hara of Toronto, rated No. 2 and the current Canadian junior titleholder, beat Nicole Boucher of Montreal 6-1, 6-1.

Veteran Louise Brown, seeded third in the womens and first in the seniors, breezed past Claire Sutton of Montreal 6-0, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Susan Eager of Vancouver got past Michell Carey, also of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-1.

Della Lubin of Toronto, who upset eighth-seeded Inge Weber Monday, dropped a 6-2, 6-2 match to Barbara Brankovsky of Toronto.

Liz Hess 30th In Washington

Liz Hess of Victoria placed 30th in a tenpin bowling scholarship tournament in Washington, D.C., which ended Monday.

Miss Hess, 17, who has been bowling for eight years, qualified for the try at a $1,000 scholarship in a torunament earlier this year at Vancouver.

Jill Healy of Stockton, Calif., won the top prize.

Sharp Show By Brothers Sparks Leos

WINNIPEG (CP)—British Columbia Lions may have themselves a quarterback.

Head Coach Jackie Parker saw signs of long-awaited consistency Tuesday night in Paul Brothers, whose off-and-on performances have sometimes been a questionable factor in the Lions' talent-laden backfield.

In the dressing room, Parker was full of praise for the way Brothers marshalled the team back from a one-point half-time deficit to squelch Winnipeg Blue Bombers 48-21 in their Western Football Conference game.

Parker said he watched closely the eight-play sequence early in the third quarter that started the Lions' runaway.

Brothers began at his 27 and wound up by running out of the pocket and scampering 19 yards around left end for a touchdown.

"He did it perfectly," said Parker. "He was checking the defences and called every play just right."

SPAVITAL DIFFERS

Maybe so, said coach Jim Spavital in the losers' quarters, but he never should have got away with that touchdown run.

"If it had been (Carroll) Williams it might have been different, but Brothers isn't the kind of runner who should go 19 yards. It was terrible tackling."

Bombers fought back to a slim half-time lead but collapsed in the final 30 minutes. Three lost fumbles and four pass interceptions broke up good marches and led to B.C. scores.

The fumbles in particular drew Spavital's ire.

"I've warned them time and again about tucking the ball into their gut," said the head coach.

Jim Evenson, returning to the lineup after recovering from an appendectomy, scored B.C. touchdowns on plunges of one and two yards.

Jerry Bradley picked off a Wally Gabler pass and ran it 32 yards to paydirt. Brothers threw scoring passes to Lefty Hendrickson for five yards and to Jim Young for 60 to open the game. Ted Gerela kicked six converts and field goals of 27 and 31 yards.

VAN PELT MAKES UP

For Winnipeg, Amos Van Pelt attoned for two fumbles by scoring touchdowns on a an eight-yard run and a four-yard pass from Gabler. Ken Nielsen, Winnipeg's most potent offensive weapon, caught six passes for 184 yards including a 19-yard touchdown and Gene Lakusiak kicked three converts.

The Lions rolled up 22 first downs to 18 for Winnipeg. The Lions had four in the first half, the Bombers four in the second.

On the ground, it was 247 yards to 133 in B.C.'s favor. Gabler completed 12 of 20 passes for 267 yards; Ron Johnson, who appeared briefly late in the game, clicked on three of six for 16 yards, and Van Pelt was unsuccessful on a throw off a halfback roll-out.

Brothers accounted for 227 yards on 11 pass competitions in 15 attempts. Carroll Williams, who came in when B.C. had the game sewed up, had his only pass intercepted.

A crowd of 17,340 saw the game.

Larks Jolt Argos

MONTREAL (CP)—The new-look Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference came up with a strong two-way effort in their season opener Tuesday night, upsetting Toronto Argonauts 34-27.

Sonny Wade, starting his second season with the team, delighted 26,743 fans as he scored three touchdowns and passed for two more.

The 23-year-old quarterback said later it "was one of those games when everything goes right." Rookie head coach Sam Etcheverry added that "it's a great feeling to start off like that against a team that's supposedly going to win the Grey Cup."

Toronto's outstanding flanker, Bobby Taylor, who caught two touchdown passes, was injured early in the fourth quarter trying to snag a goal line pass and did not return to action.

LOOKED GOOD

Taylor's pass catching was one of the few bright spots for the Argos, kept at bay by a strong Montreal defence except in the third quarter.

Toronto went ahead 3-0 in the first quarter when Don Jonas booted a 39-yard field goal but the Als bounced back early in the second when Dick Smith flipped an eight-yard touchdown pass to Wade after taking a handoff from the Montreal quarterback.

Terry Evanshen, obtained from Calgary Stampeders in an off-season trade, took a 15-yard touchdown pass from Wade less than three minutes later and Montreal jumped into a 14-3 lead.

Toronto replied with a touchdown by Taylor, alone in the end zone to gather up a pass from Wilkinson. But the Als took a 20-10 lead into the third quarter after Wade carried the ball across the goal line on a one-yard plunge. Pierre Guindon missed his only convert of the game when he tried for the extra point.

Wade scored his third major of the contest early in the second half to extend Montreal's lead to 17 points but the rest of the third quarter was mostly Toronto.

JONAS STARTS FAST

Wilkinson was replaced by Jonas and the new signal caller directed the Argos down the field, capping the drive with a 21-yard touchdown pass to Tony Moro.

Phils' Runner Pays Penalty For Neatness

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Neatness counts but Tuesday night it cost the Philadelphia Phillies.

Pinch-runner Grant Jackson, in the middle of a seventh-inning Phillies rally, stepped off third base to dust off his uniform and was tagged out.

That cut short the comeback and helped St. Louis Cardinals hang on for a 3-2 victory over the Phillies, attired in fancy new uniforms for the current National League season.

In other league action Tuesday, Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Montreal Expos 4-2, New York Mets blanked Chicago Cubs 4-0, Atlanta Braves trimmed Houston Astros 6-1, Cincinnati Reds walloped San Diego Padres 12-1 and San Francisco Giants whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 11-4.

The Cardinals, who won their sixth straight, led 3-0 before the Phillies started rallying against starter Jerry Ruess. Byron Browne homered in the fifth and Larry Hisle's RBI-single made it 3-2 an inning later.

The Phillies knocked out Ruess with one-out singles in the seventh by Rick Joseph and Tony Taylor. Jackson ran for Joseph and raced to third on Taylor's hit.

TAYLOR RUN COUNTS

Carl Taylor homered for the Cardinals and scored the deciding run in the fifth when he walked and came around on Richie Allen's triple.

Bob Robertson ripped a homer and a single, driving in three runs and helping Pittsburgh past Montreal.

Bob Veale pitched a six-hitter for his seventh victory of the season as the Pirates maintained their one-game lead over New York in the NL East Division.

The Mets kept pace by blanking Chicago on Nolan Ryan's three-hitter.

Ryan struck out 13 and won his first game since June 24 with Dave Marshall driving in three runs on a pair of doubles.

Jim Merritt, Johnny Bench, Bernie Carbo and Bobby Tolan all slammed home runs as the Reds rolled over San Diego.

Merritt spun an eight-hitter for his 16th victory. Bench's homer was his 37th of the year and his four RBIs gave him 107 for the year.

McLAIN BEATEN

Jackie Brown, called up from the minors after nine years July 1, still is not certain if he is a starter or a reliever.

George Brunet, scheduled starter for Washington Senators against Detroit Tigers, suffered a muscle spasm in his shoulder during Tuesday's warmup.

As a result, Brown was tagged to start the game and he came away with his first major league victory, beating Denny McLain in the process.

Brown yielded only two hits and one run over 5 1-3 innings before Darold Knowles took over, yielding one more hit in the Senators 4-1 win over the Tigers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles and Dave McNally beat Boston Red Sox 5-2, Minnesota Twins and rookie Bert Blylevel halted Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, Steve Hargan pitched Cleveland Indians past the New York Yankees 6-1, Tommy John and the Chicago White Sox nipped Kansas City Royals 2-1 and Oakland Athletics held off California Angels 4-3.

McNally, 15-7, the third Orioles' pitcher to win 15, hurled his third straight complete game and eighth of the season as Baltimore won its fourth in a row. Paul Blair backed him with two homers for three runs, giving him five homers against Boston this season. He has hit 10 in all.

TEENAGER SHINES

Blyleven, 6-3, 19 years old, struck out 12 and helped himself out, capping a three-run fourth inning with a single for his first major league run batted in. Rich Reese drove in two other runs with a double and a single.

Hargan, 6-2, won his fifth straight game since being recalled from Wichita July 17, where he was sent with a sore arm. He now has a two-hitter, a three-hitter, a five-hitter and a seven-hitttr.

Essos Put Damper On Transport Bid

Gorge Hotel received a helping hand from cellar-dwelling Imperial Esso in a Senior Amateur Baseball League game played Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park.

The Esso crew bounced Transport Workers 8-6 and prevented the losers from moving into a tie for first place with Gorge.

Imperials took a commanding 8-4 lead in the bottom of the sixth inning when Chris Hall connected for a run-scoring triple and then romped home on a sacrifice fly by Randy Senini.

Senini and Bob Burrows each drove in two runs for Imperials.

Mike McAvoy's two-run homer paced the Transports' four-run first inning.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three teams remain in contention among western clubs while Quebec and Newfoundland have clinched the top two positions in the east after action Tuesday in the interprovincial soccer championships.

Manitoba moved into a first-place tie with British Columbia in the four-team western pool with a 5-0 victory over Saskatchewan while Quebec downed Ontario, 1-0, for their third-straight victory in the eastern pool and Newfoundland clinched second place with an 8-1 victory over Nova Scotia.

The results left Manitoba and British Columbia with a win and a tie atop the western pool while Saskatchewan has a win and a loss. Alberta, with two losses in as many games, is out of contention.

Manitoba meets Alberta and British Columbia clashes with Saskatchewan in the final games of the preliminary round-robin today.

A tie in the standings will be broken by a comparison of goals for and against by each team.

COUGHLAN BIG WINNER . . . . . . AT SWIM MEET

Transplant Settles for Record

WINNIPEG (CP) — Byron McDonald missed his target by three-tenths of a second Tuesday night, but still lowered his Commonwealth and Canadian Closed records in the 100-metre butterfly as the Canadian Open swimming championships ended here.

Despite the record-breaking performance of 57.3 seconds, the 18-year-old resident of Chicago was still undecided about the American Nationals. Winner of a Commonwealth Games gold medal in the butterfly, McDonald has been pondering the U.S. championships all week.

"I'm trying for 57 tonight," he said before the finals. "If I make it I'll enter the American nationals. I'd be in the high 57's there which should be okay."

Following the final, the double gold-medalist at this competition, said he "may yet enter the Nationals."

"I'd only enter one event and I may be able to stretch my peak a little longer. But that would be a month," he said referring to the time since he hit his stride for the games in Edinburgh, Scotland.

McDonald, who set a games record of 58.44, was clocked at 57.7 in the heats. His former Canadian record was 57.6 seconds.

He said after the heats "it's too bad (Juan) Bello left. He's one of the few guys who has a better all-time time in the 100-metre fly. With him pushing me I'd have a better chance at the record."

Bello, of Peru, winner of three gold and three silver medals, withdrew following competitions Monday night, apparently headed back to California to train for the U.S. Nationals.

Bob Kasting of Lethbridge then began pushing McDonald, although McDonald said "I know I can beat him." Kasting chased him to a fast 50 metres and set up McDonald for the run at the record.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., emerged as the top individual gold medal winner with four. She picked up her final victory in the 800-metre freestyle, easily beating Leslie Cliff of Vancouber and Randi Bjune of Port Alberni.

Swimmers from Port Alberni, the only Vancouver Island team in the championships, also placed fourth in the men's 400-metre freestyle relay.

Miss Coughlan's 9:51.2 clocking gave her a sweep of the four freestyle events, having won the 100-, 200- and 400-metre distances earlier.

Yoshimi Nishigawa of Japan also took four gold medals home, but one was for a relay victory. Her third individual gold came in the 200-metre breaststroke, as she outsprinted teammate Hitomi Tanigawa in the final 50 metres.

Mayumi Aoki of Japan won her second individual and third overall gold medal in the 100-metre butterfly. Her time of 1:07.4 gave her the win over teammate Moriko Asano and Lesley Booth of St. Catharines, Ont.

Ex-Governor's Wife Holds Slim Lead In Michigan Senatorial Primary Vote

DETROIT (AP) — Lenore Romney held a narrow lead today in her bid for the Republican nofination to the Senate from Michigan, one of four states holding primary elections Tuesday.

Computer troubles in Detroit, where one-fifth of Michigan's voters live, delayed the tabulation of votes in Mrs. Romney's race against state Senator Robert Huber. She is the 61-year-old wife of George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development in President Nixon's cabinet and a former governor of Michigan.

With 73 per cent of Michigan's 6,044 precincts reporting, the unofficial count was 239,804 for Mrs. Romney and 221,970 for Huber.

In the other three states with primaries Tuesday, the unofficial count showed these results in major races:

Missouri: Sen. Stuart Symington was a landslide victor in his bid for the Democratic nomination to his fourth term in the Senate. His November Republican opponent will be Attorney-General John Danforth. All 10 incumbent congressmen—nine Democrats and one Republican—won renomination.

Kansas: Attorney-General Kent Frizzell was a runaway winner over four opponents for the Republican nomination for governor and the right to meet incumbent Democrat Robert Docking in November. Docking had no primary opposition.

Idaho: Gov. Don Samuelson won the Republican nomination for a second term, beating Dick Smith of Resburg. Cecil D. Andrus was nominated by Democrats to oppose Samuelson in November.

Mrs. Romney was picked as Michigan Republicans' "consensus" candidate at the party's March convention.

The Republican winner will face two-term Democratic incumbent Philip A. Hart in November. Hart had no primary opposition.

Republican Gov. William Milliken was an easy winner over magazine publisher James Turner in Milliken's bid for a full, elected term as state chief executive. As lieutenant-governor, he succeeded Romney in the statehouse when Romney was named to the cabinet.

State Senator Sander Levin led a field of four seeking the Democratic nomination as governor.

Primaries in the U.S. are held to select candidates for general elections and serve the same purpose as nominating conventions in Canada. In the primaries, only registered voters are allowed to cast ballots for politicians seeking their party's nomination.

SOUGHT CAR —GOT TICKET

SEATTLE (UPI) — Dorothy Ann Schurk went to police headquarters to claim her car. Instead, she got a ticket for negligent driving.

Police said the auto dropped 40 feet off the Alaskan Way viaduct. The woman said she was thrown clear when the car hit a guard railing — and then plunged over it.

'WE NEVER CUT DOWN TREES'

River Family Sets Up Campsite

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — Norm Hancocks and his family have enjoyed living in River Valley along the Cowichan River so much for the past five years they have decided to share it with campers.

Hancocks, a millwright at the Crofton pulp mill, and his wife florence, both 39, bought River Valley for an old house that she has always wanted to live in.

River Valley is situated on eight acres, 300 yards of it along the Cowichan River, 10 miles west of Duncan.

When he first started clearing his property Hancocks said it dawned on him what a nice picnic site it would make.

"Then I thought what a nice campsite it would make as well," he said.

Since last year, Hancocks, along with his 15-year-old son Kraig, have built 12 campsites spread over one acre. "We never cut down any trees," explained Hancocks, father of six children, four ranging in age from 7 months to 17 years still at home. "We just cleared the bushes. We will clear another three acres because next year I plan to have 25 campsites."

The Hancocks also supply shower and washroom facilities and a little store.

"People were always driving down before asking if they could camp or picnic on our property. We are the only permanent residents on Stoltde Road. There are 13 summer homes down here, though."

Hancocks said the big attraction is the clean Cowichan River.

"I am going to keep it that way around here too," he stresses.

When registering all campers have to sign a card stating that they will not pollute the river, will not cut trees and will keep the campsite clean. The charge is $2 a night.

'NOT TOO FAR'

Hancocks said the response to his outdoor endeavor has been tremendous. "People like it because they are out in the wilderness but not too far."

He said since they opened in July they have had approximately 60 campers plus picknikers.

Hancocks and his son are putting a breakwater in the river in an attempt to slow down the water to protect children from the current.

"The breakwater is replacing one I had that was washed away in 1968 when the Cowichan River flooded," he explained. "In some places it washed away 20 feet of my land as well."

Man Sought Out For Rabies Check

NANAIMO (CP) — Health authorities here are searching for a man who unknowingly handled a rabid bat in the Departure Bay area last week.

Medical health officer Dr. P. J. Reynolds, director of Central Vancouver Island health unit, says two rabid bats have been found in the Nanaimo-Departure Bay area. The disease can be fatal in humans.

Reynolds said today that an unidentified man found one of the bats and gave it to an animal protection officer.

"If this person handled the bat while it was alive, he may be at risk," he said. Reynolds added that transmission of the disease from bats to man is not common but can occur, usually by bites.

'Total Community Paper' Aim of New Leader Owner

DUNCAN — To re-establish the Cowichan Leader as a "closely-knit, total community newspaper" is the aim of its new owner Andy Bigg, who for the past four years has been publisher of its competitor, the Cowichan Pictorial.

In an editorial appearing today in the Leader, Bigg said that, however, the two weekly papers will continue to operate as separate units, although they will cease to compete.

Bigg last week announced the purchase of the 65-year-old Leader from the Vancouver-based Northwest Publications Ltd.

The owner of the Duncan papers said the Pictorial will still be a free weekly publication to be published as it has been since its inception. Where both papers were available Wednesday mornings, Bigg said the Pictorial will now be available at distributors Tuesday afternoons and the Leader Thursday.

"It is my intention to do everything in my power to re-establish the Cowichan Leader to the closely-knit, total community newspaper of this district as it always was in the greatest years of its existence," Bigg stressed.

He said the editorial policy of the papers will be flexible, "not politically partisan and not unduly controversial."

"Any former rivalry between the Cowichan Leader and Pictorial now automatically ceases, and a united effort by both publications will be exerted to the fullest extent to bring the maximum benefit, enjoyment and interest to this area of beautiful southern Vancouver Island," Bigg said.

Hector Christie, long-time associate, former assistant-publisher and advertising manager of the Pictorial, is the new publisher and general manager of the Leader. Derek Rhind, reporter and city editor on the Leader, is now editor.

Study Merger

DUNCAN — The Cowichan School Board will study possible consolidation of school districts in the south-central area of Vancouver Island.

The board Monday agreed to study a report by the British Columbia Trustees Association on the amalgamation of school districts.

"A committee could do preparatory studies for us on the matter if amalgamation goes any further than just talk in the newspapers," said board chairman David Haywood.

Ombudsman 'Biased' — Ex Chief Justice

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Ombudsman George McClellan "glaringly" flouted the law under which he operates because he failed to investigate both sides in a dispute, a former Alberta chief justice said Tuesday.

Colin McLaurin made the statement in a report to the government on his investigation into the ombudsman's report in the case of an Edmonton real estate salesman.

In his report to the cabinet, McClellan said R. J. Philipzyk was wrongfully expelled in 1964 from the Edmonton Real Estate Co-operative Listing Bureau Ltd.

McClellan suggested the expulsion was partly due to the government's action in allowing the bureau to incorporate as a co-operative and that Philipzyk should receive damages from the province.

The cabinet appointed McLaurin April 28 to look into the ombudsman's report and a seven-day hearing was held in June.

McLaurin, in his report released Tuesday, said Philipzyk was "rightfully expelled," that no government compensation should be paid, and that no changes were necessary in the bureau's by-laws or provincial legislation.

McLaurin said McClellan's report contained an "adverse reference" to H. R. Kellough, manager of an Edmonton real estate firm which once employed Philipzyk.

While the ombudsman heard statements from Philipzyk and others, "a limited degree of fair-mindedness should have been suggested to the ombudsman that he should obtain Kellough's version," McLaurin said in his report.

The ombudsman's report on the case was "biased, unfair and inaccurate."

WITH CAP'N BUD

Poor-Boy Cruise Opens New Views

By Jack Scott

Being some notes on a two-dollar ocean cruise.

Sailing time 5:15 p.m. Weather sunny, sea ruffled, barometer steady. Inner Harbor wharf crowded with elegant, plastic sailboats flying Old Glory. Welcomed aboard clinker-built 32-foot Water Tourist by our skipper, Bud ("Don't Spell It Backwards") Sims.

Amiable, semi-grizzled sea dog, started harbor tours more than 20 years ago, now carries 8,000 passengers annually, mostly Yankee. Never lost a passenger. Toot toot. Anchors aweigh.

Scott

Out past Ocean Cement plant, hideous eyesore fated to go, none too soon, then quick glimpses of the romantic past. Old Customs House now armed forces recuiting centre. Remnants of the walls of Fort Victoria, founded 1843, now a parking lot. Old Court House in Bastion Square, now Maritime Museum. McQuade's, the ship chandlers, most fascinating shop in town, started in a waterfront tent in 1858. First post office, first bank, both over 100 years of age. Robert W. Service a teller there before the muse and the gold beckoned him north. Fellow passenger, stout lady from Sacramento: "Robert who?"

Under the Johnson Street bridge. Built in 1922. Four little electric motors hoist massive, counter-balanced, double-lift spans to 85 degrees in one minute, 15 seconds. Some hoist. Past sunken whaling ship, rusted harpoon gun and crow's nest still intact. Past old navy frigate, sistership to Onassis' Christina. Past old Canora, CNR train barge sold for scrap. Sad to see proud old ships gone to burial grounds. Past great piles of global mooring buoys used to support wartime submarine net across Esquimalt harbor. Past Victoria Machinery Dept. Quick peek at giant red and yellow steel hydraulic press. Bends cold steel up to four inches, hot steel up to seven inches. Some bender.

Under the Point Ellice or Bay Street bridge. Sombre reflection upon that tragic, sunny May 26 in 1896 when 124 people gaily bound for the sports day at Macaulay Point so overloaded the street car that the wooden centre span gave way. Fifty-five killed or drowned. Victoria's blackest day.

Threading our way now through the fir, hemlock, balsam log booms alongside B.C. Forest Products mill. Employs 1,100 men, payroll $7.7 million, cuts 136 million board feet of lumber each year. Unfortunate place for a mill. Huge scows loading wood chips for pulp mills. Each scow carries 900 tons. Each ton worth $18. Fortunate place for a mill owner.

Small atoll to starboard. Deadman's Island, once burial ground for the Songhees. Murder victim dumped there years ago, hence the name. Hasn't every port a Deadman's Island? Out of Selkirk Waterway, into the Gorge. Motel row. Dingle House restaurant, home of good roast beef. Favorite warmer-water swimming spot of a generation ago, now polluted. Scum on the surface. All aboard indignant. Full turn at the Gorge Bridge and reversible falls. Friendly waves to the Gorge Hotel. First Esquimalt beer parlor after prohibition ended in 1922. Wasn't until 1958 that Victoria followed suit.

Back down the Gorge, past stone-walled ledge built into the waterway. Site of Victoria's first lawn bowling club. Now Sunset Lodge, Salvation Army rest home for 27 elderly ladies. A toot on the horn to the ladies. Farther down the yacht Centurion out of Winnipeg. Winnipeg? Yes. Trucked out in '68. Splendid old mansion up in the trees south of Banfield Park. Widow's walk high atop house, built by sailing ship captain whose cruises took anywhere from six months to two years while wife walked, watched, waited. Brought back exotic trees and shrubs as gifts. Seventy-five varieties still growing, they say.

Past clutter of towboats, barges and scows of Island Tug and Barge. Sudbury II. Biggest, most powerful on the Pacific Coast, 216 feet, 1,300 horsepower. Brief glimpse Princess Mary restaurant, home of good seafoods. Mary's old cabin originally a coffee shop for tugboat men then opened to eager public. Past Marabell, hydrographic survey ship, originally yacht of Dr. Ballard, dog-and-cat-food man. All land here once home of the Songhees, bought out for industrial reserve in the boom of 1908. About $10,000 to each family, our captain says. Sounds unlikely.

Past the oil company storage tanks to the outer harbor. Slight chop. Views of distant Sooke Hills, Olympic mountains, Juan de Fuca straits. Bentinck Island visible through the gap. Leper colony closed in 1952 when one white woman, five Chinese left for Louisiana treatment centre. Straits rough, cold-looking. Water 46 degrees. Only three swimmers, Bert Thomas, Marilyn Bell, Cliff Lumsden, made the 18-miles across. Whatever happened to Marilyn Bell? Full turn. Homeward-bound. Parliament buildings ahead. Thirty-three copper domes washed with vinegar to turn green. Outlined at night by 3,330 lights. Some carbon filament bulbs installed in 1912 still working.

Empress Hotel dead ahead, looking feudal, handsome. Built on mud flats, creosote pilings driven down 90 feet to bedrock, concrete slab over all. Main wing completed 1908, new wing in 1929, 250 rooms in each wing.

Fond farewell to captain. Sacramento lady off to buy Service poems. All agreed the best two-dollar ocean cruise ever.

MOVING IN, archivist Fran Gundry begins the tedious job of reshelving some of the thousands of tons of priceless books, manuscripts and documents in the new provincial archives building at Belleville and Government this morning. The move is from shared space with the provincial library in the Legislative Buildings. Delayed a couple of days by a leaky roof, the material is expected to be in place and the archives open early in September. (Bill Halkett Photo).

Museum Draws Million

The B.C. Museum welcomed its millionth visitor this morning—office machine mechanic Ernie Shorrocks of Nanaimo.

Immediately ahead of him was his wife, Astrid, and immediately after were daughter Phyllis, 9, and son Earl, 8.

The new provincial museum opened in August, 1968.

While no precise door count is kept, an official said "pretty close" estimates are made and on this basis Shorrocks was the No. 1 million.

His family was taken on a conducted tour of the museum by director Bristol Foster, was greeted by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and deputy minister A. E. Webb, was presented with an Indian basket gift, taken to lunch and given tickets to Butchart Gardens.

. . . After Pumping $150 a Year Into Publicity

By DON VIPOND

Islanders from Courtenay to Victoria jammed courtroom D at the Law Courts Building this morning to take their whacks at the CPR for trying to discontinue the Dayliner service.

It is the opening of a hearing on CPR's application to drop the daily-except-Sunday service because it's a money-loser. Sitting for the Canadian Transport Commission are D. H. Jones, chairman, and J. M. Woodard.

Indications are they will be hearing briefs and verbal presentations for the rest of the week, mostly from people who want Ottawa to force CPR to keep the Dayliner rolling between Victoria and Courtenay.

An overflow crowd of about 100, including mayors from Nanaimo, Ladysmith and Duncan, an alderman from Courtenay, and lawyers keeping a watching brief for Victoria and the province of Ontario, regional and ratepayer association representatives and individuals with something to say are on hand.

Jones has promised them all a chance to have their say and to question witnesses.

The chairman pointed out early in the hearing that the question of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway's Dayliner service operating at a loss is not an issue.

The federal government commission has already audited and accepted financial statements covering the years 1966 to 1968 which show the Dayliner service lost more than $100,000 each of these years.

The question the commission must settle, he said, is:

● Should CPR (which owns the E&N) be allowed to discontinue the Dayliner service?

● Or is it in the public interest to order CPR to maintain the service, with a federal subsidy covering up to 80 per cent of the loss?

Carrying the load for the CPR this morning was its lone witness, T. P. James, chief of passenger services.

He said that in his view there are no changes which could be made in the Dayliner operation which would eliminate the operating loss.

The railway had "considered" having the Dayliner start in the morning in Courtenay, rather than the current practice of getting under way from Victoria. But James said "it wouldn't materially change the final result."

He said the cost of establishing a maintenance depot at Courtenay would involve an additional $10,000 to $15,000 but later admitted maintenance might still be done in Victoria, particularly if the Dayliner laid over during the day.

For most of the morning James was peppered by questions from lawyers and the audience which brought to light:

● CPR spent only $150 annually from 1966 to 1968 advertising the Dayliner service. The money went for 7,000 pamphlets which devoted a few words to the quality of service and set out its timetable.

● A survey of passenger origin and destination conducted by CPR was made in October, when use was below the annual average and less than half the busy summer months.

● CP's Dayliner schedule doesn't allow the service to connect with CP's ferry service to Vancouver from Nanaimo and to Seattle from Victoria.

● CPR isn't about to release the figures on how much it makes from its freight service over the same rail line and the commissioners don't think they have the authority to force it.

Among the more memorable quotes at this morning's session:

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney: "They've lost money for the last three years and they'll lose money for the next 30 years the way it's run now."

James: "We've found from our surveys people don't care for the railway."

CPR solicitor T. G. Mathers: "The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Co. takes the position that there is alternative transportation but will make no comment on whether it is adequate."

James, on whether Dayliner passengers arriving in Victoria at 5:30 p.m. can connect with the CP ferry to Seattle, which departs at 5:30: "They'd have to wear roller skates."

Haddock Fails To Get Okay On Rail Brief

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock failed Tuesday to receive committee approval to submit three suggestions to the Canadian Tramsport Commission hearings today on the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway bid to end passenger service.

As a result, Victoria will make no presentation before the hearings today, unless Haddock chooses to present his suggestions on his own behalf.

After a closed meeting of council's Group B committee, Ald. Clyde Savage said Haddock's request was denied because the committee did not have the authority to speak for council on the issue.

NOT AVAILABLE

Haddock was not available for comment this morning. But on Monday he announced he would ask for committee approval to send city solicitor T. P. O'Grady before the commission.

Haddock's suggestions called for improvement of service on the E & N but did not formally oppose the Canadian Pacific Railway's application to discontinue the Dayliner service.

On Monday, Haddock also said he wanted to ask the CPR for land concessions if it is permitted to discontinue the E & N.

PARK PATCHES PROPOSED

Two patches of land described by Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen as having "very limited commercial value" may become pocket-sized city parks.

Council's parks committee Tuesday endorsed a motion by Clyde Savage — at Pollen's suggestion — asking the city to take steps toward acquisition of the properties.

The first lot is opposite the Memorial Arena on the corner of Blanshard and Discovery. It has an assessed value of $6,400.

City Planner Geoff Greenhalgh told committee the lot slopes sharply making commercial development impractical. And Pollen said two landmark trees hundreds of years old could be saved if the lot is turned into a park.

The second land unit is an abandoned service station at the corner of Fort, Pandora and Belmont near the Oak Bay Junction.

Pollen said he did not know the assessed value of the property, but he knew several businesses have recently shown interest in it.

He said he thought the land could become a small green area with benches for shoppers and persons waiting for buses.

DETOUR PLANNED FOR PAT BAY

A section of the Patricia Bay Highway from Royal Oak Avenue to Falaise Crescent will be closed for several months beginning about Aug. 15 for road widening.

Service roads around the closed section have been built and will be paved before they are put into use. The roads run from Royal Oak Ave. to Quadra and from West Saanich Road to the open section of the highway opposite Royal Oak burial park.

Building Stirs In Exurbia

Construction activity in the unorganized areas of southern Vancouver Island the the Gulf Islands picked up in July and seven-month figures are ahead of the same period last year.

Permits worth $578,378 were issued in July compared with $390,882 in the same month last year.

For the first seven months, permits worth $3.1 million were issued compared with $2.9 million in the same period last year.

Residential construction was down — to 193 houses so far this year compared with 266 in the first seven months of last year. But this remained ahead of Saanich which issued permits for 133 houses.

The figures for the unorganized areas since April 1 cover the non-municipal region from Port Renfrew to the Gulf Islands, but nearly all the activity is in Langford-Colwood-Metchosin which was the only part covered before April 1.

Construction activity in Sidney picked up slightly in July, but remained down for the year.

Permits worth $203,620 were issued last month compared with $167,350 in July, 1969.

In the first seven months of this year, permit value is $1.4 million compared with $1.6 million in the corresponding period last year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AT THE START OF THIS week, a couple of friends bound up-Island on vacation paused at our house for a cup of coffee. They weren't precisely gloating, but we found them almost disgustingly happy.

Their station wagon was overloaded with the mess of gear people take along on summer holidays. It seemed to my envious eye that they'd made a point of stowing their salmon rods where we couldn't miss noting them.

As if that weren't enough, they insisted on discussing what they'd do with the fish they hoped to catch.

They would have some smoked, they told us cheerfully. Some they'd freeze, and maybe they would bring home a couple of those bouncing, still-unhooked coho in cans.

All this was pretty hard to take. But there was comfort in the knowledge that they would be glumly unloading that wagon in their home drive about the time we are setting out for holiday country.

I can see that picture now, or rather a series of pictures in glowing preview.

As a prelude to takeoff, we will do all our packing the night before. No deciding at the last minute that it might be a good idea to cram in a rubber boat, a long-handled clam spade, and a well-sooted hibachi.

Also, this time we'll make a really early start. No sleeping in. No lazy breakfast and last-minute errands. We'll set out under the morning star—provided, of course, that it happens to be shining—and once on the road, we will move right along.

That last hope may prove to be a trifle unrealistic, since there have been times when we've prolonged a journey of three or four hours by several days. Still, a vacation shouldn't be all hurry-scurry.

But here's one thing we definitely won't do, or so I tell myself while our vacation remains a dream yet to be realized. There'll be no indulging in the batch of worries that come under the general heading of 'I wonder if . . .'

Here are some examples:

I wonder if we turned the back burners off?

I wonder if we packed the sleeping bags?

I wonder what we forgot this time? (Something, for sure, as we'll learn when we set up camp.)

And along with a ban on 'I wonder,' we'll guard against such discoveries as a fisherman friend made while posting through Parksville.

He had packed his fishing rods. That he remembered distinctly. But his reels and his well-stocked tackle kit were still sitting on the kitchen counter a hundred-plus miles south in Victoria.

Nothing like that will happen to our holiday. And this time, we'll be spared all those trials that a little care and forethought would keep at bay.

Anyone not a complete idiot should be aware, for instance, that a small boat nuzzling a pebble beach doesn't have to be launched with a running shove and a scramble over the bows.

Last time I tried that stunt, the boat skidded out from under me at the cost of two skinned elbows, and a snootful of salt water.

I'm determined, too, that if good luck brings another four-pound cut-throat trout to a fly tied in hope on a winter evening, bad luck coupled with stupidity won't take it away.

I can see that fish still, green back peppered with speckles, broad silver side gleaming in the instant before a loop of line whipped around a button on my fishing vest, and the fish went free.

And another thing. This holiday I'm not going to be selfish. I'll keep in mind that although my dear one likes to fish, she might prefer to vary the vacation mix with other pursuits. Nice walks, maybe, or trips to towns up or down the highway, and other such time-consuming jazz.

It will rain just enough to dampen the woods, and those showers will come only at night.

This is how a vacation still weeks away shapes up from behind this typewriter.

And even if things don't work out in quite that fashion —even if the rains do more than merely dampen and the fish refuse to hit—we'll come home convinced we've had a fine time.

Pure Soap, New Methods Needed To Kick Phosphate Detergent Habit

The following article on pure soap and synthetic detergent first appeared in the July-August issue of the Canadian Consumer, official magazine of Consumers' Association of Canada.

Soap has been around for 2,000 years or so.

Now that the finger has been pointed at synthetic laundry detergents as contributing to water pollution because of their phosphate content, soap has come into its own.

By using soap, individual consumers can help materially in reducing phosphate pollution of our waters. But there are some techniques involved in breaking the synthetic detergent habit.

There is no reason that soaps cannot be used efficiently in automatic washers. What is required, however, is a water conditioning agent in the washer's wash and also in rinse cycles.

The problem that inexperienced soap users can encounter is based on the fact that soap, reacting with minerals in hard water, forms "bath tub ring" — an insoluble curd which sticks to fabrics, is difficult to rinse and which, if left on fabrics, will eventually cause a greyed appearance that used to be referred to as "tattletale grey."

Further, such a buildup on fabrics turns yellow in the heat of a dryer.

To overcome this problem, one must have soft water obtained from a natural source, by the installation of a mechanical water softener or by addition of water softening agents to the washer. If these conditions are met, then there will be no worry about tattle-tale grey, excessive linting, possible service problems — or pollution.

Water hardness, expressed in grains or parts per million, is the figure the consumer can use as a yardstick to evaluate exactly how much interference with the cleaning process she can expect from the water she has at her disposal.

Since water hardness varies greatly across Canada, the consumer will have to use some degree of experimentation to arrive at the quantity of soap she will require for the average load of clothes she washes.

It is of course, normal for soap to form suds. The quantity of suds will depend on the amount of product used, the amount and hardness of the water, the kind and amount of soil on the clothes, the size of the clothes load and so on.

Unless there is enough soap present to tie up the hardness minerals and to remove and suspend the soil, there will not be suds. So, suds are an accurate — and very important — gauge of a soap's ability to clean.

Further, the soap suds head must be maintained all through the wash part of the washer's cycle; once a soap suds head breaks down, cleaning has ceased and soil is being redeposited on the clothes.

Consumers whould be prepared to add from one to three cups of soap (and more, if necessary) to the washer, depending on the hardness of the water.

If the consumer does not have naturally soft or artificially softened water for washing, she should use — in keeping with her interest in pollution abatement — a non-phosphate water softening agent and thus decrease the amount — and the expense — of soap necessary for hard water washing.

Washing soda, ammonia or borax can be used along with the soap in amounts that would vary from ½ cup upwards depending on the water hardness.

A further washing necessity with soap that it most essential — and often over-looked — is the importance of also adding water softener to the rinse cycle.

If these compounds are not used in amounts comparable to those that are used with soap for the wash, the residual soap remaining in water has been spun out will be sufficient to create curd and the laundry problems associated with it.

A good guide to soap washing is, "the hotter the water, the whiter the wash." And a warm rinse is best.

VICTORIA'S WATER 'SOFT'

Happily for pollution-conscious housewives who have made the decision to switch from synthetic laundry detergents to pure soap, Victoria water is just about the softest in Canada.

According to local experts water in the area has a hardness reading of pH 7.2. The pH stands for percentage hydrogen, that is, the number of hydrogen ions present. The reading of pH 7.2 means the water is slightly alkaline. A pH reading of 7 is neutral.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Fenced Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I dread summer because my next door neighbor is a pest. We rarely see her in the winter, but the moment one of us goes outside to hang up the clothes, work in the yard, or if my husband wants to wash the car — she's right there with a constant stream of chatter. If we go outside to just sit, she comes over and joins us. Other neighbors get pestered, too, but we get more of her because she's right next door.

This woman has a husband and two school-aged children. She doesn't work outside the home, and judging from the time she spends outside, talking to anyone who happens by, she doesn't do anything inside the home either. We put up a fence two years ago, but she leans over it and talks a blue streak.

We have lived here for 25 years, our children are grown and the house is paid for. We've always gotten along well with our neighbors. Short of moving, what can we do?— Pestered In Summer

DEAR PESTERED: How about a higher fence?

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very serious and humiliating problem. I am a woman, 24, and I snore so loudly that sometimes I wake myself up.

I'm going with a man who has asked to marry me, and I am worried about sleeping with him and experiencing the embarrassment of keeping him awake with my snoring.

I know that I must snore very, very loudly because whenever I have slept away from home (camp, college and overnight as a house guest) I have been kidded about my snoring.

This is becoming a monumental hang-up. Abby. Is there anything a doctor can do to help me? Any other suggestions will be appreciated. — ZZZzzzz.

DEAR ZZZzzzz: First, see a doctor. If your snoring is due to a nasal obstruction, the doctor may be able to eliminate it (or tone it down) by performing minor surgery. ("Minor surgery" is an operation performed on someone else.) If that doesn't help, tell your finance you snore before you marry him. There are enough "surprises" after marriage without this nocturnal nuisance.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please rush me the name of a boarding school near Philadelphia that accepts boys who are not yet four years old? I think my son needs to live away from home in order to grow up.

I am a divorcee who works, and my mother, a widow, lives with me and looks after Johnny. Lately, Johnny has been going back to his baby ways. He wets the bed, sucks his thumb, and refuses to eat unless someone feeds him. My mother is exhausted every evening when I come home. She can't handle him. Now Johnny won't got to sleep unless I take him in my bed and I have a terrible time getting away in the morning to go to work. This all started about six months ago. Please help me. — End Of Rope.

DEAR END: From your letter, I think the last thing your child needs is to be sent to a boarding school. He is trying to tell you that he needs your love and attention. Ask your pediatrician to recommend a specialist in child behavior. Take Johnny there for a complete physical and mental examination.

CONFIDENTIAL TO L L.: Don't worry about what to tell people. Your friends won't ask. And your enemies won't believe you anyway.

Wht's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Prickly Taste To Teaching

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Christine Wood, who taught three years at Kitwe, Zambia, said the children there bring the teachers fat caterpillars instead of apples. She said they were delicacies and she was expected to eat them raw. "They tasted prickly," she reported.

Designers Become Conservationists, Fake Furs, Reptile Skins Lead Prints

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Fall promises to be a big season for imitations from the animal world, including reptiles.

For one thing, conservation is a matter of concern to many people. There's a race to save some species of animals from extinction.

The midi, above, is made of a fake leopard print on plush fabric. The bands are real snakeskin. The outfit was designed by Malcolm Starr.

Designers are well aware of the public pulse. Consequently leopards, cheetahs and other animals hunted for sport are off the fashion limits.

This presents a problem for during the last few years these furs had become top favorites.

The obvious solution is imitation fur, so this fall you'll find fabric coats that look like cheetsh, leopard and so on.

Russell Taylor says: "These fur fantasies will make conservationists happy since production is not dependent upon the extinction of the animals."

These imitation fur coats and jackets include other fur effects, such as mink, sable and similar types, as well as the spotted beasts.

ADAPT CALFSKIN

Actually imitations have been around for several years but never really as spotlighted as now. The introduction of pile fabrics made fun imitation furs a popular casual wardrobe item.

By the early 1930s designers had also discovered another breakthrough. Calfskin could be stencilled successfully to look like anything from Dalmatian log to cheetah. Imitations soon became fashionable.

Another animal-reptile interest had developed back in the 1950s. A few daytime fabric prints began to appear such as Galaos' chiffon dresses printed in tiger and leopard designs.

Actually 1954 was more of a print season than for many years and of course the "safari" prints of leopards and tigers made an impression.

Then we seemed to forget the spotted animals and became deeply involved in prints in "free form" design, art nouveau and pop art, expressionism and, as always, flowers.

SHOW FAKE LEOPARD

By 1962 the designers again became interested in imaginative zoo prints. Two years later Originala pioneered in the treatment of fabrics for all-weather coats and brought in new rainwear designs, to include alligator-patterned nylon.

This fall the animal prints include a leopard printed shirt with Donald Brooks' black jumper-and-cape costume and his leopard blouse with beige jacket and grey flannel skirt.

Incidentally, Brooks is credited with originating the animal prints, so his present collection includes much more than the leopard blouses. There's a long coat in snow tiger print, a leopard silk lining for a huge beige velour cape and a silk broadcloth dress in a leopard print.

Jerry Silverman slashes one fake leopard revere across the front of a green wool dress and adds a snake-print dickey in the neckline of another dress.

Adele Simpson was partial to animal and reptile prints, including leopard printed coats, a woven gold-and-silver zebra printed coat and a python jersey dress woven with sparkle.

Crompton Mills have produced animal prints on velveteen. Lawrence of London shows a crocodile printed trench coat and pants. Crocodile is the latest in his wide range of animal-reptile rainwear.

Snakeskin, too, is popular, both real and fake. Snakes don't seem to come under the conservation umbrella. Paris is fond of both as trims and accessories and as printed rainwear and also in patterned lame and chiffon for evenings.

Ginori designed this safari outfit of snakeskin printed jersey. (CP Photos)

Life of Thievery Smelly Business

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Sandusky Register reporter Wanda Galloway says a thief snatched two bulging grocery bags from her car in a supermarket parking lot. But she doesn't mind. The bags were filled with garbage from a picnic Miss Galloway and her parents had and she was taking the garbage home to dispose of it.

Something Fishy for Dinner

HALIFAX (CP) — The lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, the premier and other celebrities sat down this week to the world's first full-course fish protein dinner.

And guests smacked their lips abut agreed that it had everything appetizing except the distinctive taste of Nova Scotia fish.

But this was the reaction looked for by the hosts — Cardinal Proteins Ltd. of Canso, N.S. — which goes into commercial production in September.

They'll turn out 20,000,000 pounds of high-quality protein annually for world markets.

They explained that a pound of the tasteless white re-inforcement powder for food cost 54 cents and provides as much protein as $8.25 worth of steak, nearly $5 worth of milk and about $3.25 worth of eggs.

The dinner menu included a chip dip, a consomme, a spaghetti, rolls, a rich torte and cookes either spiked with or made out of the fine flour.

In fact, nearly every item was reinforced with the fish protein except the accompanying Portuguese Mateus wine.

Guests were told that without the fish concentrate the dinner would have provided only 18 per cent of an adult's daily requirements of protein. With it they received 65 per cent if they finished off with the cookes; 45 per cent of they quit at the luscious torte.

A wide range of dietary experts gave testimonials to the value of the new product, which also provides a market for edible fish previously discarded because of size or lack of popularity.

Thousands of Spectators Cheer World Champion Sardine Packer

By ROBERT ROSE

ROCKLAND, Maine (UPI) — Mrs. Rita Willey, who can pack a sardine in less than a second, wasn't scared of cutting her fingers. "I was wondering all the time who was going to get ahead."

Nobody did and she became the first world's champion sardine packer Sunday, winning over three other women finalists at Fishermen's Memorial Pier.

Four finalists were given only scissors and tape for their fingers Sunday, and told to pack as many of the fish in cans as they could in eight minutes. The women took on thousands of the slippery sardines, sliced off their heads, and faster than it takes to tell, laid them body to tail, tail to body, eight to a can.

Mrs. Willey, 33, was named the winner with 67 cans of perfectly packed sardines. That's 536 sardines in eight minutes, better than one per second.

"I was nervous all during it," said Mrs. Willey of the North Lebec Manufacturing Co. of Rockland, as reporters crowded around. "I was wondering all the time who was going to get ahead."

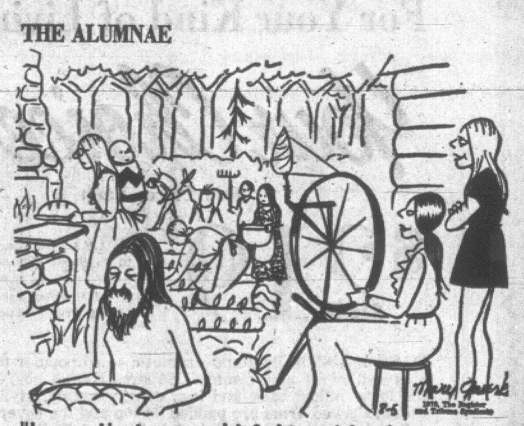

There was a one-minute warmup as about 3,000 spectators cheered on their favorites, many climbing onto the stage for a better view. It was all very informal.

The expert women had to judge the can length, snipping the sardine body and tail to the proper length by eye and putting them neatly in the can. All cans judged by industry representatives to be below commercial quality would have been disqualified, but there weren't any.

The piecework system puts a premium on speed, and women bandage their fingers to protedt them from the scissors blades. As is usual each one has a different style. Some are flaboyant, arms making great circles as the fish are picked up and fishheads flying in every direction. Others, like Mrs. Willey, work intensely with hands always close to the action.

This first world's championship, sponsored by the Maine Sardine Council in connection with the 24th annual Maine Seafoods Festival, involved only Maine women. However, a challenge to Mrs. Willey was expected from Canadian packers.

Grandfathers Are the Greatest

By OTTO E. STURM

NEW YORK (UPI) — You're playing with the baby and you're proud as punch because anything you say or do gets a big laugh.

It's the kind of audience reaction that comedians yearn for and that makes a first-time grandfather positively flip.

Benny, Hope and Skelton, eat your hearts out.

What makes it even better, the parents are watching. Never mind the baby books, kids, you think as you go on showing off. This is the way to entertain an infant.

Then, suddenly, a fly appears in the ointment. The baby turns curiously quiet and the bright blue eyes hold you in a steady gaze. There is a pensive look on the little face.

A moment later the laughs come again but the brief interlude makes you wonder:

How do you know whether a baby you think you're turning on is laughing with you or at you?

The momentous question came up on by second visit to see the girl who made me what I am today — a grandpa.

When we first met, Catherine Mary was three weeks old. Aside from following the direction of voices and other sounds with unseeing eyes, she seemed interested only in sloshing down a bottle of formula and topping it off with contented sleep.

She's a Person

Now she's been around for about four months and I found that it was a whole new ball game. Cathy had become a person.

It was evident in many ways but mostly in a disposition to laugh at the drop of a hat — or of a grandfather's dignity. Which was all I needed to know to put on my corny demonstration.

If you ever want to go into the blackmail business, just set up a hidden camera and a microphone to catch the sights and sounds of a new grandfather trying to amuse the party who made him that way.

The gimaces, the inane remarks, the chucks under the chin, the squeezing of sound-making rubber toys, the whole ridiculous gambit should make the payoff a cinch.

When the baby briefly interrupted these antics, I began wondering what went on in the little head while I was under that quizzical scrutiny.

Optimistically, I read her thoughts as something like:

"He's funny."

"I'm having a ball."

Then skepticism crept in. Perhaps she was thinking:

"I hope I'm not that silly when I'm his age."

"If he says 'kitchy-kitchy-koo' once more I'll yell for a bottle."

"Maybe the generation gap ought to be wider."

Or, more generously, she was thinking:

"This is getting to be quite a bore, but I'll go along with the gag. After all, the old codger came a long way to see me."

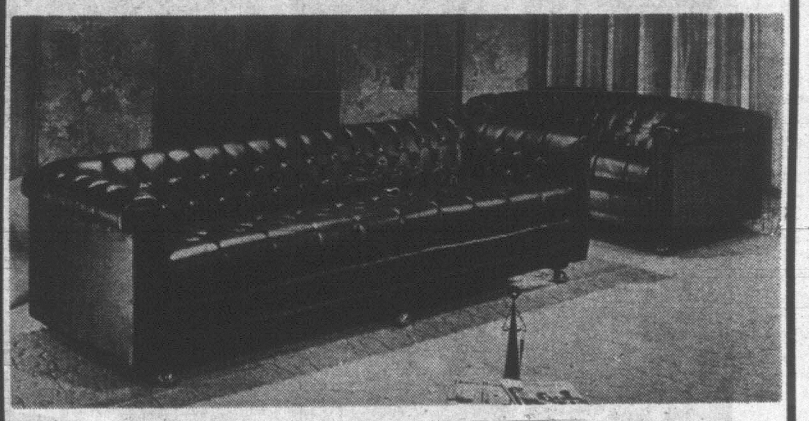

I'm still wondering.

Israelis Await Ceasefire on Suez

From Reuters-AP

Israel waited today for speedy implementation of a limited ceasefire along the Suez canal following delivery in Washington of its acceptance of the U.S. Middle East peace plan.

UN sources said a 90-day ceasefire called for in the U.S. proposals probably would start before the end of the week and certainly before Aug. 15.

U N Secretary-General U Thant said he was encouraged at the prospects of a ceasefire and the beginning of indirect negotiations toward a Middle East settlement.

"There is now, I feel, a chance to make important advances," he said. "Who knows when, or even if, there will be another chance."

The United States was reported to be anxious that peace envoy Gunnar Jarring push ahead quickly to initiate indirect talks between Israel and Arab states.

FEAR GUERRILLAS

The concern was reported to have been expressed by U.S. diplomatic circles. They feared if the UN mediator did not act quickly, Palestinian Arab guerrilla organizations would launch a military offensive that would wreck any ceasefire on the Jordanian and Lebanese fronts and embarrass Egypt.

Egypt, Jordan and the Sudan, together with Israel, have accepted the U.S. proposals which the United Nations now is trying to implement through Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Russia.

The UN representatives of the Big Four powers today were expected to officially ask Jarring to initiate indirect talks. The move was expected at the 40th session of the Big Four talks scheduled to be held at the New York residence of U.S. Ambassador Charles Yost.

In addition to the U.S., the other three powers are Russia, Britain and France.

Sources said the talks are expected to open by mid-September at a site yet to be chosen.

Jarring has held intensive consultations since he flew to New York Sunday.

After discussing the situation with Thant and the top UN officials as well as the author of the U.S. plan, State Secretary William Rogers, Jarring conferred Tuesday in quick succession with the UN representative of Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Lebanon.

Ambassadors, acting on Jarring's pressing recommendation that they refrain from any public comment, contented themselves with bland statements. But reliable sources said every aspect of the forthcoming diplomatic talks had been thrashed out at the meetings.

By a vote of better than two to one, the Israeli parliament Tuesday night endorsed the government's acceptance of the American plan.

Mortar fire from Lebanon wounded five Israeli teen-agers in a border settlement and Israeli troops killed three Arab guerrillas on the Lebanese and Jordanian borders.

WILL ASSURE SECURITY

Before the 66-to-28 vote in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, Premier Golda Meir said Israeli troops would remain in Arab territory captured during the 1967 war until a binding peace agreement is reached.

Even then, she said, Israel "will not return to the 1967 borders" but will pull back to "secure, recognized and agreed boundaries to be determined in the peace agreement."

Withdrawal of Israeli troops from the captured territory is a stipulation of the UN Security Council resolution of Nov. 22, 1967, which is to serve as the basis of the new peace talks.

Mrs. Meir said her government "continues to feel grave doubts" about Arab readiness to recognize Israel's right to exist. But she said the government feels it must not forgo the new prospect for peace, "slight thought it may be."

Mrs. Meir made it clear the ceasefire also must apply to Arab guerrillas, excluded by Jordan and Egypt.

In Tripoli, Libya, defence and foreign ministers of Egypt, Jordan, Sudan, Libya and Syria prepared to begin their Tripoli conference today after a two-day delay.

The decision to go ahead was made after Libyan Premier Muammar Kadafi returned from his unsuccessful trip to Baghdad to try to get Iraq to attend.

It was generally assumed that the purpose of the conference was to discuss strategy toward Israel in the light of the prospective ceasefire and indirect negotiations.

Egypt's semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said, however, that the parley would seek ways to bolster the "eastern front," the Egyptian term for Jordan, Syria and Iraq. Iraq and Syria have refused to accept the U.S. plan.

Al Ahram also published a note from the Iraqi government to Egypt in which the Iraqis implied they might sever diplomatic relations. The note said Iraq "reserves its right to take whatever measures it deems appropriate." Egypt rejected the note.

Citizenship Obtained

TEL AVIV (AP) — Otto Klemperer, noted German-Jewish conductor, took out Israeli citizenship the interior ministry announced. Klemperer, 85, also holds Swiss citizenship. He has been living in Zurich since Hitler's rise to power in Germany. He plans to take up residence here.

Prairie Posse Hits Regatta

KELOWNA (CP) — A sheriff's posse from Edmonton arrived here Tuesday for the 64th annual regatta which opens today for four days.

Two black horses followed by 16 Palominos led by Edmonton police chief Fred Sloane and a stage coach pulled by four Indian ponies made a colorful beginning to the international regatta.

The kilted Edmonton police band marched in 90-degree heat, followed by Mayor Ivor Dent, vice-commodore of the regatta who came into town by chartered aircraft with 96 members of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and their wives, all attired in Klondike Days costumes.

Today the competing mayors will have a bathtub race on Okanagan Lake, a re-match following a raft race at Edmonton's recent Klondike Day celebrations.

The big show is on with dozens of aquatic events and night shows.

Industry Charged With 'Brainwashing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A professor of nutrition accused the cereal industry today of brainwashing the American public with a Communist-like propaganda campaign aimed directly at children.

"In a country where there is a considerable amount of malnutrition among the poor and where rates of infant mortality are disgracefully high this advertising may be indirectly contributing to ill health and mortality," said Dr. Michael C. Latham, a physician and international professor of nutrition at Cornell University.

Latham commented in testimony prepared for a third session of the Senate consumer subcommittee's inquiry into the nutritional value of dry breakfast cereals.

The subcommittee began its inquiry last week with testimony by citizen-lobbyist Robert Choate that most of the heavily advertised breakfast cereals are no more nutritional than hard liquor.

Tuesday, the industry accused Choate of basing his findings on inadequate, confusing and incomplete information.

"The American people are continually being asked to support Radio Free Europe because we are informed that children in Communist Eastern Europe are being brainwashed with propaganda," Latham said. "I sometimes wonder if the advertising that our children see on TV is not equally harmful propaganda.

"My main thesis is that the consumer has been led to believe that ordinary dry breakfast cereals have nutritive value superior to common foods such as bread, hominy grits, rice, spaghetti, baked beans, potatoes, pizza etc. This is not true. . . ."

Evacuation Ordered

ROME (AP) — Several thousand persons were ordered to evacuate their homes along one of Rome's busiest avenues because subway construction made the buildings unsafe. About 100 buildings along the broad New Appian Way developed cracks, apparently due to the tunnel being built below.

Jean Drapeau Seeks Fourth Term as Montreal Mayor

By DON MacPHERSON

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Drapeau, a visionary man of action to some, aloof conservative to others, is seeking a fourth straight term as mayor of Canada's largest city.

Mr. Drapeau, 54, told a news conference Tuesday after a day-long meeting of his Civic Party he is "ready to continue as head of the Civic Party and to seek a new mandate as mayor" in the Oct. 25 municipal elections.

In the last municipal elections in 1966, Mr. Drapeau captured 95 per cent of the vote, an unprecedented figure.

The achievements of Jean Drapeau as mayor of Montreal are well-known.

It was Mayor Drapeau who, 50 years after the idea was first raised, oversaw the construction of a 15-mile subway featuring quiet rubber wheels on the trains and attractive, airy stations.

EXPO WAS HIS

It was Mayor Drapeau who presided over the transformation of Montreal from the "City of Churches" of the 1950s to a modern metropolis of skyscrapers.

It was Mayor Drapeau who brought the most exciting Centennial project of all, Expo 67, to Montreal, and it was Mayor Drapeau who kept the Expo spirit alive on the world's fair islands in the St. Lawrence in the form of Man and His World, the city's permanent fair.

And it was Mayor Drapeau who supervised the construction of Place des Arts, the city's cultural centre.

More recently, Mayor Drapeau helped bring major league baseball to Montreal in the form of the National League's Expos, dubious performers on the diamond but unqualified successes at the box office.

His latest coup came last spring, when he brought home the 1976 Summer Olympics from a meeting of the International Olympic Committee in Amsterdam after a skilfull job of selling the city's Expo reputation.

These achievements have earned "Monsier le Maire" Drapeau the adulation of many Montrealers but not all. Labor leaders and activists are strongly critical.

They say he has ignored the city's real problems while pursuing his policies of grandeur and his dream of making Montreal the world's greatest city.

Among the aspects of the Drapeau regime they criticize are the facts that 20 per cent of the city's population lives in poverty, 120,000 persons live in visible "ghetto" belts in which 80 per cent of the housing is substandard and the absence of job-retraining programs for the city's 50,000 unemployed.

The heaviest criticism has been directed at alledged neglect of the housing problem.

After 11 years in power, the administration has provided only 3,000 housing units, while more than 200,000 Montrealers need new or improved low-rent housing.

The administration also is criticized for not resolving the shortage of health clinics in the city and for not having done more to combat pollution.

Mr. Drapeau and the Civic Party, which he founded in 1960 to implement his philosophy smoothly and quietly, face opposition in the Oct. 25 elections from the Front d'Action Politique (FRAP)—Political Action Front.

NOT PERTURBED

Although FRAP is supported by the Quebec New Democratic Party and the separatist Parti Quebecois, which attracted strong support in working-class districts in the April 29 Quebec general election, Mayor Drapeau appears unconcerned by the new opposition.

Mr. Drapeau, a lawyer, began his political career in 1942 when he ran unsuccessfully in a federal byelection as a candidate for the anti-conscription, nationalist Bloc Populaire.

He tried again in 1944 as a BP candidate for the Quebec legislature, but was defeated.

After serving as prosecutor in a lengthy police inquiry in the early 1950s, he was elected mayor of Montreal in 1954 on a reform ticket, was defeated in a try for re-election in 1957 by Sarto Fournier, now a Liberal member of the Senate, and returned to power in 1960.

Fruit Growers Ask Meeting For Payments

KELOWNA (CP) — British Columbia's ailing fruit industry announced Tuesday it has asked for an urgent meeting with Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson to work out direct payments to growers following what was called the near-collapse of the North American and world apple markets.

Allan Clairege, president of the 3,200-member B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, said Mr. Olson has been asked to come here later this month and that the industry will ask for the full support of B.C. Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford.

"I am quite certain that many of our growers will not even reach welfare payments for the year and most will not have any net return at all," said Mr. Clairege.

"The majority of our growers are embarrassingly short of cash following market conditions for the 1969 crop which were the worst in the modern history of the industry."

Request for the meeting comes amid dissension among south Okanagan growers over industry policies during the last five months.

In a letter last week to about 800 growers from Kaleden to Osoyoos, directors of the Oliver-Osoyoos Co-operative and Monashee and Haynes Co-operative Growers Packing Houses criticized the central marketing branch of the industry, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

The directors said continued efforts to obtain information about sales for the area's major apple variety, Winesaps, were unsuccessful.

Bill Dell, manager of the 500-grower Oliver Co-Op, said the area, represented by three packing houses produced little more than 17 million pounds of Winesaps last year, for which the growers will receive an average of only .7 cents a pound or 71.4 cents a box.

"It costs growers about $1.40 to produce a box of apples," said Dan Roberts, chairman of the Oliver local.

"Some growers who are heavy on Winesaps will earn $7,000 less this year compared with the 1968 crop, which was almost as bad and for which they got an average grade of three cents a pound."

Because of lack of information from the industry, "we were still packing and supplying Winesaps until April and May," said Mr. Dell.

"One of our concerns now is that we were still packing a product for which we didn't have a market."

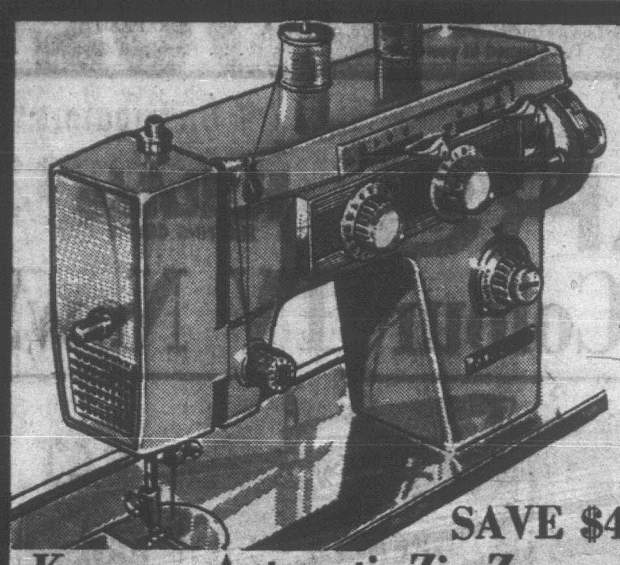

George Whitaker, president of B.C. Tree Fruits and Sun Rype Products Ltd., the processing arm of the industry, said no yardstick was published this year for Winesaps because early payments for the variety had already been over-advanced.

Sales information is normally published about February.

Premiers Armed With First Battle Plans For Nationwide Fight Against Pollution

By DERIK HODGSON

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's provincial leaders now are armed with battle plans that could draw up the first nationwide line of defence against pollution.

Nine provinces have agreed that the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, an intergovernmental body established by the federal and provincial governments, should be strengthened so that it can act as an environmental council.

As the 11th annual premiers' conference concluded formal sessions Tuesday, the premiers agreed that representation on the resource council on both the federal and provincial level should be beefed up, and its budget increased if necessary.

The council released a six-page report on pollution earlier Tuesday which warned that governments must clean up their own municipal wastes before they can expect action from industry.

It was in view of the report that the premiers agreed that the council should become an environmental body to act as, among other things, a clearing house on pollution.

Bourassa

While pollution appeared to be the major point of concern, the premiers covered a wide range of subjects in the two-day conference that shuttled from a 1,500-ton cruise ship on Lake Winnipeg to a cabinet room at the Manitoba legislature.

At the insistence of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, the federal government's white paper on taxation was discussed and the premiers noted problems associated with the indefinite timing and phasing of the implementation of the recommendations.

Premier Bourassa, taking a leading role in first appearance at a premiers' conference, didn't get the support of his colleagues when he asked for a formal resolution. Instead, the premiers apparently agreed to wait until next month's federal-provincial conference before broaching the issue.

PRICE-RISE IS WORRY

Other items tackled included the planning and budgetary process, implications for the provinces of the recently-published task force report on agriculture and the civil service.

A communique said the premiers showed concern over the rapidly-rising costs of provincial programs without a corresponding rise in revenues, and it was suggested that a fundamental adjustment of the relationship between provincial and federal expenditures was required.

Schreyer

On the topic of agriculture the premiers agreed to press for regional representation on federal agriculture marketing boards and stressed the importance of consultation between the two levels of government before making major changes in agriculture policy.

On other matters, the premiers agreed to request Ottawa to form a national waterbombing fleet to fight forest fires.

Newfoundland was the only province not represented while Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough represented Ontario in the absence of Premier John Robarts, who is recovering from foot surgery.

POLLUTION BIGGEST

"Pollution control and abatement was recognized as one of the major issues facing Canadians today, and an agreement on pollution control guidelines was regarded as urgent," said Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba.

"If there is one area where there should be collaboration it is pollution," said Quebec Premier Bourassa.

Nova Scotia Premier G. I. Smith said one of the greatest needs is applied research to see how this problem can be controlled. Alberta Premier Harry Strom suggested the conference had taken a major step in this direction.

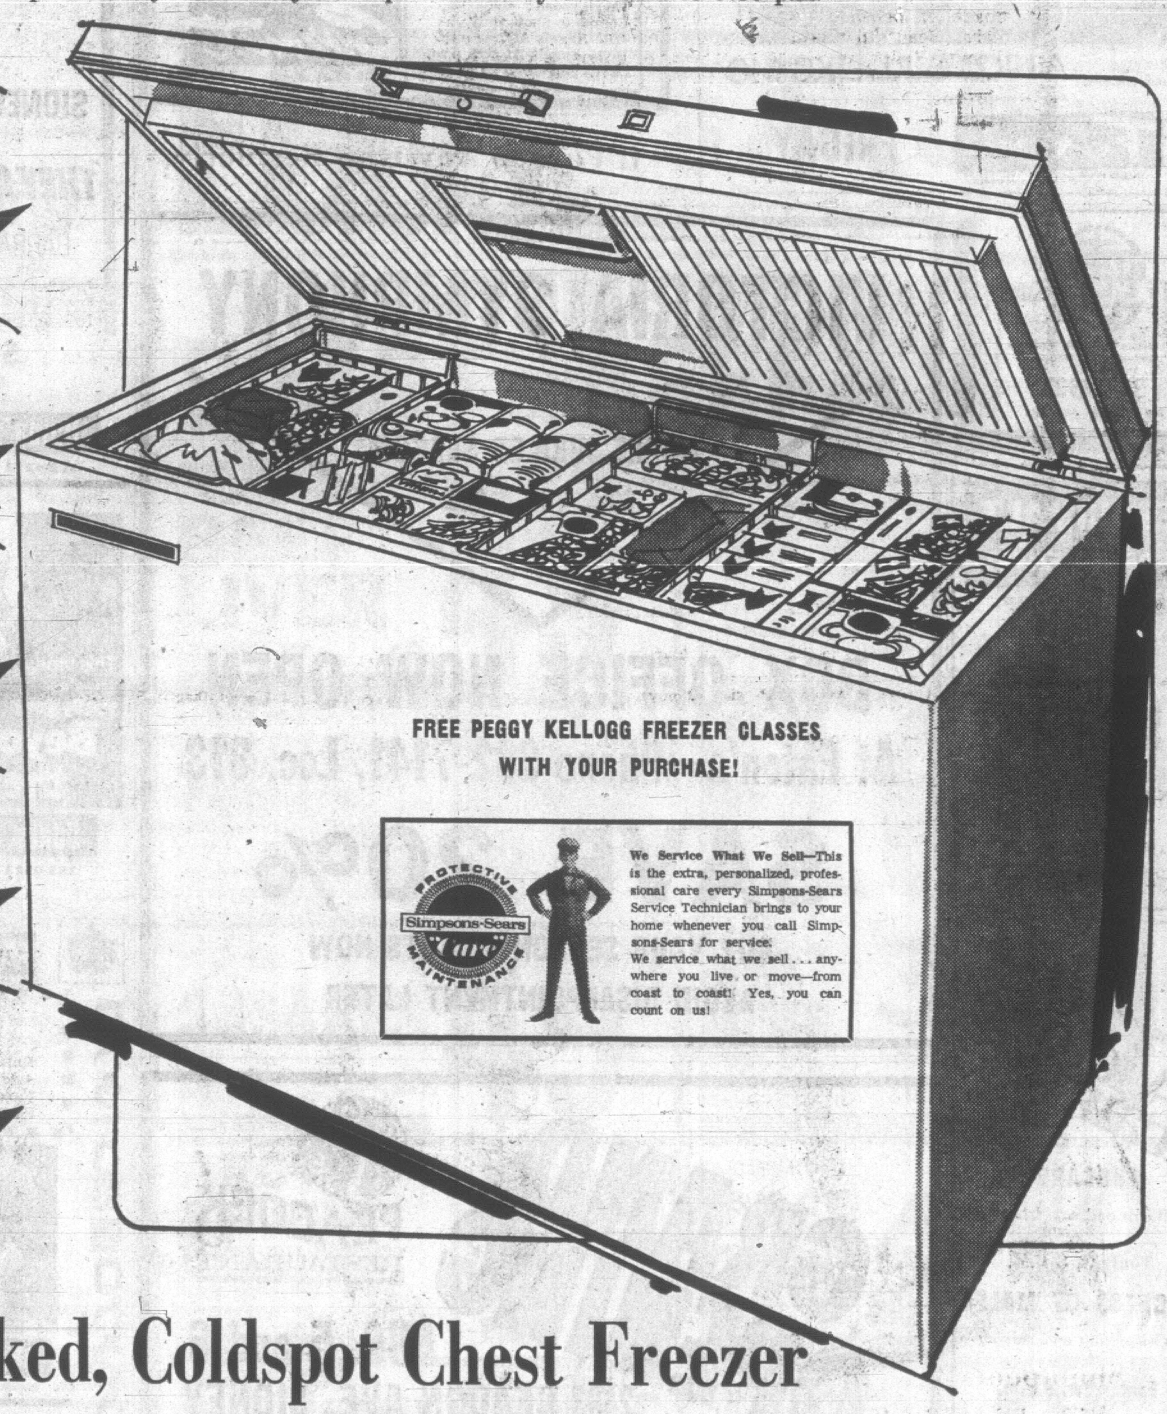

The premiers were of the opinion that the Council of Resource Ministers "acting as the Canadian Environment Council" should be asked to report to the premiers when they convene their talks again next August in British Columbia.

Fonda's Husband Reveals Marital Difficulties

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's it like being married to a female activist? Difficult, says Roger Vadim, husband of Jane Fonda.

The matter came up as the French director was discussing his first American film, Pretty Maids All in a Row. Vadim has made a career of directing films about headstrong young women, notably those portrayed by his wives, Brigitte Bardot and Miss Fonda.

"The trouble with female companionship is this: If a woman is intellectual, she begins to compete with the man and becomes aggressive. If she is not intellectual, she is boring to be with.

"That is man's fate: He is doomed to be aggressed or bored." And what about life with Jane? She has lately been involved in causes beyond counting, showing up at rallies, demonstrations and marches all over the land.

Vadim responded with startling frankness:

"So far we have not discussed divorce, but I must admit it is not a very satisfactory arrangement. Jane comes home a few days each month to visit me and our daughter and then she is off again.

"We are very good friends, but we are not living the way that married people are supposed to live."

60% SAY NO

Do Farmers Get A Square Deal?

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Are farmers, in their respective provinces getting a square deal from the Canadian government? "No" say six-in-ten Westerners, with a majority of the public in Quebec and the Maritimes agreeing. In Ontario, about four-in-10 are of the same opinion.

Feelings on this subject have slowly veered toward the farmers' cause over the past two and a half decades. In 1956, 47% of the general public said farmers were getting a fair deal from the federal government (25% today); and 24% felt they were not. More than twice as many say "No" today — 51%.

In the occupational groups, those at the top of the income ladder — professional people, owners and managers — split closely on the question, with 38% saying "A fair deal" and 33% feeling farmers are badly treated. In the other occupational groups, however, opinion is strongly held that farmers are not getting a square deal from the government.

The question: "Generally speaking, do you think the farmers of this province are getting a square deal from the Canadian government?"

Following are the tables for this trend survey revealing how strongly sympathy for farmers has grown since 1966.

	A Square Deal	Not a Square Deal	No Opinion

1964	44	30	26
1966	33	38	29

Battles Raging On Laos Border

SAIGON (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam are waging a massive air and ground offensive along 200 miles of the Laotian border trying to block North Vietnamese troops and war supplies destined for South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The South Vietnamese command announced that several thousand of its troops were conducting "several operations" along the border from the demilitarized zone to points southwest of Da Nang.

Other sources reported that U.S. B-52 bombing strikes in the Laotian panhandle had been intensified during the last few days.

A spokesman said the ground operations had produced no significant results yet, probably because the monsoon rains in Laos have slowed North Vietnamese activity.

★ ★ ★

U.S. ground forces reported killing 33 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers in three small clashes Tuesday at points 8 to 69 miles southeast of Da Nang.

In Cambodia, the government sent more reinforcements toward the crossroads town of Skoun, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, where fighting has been reported for four days. A military spokesman said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces remained entrenched in the town.

Fighting appeared to have eased at the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh. Cambodian defenders reported only harassing mortar attacks.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese launched two attacks on district towns within 50 miles of Phnom Penh. They hit a district office in Prey Totung, north of the capital, and also struck Prey Sandek, south of Phnom Penh near Takeo.

★ ★ ★

Elsewhre in Vietnam:

The U.S. destroyer Roger and the Panamanian-registered tug Sally B collided off the coast of South Vietnam 15 miles northeast of Vung Tau. A spokesman said there were no casualties but the destroyer got a six-foot gash in its bow and the tug was holed in its bow.

A South Vietnamese brigadier-general, Nguyen Van Thien, 42, commander of the special military zone around Da Nang, was missing on a flight from Da Nang to Saigon. The South Vietnamese command said his twin-jet fighter-bomber was believed to have crashed Tuesday during bad weather.

Bug-Killer Label To Stay

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Ardill, sales promotion manager of Shell Canada's chemical department, said Tuesday his company does not intend to change the label on its bug-killer No-Pest strip.

If the strip is used according to directions, Mr. Ardill said, it "won't hurt anybody."

The U.S. agriculture department recently ordered Shell Oil Ltd. to change the label on the American No-Pest strip to read: "Do not use in kitchens, restaurants or areas where food is prepared or served."

The Canadian label reads: "Keep out of reach of children. . . . Wash hands after handling." It also carries a message inside the package that warns against the strip's use "in areas where the chronically ill may be continually exposed."

Dr. R. A. Chapman, director-general of Canada's Food and Drug directorate, said Tuesday "there is no actual hazard to health" in the No-Pest strip.

Tot Wanted

ROME (AP — Belgian-born actress Catherine Spaak has asked a Rome court to give her custody of the seven-year-old daughter born to her and Italian dressmaker Robert Capucci. Their marriage failed six years ago. The girl, Sabrina, has been living with Capucci's mother. The court said it would consider the request next month.

Provinces, Ottawa Plan for Water Needs

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan, Manitoba and the federal government today signed an agreement for studies aimed at planning the water needs of the Qu'Appelle River basin until the year 2000.

A five-member board — two each appointed by Ottawa and Saskatchewan and one by Manitoba—will carry out the $460,000 project. Preliminary work has already started.

The federal government is paying half the cost, Saskatchewan 45 per cent or $207,000 and Manitoba five per cent, $23,000.

The studies will determine present and future water requirements, land use and the best approach to pollution control, flood control and other engineering problems.

The basin has a population of 220,000 persons and includes Regina and Moose Jaw. The river is vital to agriculture, tourist trade and local industries as well as domestic water supplies.

The agreement was signed by Resources Minister J. J. Greene, representing the federal government; Allan R. Guy, minister-in-charge of the Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission; and T. E. Weber, director of the Manitoba water resources branch.

Existing demands for water in the Qu'Appelle system cannot be met in years of low natural runoff and periodic floods have caused severe damage in the past.

Water quality is reported worsening to the extent that water treatment costs are rising and a large public and private investment in recreation facilities is in jeopardy.

Specialty Show Has Great Value

By HILDA BEASTALL

Anyone with time on their hands and wanting a new interest in life could do a lot worse than visit a specialty flower show with the idea of learning all about just one kind of flower. This weekend on Saturday and Sunday, August 8 and 9, Victoria Gladiolus and Dahlia Society will hold their 23rd annual show.

Hilda

As a special feature, classes for fuchsias and begonias will be included this year.

In the show, to be held in the George R. Pearkes Arena on Tillicum Road, you will see four different flower groups exhibited by people you can rate as amateur specialists in their chosen field.

These people have adopted one, or perhaps two, kinds of flowers for an intensive interest in gardening. They will tell you how fascinating and unending the interest can become.

First there is a local society of amateurs, all learning about the same kind of plant and having similar problems for which they seek answers.

At the meetings of the society, they find where new varieties can be obtained, what awards they have already received elsewhere, and peculiarities of cultivation.

Affiliations with similar societies in other parts lead to a widening of interest not only in your chosen flower but in people.

Begonias have not been exhibited in quantity since the demise of the Victoria Begonia Society in the late 1940s. I believe, and fuchsias have so far as I know, never been shown as specialists plants.

An absorbing interest lies waiting for anyone wanting an active, happy, participating life studying and growing any of the four groups of flowers to be seen in competition at this show.

On Saturday the show will be open from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. with Mr. G. R. Pearkes performing the official opening at 3 p.m.

Sunday August 9, doors open at 10 a.m., with Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich and Alderman Mrs. Gunning presenting awards at 3 p.m. This will be followed by an auction of specially donated blooms, but all exhibits will remain on display until closing at 8 p.m.

Ample parking is provided right outside the arena on Arena Way, and bus service goes to within two blocks.

We are promised "fabulous flower arrangements," some of seven-foot size, so don't feel inhibited if you are looking for thrills.

Come to this show. You'll soon become a part of it, and perhaps find a new way to "do your own thing."

Trouble Seen for Insurance Legislation

TORONTO (CP) — Bert Lawrence said Tuesday he believes compulsory, no fault auto insurance legislation to be introduced in the legislature this fall will have a difficult passage in the house.

Mr. Lawrence, Ontario financial and commercial affairs minister, said in an interview that when the bill gets to a house committee he anticipates a battle over what it should contain.

No-fault car insurance is designed to provide all victims of car accidents with full compensation for medical costs and income losses, no matter who is at fault.

To a large degree it eliminates the tort system which requires an individual to prove fault to recover damages.

The bill would come seven years after a legislature committee recommended this form of auto insurance.

"I don't think it's possible to get two persons to agree on what the package should contain," said Mr. Lawrence.

"If I leave out compensation for cosmetic damage—something that appeals strongly to young people, but possibly not to the bald heads—there is going to be an outcry.

"If pain and suffering is left out or included I am going to hear about it. If the package contains or doesn't contain deduction for property damage, you can bet there will be protests.

"Then there are the death benefits. If the figure is high there will be criticism and if the package is rich or lean or straight compensation, we are going to hear about it. . . ."

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In the deal presented today, our South declarer made a simple, recurring type of error. Can you find it, and bring it to light?

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

was covered by the board's king, and East won the trick with his ace. In less time than one can say, "That's it, brother," the defenders then cashed three diamond tricks. What was declarer's error?

To have put up dummy's king of spades at trick one was a thoughtless play, since East had to have the spade ace. And although declarer could never hope to win a spade trick, his only correct play was to follow with a low spade from dummy. West would then have retained the lead—and East would thus have been prevented from leading the diamond queen at trick two.

Had a low spade been played from dummy at trick one, West would undoubtedly have continued with the spade jack at trick two, South ruffing. The ace and king of trumps would be cashed next, after which the board's remaining spade would be ruffed.

With the hope that the adversely held clubs were divided 3-3 (in which case South could get rid of a losing diamond on dummy's fourth club), South would then cash the ace, queen, and king of clubs, East discarding a spade on the third club lead. Now would come a fourth club, South tossing away his five of diamonds as West won the trick with the club jack.

West would now be the victim of an end play, and would have no choice but to lead a diamond, thus making a winner out of South's king. Even if West had held another spade, he would still be end played, for a (hypothetical) spade return would be ruffed with dummy's remaining trump as South discarded a diamond from his own hand.

Incidentally, if a low spade had been played from dummy on West's opening lead of the queen, East could beat the contract by overtaking it with the ace and leading the diamond queen. But if the East defender were clairvoyant enough to do that against you, I would say that the game was too tough—for you and for everyone else.

fun with figures

By J.A.H. HUNTER

Traffic was bad—cars bumper to bumper all the way. And Ron was strangely quiet.

"Sleepy, son?" Mike asked.

"No, Dad. I'm thinking. D'you see that funny car plate?"

Mike nodded. "You mean with four digits?"

"That's right," replied the boy. "If you multiply it by four you get the same digits but in the oposite order."

What was the number?

(Answer Thursday)

Tuesday's Answer: Jack $4.30, Jill $1.70.

Barbecue Starts Songhees Project

A salmon barbecue Saturday will mark the start of a Songhees band project to open a park on 11 acres of band property on Esquimalt harbor.

Long-term plans include a marina, overnight camp sites and a recreation area.

Chief John Albany said the Indians' boat ramp will be open to local anglers for the first time Saturday.

Ken Blundell, secretary of the Esquimalt Anglers Association, said access to the ramp will make it possible for fishermen to fish in the barbor during the winter if Juan de Fuca Strait is too rough.

Esquimalt mayor Arthur Young welcomed the park development.

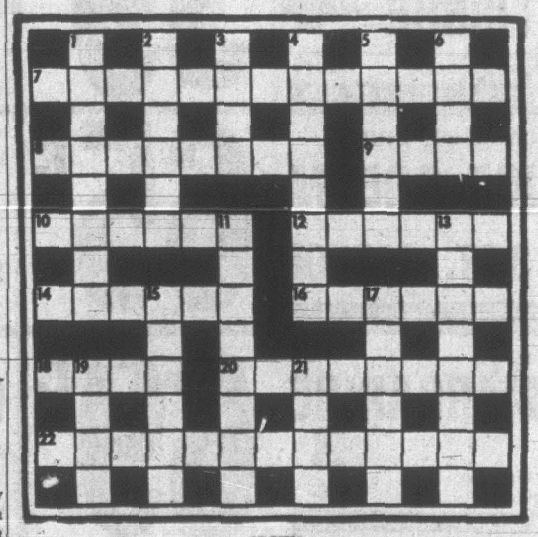

"Currently we seem to be overloaded with boats and no place to put them, and a marina on Esquimalt harbor would help solve this situation."

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

My old professor of medicine used to say that if a man wakes at 2 a.m. with a severe pain in a red and swollen big toe joint, he has the gout. Sometimes gout will attack one of the other joints, such as the knee or elbow. A quick way to confirm the diagnosis of gout is to make a laboratory study of the amount of uric acid in the blood, and if it is higher than the normal 7 milligrams, there is the diagnosis. What happens to cause the trouble is that the uric acid crystals accumulate in a joint, and are like so much sand in it, causing much pain and disability.

Some experts on arthritis have said that it is one of the best forms for a person to have, if he must have one, because we doctors know the cause and can usually give great relief within 12 hours; also with new drugs we can often keep the man from getting more attacks of swelling and pain. Some people can be recognized in a moment as having gout, because they have little lumps of what looks like cement on the outer edges of their external ears, the so-called tophi, which are made up of a salt of uric acid.

There are two main treatments for gout; one is to relieve the severe pain of an acute attack, and the other is to prevent further attacks from coming. For the severe pain of an acute attack, the physician usually prescribes the ancient drug colchicine. This has been used ever since the time of the ancient Greeks, who found a plant growing around the city of Colchis, in Asia Minor. I have read that the drug was introduced into the United States by Benjamin Franklin, who suffered from gout.

A drug that can sometimes work as well as colchicine is phenylbutazone. The newest drug to keep elderly people from getting acute attacks is allapurinol which came on the market a few years ago. It was synthesized in 1956 by Drs. Gertrude Elion and George H. Hitchins, while they were looking for something else. The man who thought of using it for gout was Dr. Wayne Rundles, Duke University Medical School.

A person with gout should not eat too much and should not get fat. The foods he might do well to avoid are sweetbreads, liver, kidneys, tongue, anchovies and meat extracts. From chemicals in these foods, the body can make uric acid. Many a man's gout is made much worse by drinking too much alcohol. When I was young, doctors used to say that the beer drinker had poor man's gout, and the champagne drinker had rich man's gout.

★ ★ ★

It is well to fight gout, because it can predispose a man to get into serious trouble with heart and arterial disease. I have seen quite a few men who were incredulous when their doctor said they had gout after having given them one blood test. Because they had none of the usual symptoms of gout, I sent them to two more laboratories from whence the reports sometimes came back normal. I did not blame the first laboratory people, because in some men the amount of uric acid in the blood goes up and down from day to day; hence, it is a good idea to have the very important laboratory test repeated.

Some readers will wonder why I haven't mentioned gouty women. The reason is that one rarely finds gout in a woman; it is generally a man's disease.

Rates Studied

REGINA (CP) — Railway and potash company representatives at a meeting Tuesday considered plans for revamping the hauling of potash from Saskatchewan to the west coast.

Mineral Resources Minister A. C. Cameron said the proposals involve integration of various loading, transporting and unloading phases into a single mine-to-shipboard plan.

Cameron, interviewed during a noon-hour break in the closed-door meeting, said he was pleased with the apparent determination of all parties to solve freight rate problems.

Oil Spill Charged

Sangudo, Alta. (CP) — An oil spill on the Paddle River, 60 miles northwest of Edmonton, has killed trees and ducks in the area, a wildlife spokesman said.

Jim Robinson, president of the fish and game association at Whitecourt Tuesday said oil and saltwater spills from Tenneco Oil and Minerals Ltd., were responsible for wildlife damage.

"Their housekeeping is awful," he said.

The oil has been leaking out for several years Robinson said. It leaks into the ground and then drains into nearby Paddle River.

Ticket Mailed

EDMONTON (CP) — A ticket stub was en route by mail from Germany Tuesday to the Edmonton Exhibition Association and its arrival will mean an army corporal is $50,000 richer.

Cpl. Walter Towstego, 36, with his wife Betty and their two sons, aged 7 and 5, is stationed in Soest, West Germany, and his ticket was drawn Saturday as the nine-day annual Klondike Days exhibition ended.

The winnings are in the form of a gold brick and the ticket stub must be produced by the winner.

There was some concern Sunday among association officials who could not find out who had the stub.

Mayor Sykes Has Query For Chief

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Rod Sykes said Tuesday he wants Police Chief N. J. Kent to explain why he provided details to Calgary newspapers of riot control equipment held by city police.

The mayor reiterated for a news conference that he was not aware of any riot control inventory when he spoke to a university audience July 30.

At that time the mayor said Calgary police did not need riot sticks and they would not be purchased for the force.

He said the presence of similar riot control equipment, such as that held by the Vancouver force, could cause normally peaceful demonstrations to become violent.

Later Chief Kent said Calgary police were equipped with riot control equipment which included night sticks, shields, mace and tear gas. He added any progressive force should have such material.

CAPITAL SCENE

Former residents of the Grande Prairie-Peace River area will have their annual picnic Sunday, Aug. 9, beginning at 2:30 p.m. at Kinsmen's Park on the Gorge.

Youth Group To Build Outhouses

The Action Committee for Unemployed Youth will go ahead with plans to build pit-toilets at Long Beach on Vancouver Island despite the fact provincial parks officials trucked in a dozen toilets last week to ease sanitation problems.

A TACUY spokesman said Tuesday there are still only two toilets to serve several hundred people who have built a driftwood shanty-town at Wreck Beach on the Island's west coast.

Unemployed youths will proceed with the toilet-building this weekend because more toilets are still needed and it is the type of "meaningful work" that unemployed youths should be doing for "pollution control" in the community.

The group said it intends to send a bill for labor, at union scale, and material costs for the project to the provincial government. The project will be accompanied by a musical festival.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The way you feel about the weather depends, quite naturally, on how you make your living. If you are a bookkeeper or a machine operator in a manufacturing plant, you probably don't care much whether it rains or not. If you are a farmer, forester or a gardener who thinks rainwater is better for plants than tap water, your mood will be lousy if a spell of drought is at hand.

When unseasonably dry weather makes you nervous, it is not a matter of impatience because the weather is ornery. Changes in weather may affect your emotions. When it rains after a drought, you will feel better. Check it out next time and you'll see.

We would all feel better most of the time if we could have a spell of rain, then dry weather, then rain and so on, all during the year. That's why some of us laugh in the rain and cry in the sun. The weather isn't obliging to our moods.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Police here said a man, about 22, placed a passbook into the teller's drawer at the Lindell Trust Co. auto bank. The teller, Raymond Peters, told the man to wait his turn because he was busy with another customer.

The other customer was George Weese, 45, an employee of a check-cashing firm, who was cashing a check.

The impatient customer angrily withdrew the passbook, and as Peters passed a canvas bag containing $5,700 through the drawer to Weese, the wrong man snatched the bag and ran off.

Taiwan Government Cuts Size of Army On U.S. Insistence

By WILLIAM BEECHER

TAIPEI, Taiwan (NYT) — The Chinese Nationalist government, under insistent pressure from the United States, has quietly cut the size of its standing army from about 600,000 to 550,000 and promises to make still further cuts, according to qualified Western sources.

Although Chinese officials are reluctant to discuss specific reductions for fear such information could be of benefit to Communist China, the manpower cutbacks are viewed by senior analysts as reflecting three underlying decisions:

First, a desire to reduce personnel costs to generate more cash for the purchase of modern jets, helicopters, warships and other equipment to replace aging weapons and to provide pay raises to keep good young officers amd men in service. The reductions will ultimately save up to $20 million annually.

MORAL DEBT

Second, a determination that despite the moral debt owed to soldiers who came over to Taiwan 21 years ago, when the Communists took over mainland China, most of them must be mustered out for the efficency of the force.

And finally, a realization that the size of the army, which was maintained more for the avowed purpose of recovering the mainland than for the defence of Taiwan, could be reduced since the United States, which would have to provide amphibious ships and other equipment, was not about to support a military attempt to regain control of the mainland.

Taipei is placing its primary emphasis on building the island's economy, currently enjoying a boom, as the best way to preserve a strong, viable power base on the rim of Asia.

Knowledgeable sources stress that this is not to say the Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has given up hope of recapturing the mainland if the Communist regime there falters.

Analysts agree that Nationalist China's glaring weaknesses are its small, 375-plane air force, more than half of which is made up of Korean-war vintage F-86 jets, ands its tiny navy, with only about a dozen destroyers and frigates.

The United States maintains no air or ground combat forces on Taiwan and its military advisory force now consists of fewer than 400 men. There are several thousand American Air Force personnel here, but they are primarily involved in airlift and logistics work connected with the Vietnam effort.

Bamfield, Davis said he only saw two of the huge Soviet trawlers on the horizon.

"We had a normal night. The trollers were anchored in two groups, 21 in ours, and there were a few Russian boats in the area.

"In the second group a Russian ship came within 100 yards of them but that was the only ship to come near the anchored Canadian fleet."

Davis, along with Rod Hourston of the fisheries department in Vancouver, spent a night on the Big Bank off Pachena Point as a result of a side-swiping incident two weeks ago in which a Port Alberni troller, the Deas Isle, suffered, $1,500 damage when struck twice by a Soviet trawler.

Coast fishermen, up in arms over the third incident this year involving Canadian and Russian fishboats, demanded Ottawa give protection to fishermen.

In reply to the fishermen, Davis said he would spend a night on the banks to see what is actually happening.

Davis and Hourston left Bamfield Tuesday morning on board the troller Cymry owned by Jack Meredith-Jones, president of the Pacific Trollers Association.

AERIAL VIEW

The boat returned to Bamfield this morning and Davis, fisheries officials, and newsmen were to take an aerial view of half a dozen Russian ships still operating off Barkley Sound.

He took a similar trip last year aboard a Canadian Forces Neptune in an effort to see whether there was any truth to Canadian fishermen's allegations that the Russian trawlers were taking salmon in their nets.

Asked by reporters what would happen if there were further incidents between Canadian and Russian boats, Davis replied "I'm keeping my fingers crossed that nothing will happen."

Davis said the Russians appear to be moving south and he expects few, if any, Soviet trawlers will be operating off our coast in the next two weeks.

NOT FRIGHTENED

The minister said he does not believe the Soviet fleet is being frightened away from our coast. "Moscow must be aware now of the incident between the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria and a Soviet freighter and also of the incident between their trawlers and the Canadian boats.

"The Russian captains must be getting some guiding comments from Russia."

The minister said the Russian fleet apparently does not care what is in its way on the surface. "They just barrel their way through."

"There must be something we can do so that our people and theirs can operate together on the banks."

Davis said at the next United Nations law of the sea conference expected in 18 months, Canada is hoping to secure a fishing zone to the edge including the slope of the Continental Shelf.

RIGHT TO REGULATE

The shelf extends approximately 30 miles off Pachena Point and Davis said this will not mean the Russians cannot fish there but that Canada will have the right to regulate fishing on the banks.

He said the smaller and the defensive nations in the world are supporting Canada's stand, but the agressive nations such as Russia, Japan, the United States and Britain are all against Canada.

"Countries such as Japan want maximum sea in which to fish."

Davis pointed out that any agreement Canada may get at the conference would not protect salmon and tuna, only groundfish.

Loss Account Questioned

Victoria City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady challenged the validity of operating loss statements for the E and N Railway presented before the Canadian Transport Commission hearings today.

O'Grady proved that the application to discontinue the Dayliner service between Nanaimo and Victoria did not originate with the CPR but with the E and N Railway.

He then told the commission that the operating loss for the E and N was listed as a loss for CPR, not the E and N.

Freighter Ban Urged In Pass

Freighters should be banned from Active Pass during major ferry sailing hours, Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle said today.

He made his comment following Sunday's collision which separates Mayne and Galiano islands. Three passengers on the ferry were killed.

Tisdalle said when government ferry service began 10 years ago, ferries were not allowed to meet in Active Pass. One would wait for the other to get through.

"We could brew it quicker... but it wouldn't be near so good"

Schreyer Regime Shaken By Suspension of Minister

PRISON TERM FOR SLINGSHOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rodney Dunnett, 24, was given sentences totalling 2½ years on charges resulting from mob demonstrations outside the United States' consulate and the city police station May 8.

Dunnett was sentenced to six months for possession of an offensive weapon, a slingshot; 12 months consecutive for aiding a prisoner to escape and 12 months consecutive for assaulting a police officer. He was also given a six-month concurrent sentence for obstructing police.

Provincial court judge Les Bewley, in passing sentence, said:

"It is illogical to the point of paranoia and dishonest in the extreme to assert that anyone can commit any crime in the furtherance of one's political views and then demand exemption from punishment because of one's motivations."

He said the time had come when "exemplary sentences must be imposed" in such cases.

Election Looms In Manitoba

Times News Services

WINNIPEG—Manitoba's New Democratic Party government, already precarious, got a severe jolt today that could precipitate a fall election when a cabinet minister was suspended from the legislature.

The opposition gained a 29-27 voting edge over the government when Highways Minister Joe Borowski was suspended for refusing to retract remarks linking opposition members with alleged highways department irregularities.

Borowski said the courts would soon be dealing with members of the former provincial Conservative government.

Although the suspension was only for the morning, Borowski told reporters outside the chamber:

"If the house does not permit me to speak the truth, then I don't want to sit in the damn place."

If he stays out, it will further complicate the political problems of Premier Ed Schreyer.

LACKS VOTES

Barring any change of heart by the opposition on amendments scheduled to be introduced at the afternoon sitting, Schreyer already lacks enough votes to pass his compulsory state automobile insurance legislation.

He has said defeat of the measure would be tantamont to a non-confidence vote and valid cause for an election.

There are 28 NDP members in the 57-seat house, including speaker Ben Hanuschak and Borowski. There are 22 Conservatives, four Liberals, one Social Credit and two independents, including Liberal Democrat Larry Desjardins who last week bolted government ranks on the insurance issue.

Borowski, 36-year-old MLA for Thompson, was asked repeatedly by both sides of the House and by the speaker to withdraw his remarks about the former Conservative ministers. At one point he told opposition members to "go to hell."

Conservative leader Walter Weir threw a rule book on the centre floor of the chamber as debate raged on.

When the speaker asked him a final time to retract, Borowski sat silently and shook his head.

GUERRILLA GROUPS FIGHT EACH OTHER

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Two guerrilla groups, one supporting President Nasser of Egypt and the other opposing him, fought each other during the night in northern Jordan, guerrilla sources said today.

It was the first report of fighting between the Palestinian Arab guerrillas since a rift developed in the Arab world over Nasser's acceptance of the American peace proposals for the Middle East.

Forest Inquiry Rivals Tangle

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—The Nemetz inquiry into the coast forest dispute resumed Tuesday, with the two sides arguing over the outlook faced by timber companies in B.C. and the United States.

International Woodworkers of America, Representing 27,000 men, has maintained B.C. operators will outpace American competitors over the next few years with prospects of increased production and expanding international markets.

The union's main demand is for a $1 an hour increase on the current base rate of $3.12.

Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining for 116 coast firms, argued last week world markets are shrinking and cited rising labor and other operating costs as justification for postponing any wage increase for another year.

Most of the discussion Tuesday centred around the topic of stumpage rates in the U.S. and B.C. Stumpage is defined as the rate paid by companies to the state or provincial government for the privilege of cutting trees.

TAX ADVANTAGE

A F.I.R. witness, Robert Wood, management consultant for Rim Resources Ltd., said the over-all cost of cutting and processing timber is cheaper in the U.S. than here, because while American companies pay higher stumpage rates, they benefit under U.S. capital gains taxes.

Wood attempted to show by an illustration that a U.S. operator could make a greater net profit than a B.C. operator if they logged identical stands of timber.

B.C. firms logging Crown land must pay a great deal more than U.S. firms working on private land, he said.

However, IWA regional president Jack Moore pointed out that much of the logging done by major B.C. firms takes place on private land, not Crown land, with companies paying royalty rates that vary from $1 to $9 per 1,000 board feet, depending on when the land was purchased.

"How would you compare the stumpage paid by MacMillan Bloedel in the Alberni Valley with what is paid in the U.S.?" Moore asked. Wood said he did not have the information.

"I understand it's fairly low," Moore added.

MEDIATION REPORT READY IN TWO WEEKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the British Columbia Appeals Court said Tuesday his report containing recommendations to end the contract dispute between 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America and the vital British Columbia coast forest industry should be ready in about 10 to 14 days.

The open sessions of the one-man inquiry were expected to end today, but Mr. Justice Nemetz plans to hold closed-door meetings with both sides later this week.

'Employees Regarded As Servants'

TIMES STAFF

VANCOUVER — Coast sawmill and logging companies regard their employees as servants, the International Woodworkers of America charged Tuesday.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said at a hearing into the dispute between the union and 116 employers that the employers proposals for ending work stoppages were reminiscent of the master-servant relationship.

"They tend to hearken back to the Master and Servant Act, and this is why we have some of the problems we do," Moore said.

'LOT OF BUNK'

"A lot of bunk," retorted John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for the companies.

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemez, who heads the inquiry into the forest dispute, commented:

"I don't think anything useful can be obtained by this. I heard it all in 1966." (Nemetz headed a similar inquiry into a dispute between the IWA and interior companies.)

The exchange came as the union prepared to rebut two FIR briefs presented last week.

Employers called for a ban on all work stoppages and slowdowns, and asked for adoption of a system of penalties for workers who participate in strikes.

Arrest Ordered For Soviet Ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government obtained an arrest warrant Tuesday for the Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin, involved in Sunday's fatal collision with the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria.

At the same time, B.C. supervising coroner Glen McDonald of Vancouver said an inquest into the collision would call several witnesses from the freighter.

Lawyers said the warrant would not be served until specific orders to do so were issued, but it was not known when that might be. The warrant was intended mainly as a form of assurance that security would be posted by the Soviet vessel before she leaves port, authorities in marine law said.

PORT SIDE

The 14,700-ton freighter cut deep into the port side of the 4,900 ton ferry—carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50—in Active Pass, a narrow and tricky channel in the gulf islands between the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Ann Hammond, 31, of Victoria, was fatally injured and her seven-month-old son, Peter, killed on the car deck of the Queen of Victoria. Sheila Taylor, 17, of Allendale, N.J., was killed in a sundeck lounge.

Eight others were injured.

TOLL STILL UNCERTAIN

It is not known for certain that only three persons died, because no passenger list was kept.

A spokesman for Mr. McDonald said about six Soviet seamen will be among an estimated 30 witnesses to be called Thursday.

Meanwhile, a closed hearing Tuesday conducted by the department of transport heard four witnesses from the Sergey Yesenin. More Soviet witnesses will be heard today, and crew of the Queen of Victoria will be called.

Freighter Ban Urged In Pass

Freighters should be banned from Active Pass during major ferry sailing hours, Saanich and The Islands MLA John Tisdalle said today.

He made his comment following Sunday's collision which separates Mayne and Galiano islands. Three passengers on the ferry were killed.

Tisdalle said when government ferry service began 10 years ago, ferries were not allowed to meet in Active Pass. One would wait for the other to get through.

"I made question of this constantly because they are extremely manoeuvrable and capable of meeting each other, and then this was allowed," he said.

The pass developed into an "almost-continuous passenger route" which freighters avoided, and he was "shocked and surprised" that a freighter was there Sunday.

DRUG RAID NETS KENNEDY'S SON

Times News Services

HYANNISPORT, Mass. — Robert F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late senator, and R. Sargent Shriver III, son of the former United States ambassador to France, have been arrested on drug charges, it was learned today.

The two 16-year-old youths were to be arraigned in district court today along with 15 other persons arrested Tuesday night in marijuana raids carried out by local police in and around Hyannisport.

Judge Again Denies Manson Mistrial Bid

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Superior court judge Charles H. Older today denied a defence motion for a mistrial in the Tate-LaBianca murder case based on President Nixon's remarks about the guilt of Charles Manson.

Judge Older said that he was satisifed about the jurors hearing the case are "able and willing to be fair and impartial" in deciding a verdict for the hippie leader and three young women codefendants.

"The time has come to place this in its proper perspective," Judge Older said.

The judge said it was not important whether Manson had deliberately invited prejudice by holding up a newspaper in front of the jury Tuesday with the headline, "Manson Guilty, Nixon Declares."

"The important point is whether the members of this jury are capable of rendering an impartial verdict in the case," he said.

The latest trial crisis came when Manson, chief defendant, brandished the Los Angeles newspaper before the eyes of the jury.

When Daye Shinn, lawyer for defendant Susan Atkins, 22, told the judge he had inadvertently let Manson get hold of the newspaper, Older sentenced him to three nights in jail for contempt.

Shinn will be let out during the day to defend his client.

PREMIERS MEETING SET HERE IN 1971

The 1971 conference of Canadian premiers will be held in Victoria to help mark B.C.'s centennial celebrations.

At the conclusion of this year's meeting in Winnipeg Tuesday, the premiers agreed the Victoria conference would deal with pollution, investment policies and a re-evaluation of provincial medical care programs.

A report on the Winnipeg meeting is on Page 31.

Man to Die For 'Mercy' Killing

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters) — A 60-year-old Melbourne man who told a court he shot his wife because he believed she had incurable cancer was sentenced to death for murder today.

Max Enkhardt told the judge: "I believe that my wife was dead before I shot her. Thank you for having listened to me."

Before pronouncing the statutory death sentence, the judge told Enkhardt it was the only penalty he could impose.

The prosecution alleged that Enkhardt shot his wife Nov. 3 after she had nagged him about drinking brandy. At the time, she was in bed with gastritis.

Enkhardt said he shot her because they both believed she was dying of cancer.

Small Businesses 'Special' Benson Says, Hinting Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons finance committee today that his officials are studying plans to give relief to small businesses when new tax law is presented and suggested a timetable for implementation of the government's white paper on taxation.

He said his department has a special group working on several plans to encourage the growth of small business.

"Sometime this fall" the officials would have some conclusions on the problem.

But, answering questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the minister declined to describe the incentives.

Mr. Benson repeated earlier estimates that legislation based on the white paper might be implemented by Jan. 1, 1972.

He said the government would wait to see the reports presented by Commons and Senate committees studying the white paper.

It would then take "several months" to draft legislation incorporating the white paper proposals and suggestions of the committees.

So the legislation could be presented to Parliament next spring, and go into effect Jan. 1, 1972, Mr. Benson said.

While refusing to give details, the minister told the committee the department is considering several changes to the white paper.

"Major changes will have to be made in a number of areas," he said.

"The government is impressed by many of the arguments that have been made for changes in the white paper proposals."

He said it "would not be proper" to define the government's present position on the proposals before the parliamentary committees have published their reports.

Mr. Benson said the growth of small businesses was a "special problem" because of their difficulty in raising capital.

Mr. Stanfield, a guest at the committee hearing, said he was glad Mr. Benson had recognized changes were needed in the tax system, and that no changes would be introduced in 1971.

He asked whether the government was planning tax relief for low-income groups before implementation of the rest of the white paper.

Mr. Benson replied this was a budget matter and would only be announced in the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government still considered as a "serious proposal" the white paper suggestion to tax deemed realization of capital gains on stocks every five years.

The finance minister said "all proposals in the white paper are serious" and repeated that no announcement would be made until publication of the committee reports.

Dawson Creek Residents Go Wild About Trudeau

By KEVIN DOYLE

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — This city of 13,000 in the middle of the Peace River country exploded with enthusiasm Tuesday night at its first visit by a prime minister.

About 1,200 singing, chanting residents greeted Prime Minister Trudeau when he arrived at the airport after almost three days in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

At least another 1,500 lined the streets and the entrance to the hotel where Mr. Trudeau was staying. He was obviously pleased with the reception as he mingled with crowds in the airport.

Today, Mr. Trudeau meets farmers from this area in northeastern B.C., in what he hopes will be a free-wheeling discussion of farm problems.

To make certain the farmers feel free to express their views, the prime minister ruled that only one of the more than 12 reporters with him, could attend. The reporter will be allowed to make notes and pass on the information to other members of the press party.

MEETS THE YOUNG

While Mr. Trudeau talks to farmers, Works Minister Arthur Laing will meet representatives from local groups which have been pressing the government to pave the Canadian section of the 1,500-mile Alaska Highway, which runs from here to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Mr. Laing, who has accompanied the prime minister since Monday, leaves the tour tonight.

The Dawson Creek reception came at the end of a day marked by a series of meetings between young people and the prime minister in the Yukon capital of Whitehorse.

Mr. Trudeau spent about two hours attending an outdoor picnic in Whitehorse at which he was mobbed by about 150 children and teen-agers and the same number of adults.

He was given an honorary membership in the Yukon Order of the Garter and dubbed the "best darn garter-watcher in the Yukon" after he qualified by removing a red garter from the thigh of Debbie Murdoch, 20, who led a group of dancers wearing Klondike saloon costumes.

As he sat on the ground eating lunch, dozens of small children, some barely old enough to walk, packed around the prime minister, nibbling at his food and chatting.

WILL APPOINT SENATORS

After half an hour with the children, Mr. Trudeau was rescued by aides and whisked off to an hour-long question-and-answer session with about 200 youths in a school auditorium.

The questioning drew answers from the prime minister on subjects ranging from Senate appointments to drug use.

Mr. Trudeau said he will announce some appointments to fill the 16 vacancies in the 102-seat Senate within the next several weeks.

The federal government had been trying to work out a system enabling the provinces to have a say in Senate appointments to promote more regional representation, but this was not developing quickly.

As a result, Mr. Trudeau said he would make some of the appointments himself and announce them soon.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will not make any substantial changes in existing drug laws until it receives the final report of the Le Dain commission inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs.

But the government was considering a recommendation in the commission's preliminary report, tabled earlier this year, calling for an end to jail sentences for those convicted of possessing marijuana.

He said he doesn't "dig" the use of drugs, alcohol or any other intoxicants.

Mr. Trudeau said he respects the freedom of others to do many of the things they want to do, but for young people especially, escape from reality through intoxication seemed unnecessary.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE SUM RECORD HIGH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian foreign exchange reserves rose $110.6 million during July to reach an unprecedented $4,444 million at the end of the month, the finance department reported today.

Part of the increase was in the purchase of U.S. dollars to keep the floating Canadian dollar from climbing too high on international exchange markets.

Some commitments to buy at a later date, made during May before the dollar was set free of its former 92.5-cent peg, also came due during July, adding to the reserves.

'Obscenity Not Cause Of Crime, Immorality'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president's commission on pornography has reached the tentative conclusion that obscenity does not cause sex crimes or corrupt youngsters' morals.

Discounting two overriding fears of affects of the current wave of sexual freedom in films, books and magazines, the first draft prepared by the commission staff says:

"There is no evidence to suggest that exposure of youngsters to pornography has a detrimental impact upon moral character, sexual orientation or attitudes."

It adds:

"Research indicates that erotic materials do not contribute to the development of character defects, nor operate as a significant factor in anti-social behavior or in crime. In sum, there is no evidence that exposure to pornography operates as a cause of misconduct in either youths or adults."

The commission's report is not to be released until late this month, but most of the first draft has been leaked to a House of Representatives subcommittee that is trying to convene hearings next week to challenge the findings.

WOMEN AROUSED

Other major findings in the report obtained by The Associated Press—all subject to revision or deletion from the final report:

—Women as well as men are "highly aroused" by stag films and erotic pictures. Tests often show that women who did not think they were aroused actually were.

—Political conservatives are not as easily aroused by pornography as liberals.

—Despite the arousal and in some cases increased sexual activity in the 24 hours after seeing highly erotic material, basic attitudes and sexual patterns do not change.

—In general, 90 per cent of couples aged 20 to 25 were aroused by erotic films in three studies, while between 30 and 60 per cent of persons 40 to 50 years of age were aroused by the same films.

—"There are no recorded instances of sexual aggression, homosexuality, lesbianism, exhibitionism, or sexual abuse of children attributable to reading or viewing erotic stimuli among the several hundred participants in the 12 experiments reviewed."

CHALLENGE TESTS

While the House postal operations subcommittee is trying to line up expert witnesses to challenge the findings, Chairman Robert Nix (Dem. Pa.) said his concern is with some of the experiments conducted.

Nix termed "horrifying" an experiment conducted for the commission by the University of North Carolina, in which instruments were used to measure the physical responses of 23 college men to prolonged exposure to erotic material.

"I didn't dream such experiments were being conducted," Nix said. "I question the morals of people who do that kind of thing. I can't see any justification for it."

Escaper Frees Hostage After Talk With Family

BRIGHTON, Ont. (CP) — A prison escapee held a woman hostage at knifepoint for 7½ hours Tuesday before surrendering to police after a tearful reunion with members of his family at Cobourg, 23 miles west of here.

Maurice Lauzon, 24, of Sudbury, serving the 13th month of a nine-year sentence for armed robbery at Warkworth medium security prison 13 miles north of here, was to appear in provincial court today charged with kidnapping and escaping custody.

Lorraine Barry, 26, of Campbellford, Ont., a classification officer at Warkworth, was not harmed in the ordeal which included a three-hour ride in a commandeered police car, a lunch of fried chicken and an impromptu news conference on a Cobourg beach.

"It really wasn't too bad. I knew he didn't want to hurt me," she told reporters.

The escapee surrendered to police after meeting his mother, sister, brother, sister-in-law and infant niece and strolling with them along a beach at Cobourg's Victoria Park followed by two provincial police officers and Miss Barry.

The escapee held an impromptu news conference at which he told reporters he had escaped to "relieve the tension" caused by his enforced association with sex offenders at the prison.

"They are animals and I don't want to have anything to do with them," he said.

After the news conference the escapee returned to the commandeered police car with his family, the two officers and Miss Barry.

Sudden Storm Kills Five At Beach

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — A sudden storm that caught bathers on beaches and small boats sailing offshore ripped along the southwest coast of France Tuesday. Officials said that five persons were known dead, two others reported drowned, and seven are missing.

The known dead were a man and his wife—both past 60—drowned when their sailboat sank in the landlocked bay at Arcachon; one man killed by a falling tree, and two persons killed in camping grounds. Witnesses said they saw two persons drown but no bodies have been recovered. The seven missing perons were aboard two sailboats.

Trees Dying on Palace Grounds, Japan's Pollution at Crisis Point

By TAKASHI OKA

TOKYO (NYT) — Environmental disruption — the pollution of soil, water and atmosphere — has reached crisis proportions in Japan, where more than 100 million people are jammed together.

Recently, more than 8,000 persons in Tokyo complained of smarting eyes, burning throats or other physical ailments because of the smog that blanketed the city for five consecutive days.

POLLUTED PORT

Trees and shrubs are dying in the spacious gardens of the Imperial Palace, and the Emperor and Empress have been urged to spend as much time as they can away from Tokyo, in their mountain retreat or their seaside villa.

Tagonoura, on Suruga Bay, once a picturesque village with a celebrated view of Mount Fuji, is today a nightmare of a polluted port, clogged by slime from waste discharged into the water by papermaking factories.

Kiyoshi Takizawa, a 20-year-old dairy farmer in Kurobe on the rugged Japan Sea coast, milks his seven cows daily, then pours the milk into a hole in the ground. He has had to do this since April, when inspectors declared that a 325-acre tract of farm and pasture land was contaminated by cadmium. The cadmium comes from Nippon Mining's nearby zinc refinery.

In Minamata, on the southern island of Kyushu, people have lost their eyesight or have gone mad after eating fish caught in the bay. The culprit: mercury wastes discharged into the water by the Nippon Nitrogen Company.

Some 46 persons have died over the last two decades, and some of their children have been born mentally retarded and with defective physical co-ordination.

SMOG EVERYWHERE

Smog is everywhere — not only in major urban centers, but also in some rural areas victimized by the vagaries of wind and weather. On an apparently clear, hot summer day, rural schoolchildren on the island of Shikoku suddenly complained of smarting eyes and sore throats. A freak wind, pollution experts surmise, must have brought photochemical smog from the crowded Osaka-Kobe-Kyoto area.

These are only a few examples of what has happened to the environment simultaneously with and frequently as a direct consequence of Japan's enormous expansion of industrial production during the last decade — an expansion that has hurtled the island nation into a position of economic strength ranking immediately behind the United States and the Soviet Union.

Environmental experts charge that the Government has tended to favor industrial and other enterprises without considering the welfare of the public.

Stung by such criticism, the Government of Premier Eisaku Sato is setting up a central headquarters to co-ordinate counter measures against environmental disruption.

Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda has promised that funds to control environmental disruption would be included in the 1971 budget. This year Japan is spending about $126 million for various antipollution measures, and this sum is expected to rise sharply beginning next year.

Officials in Tokyo and Osaka estimate that at least $1.4 billion would be required to complete a 10-year antipollution program in their cities.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry plans to spend about $14 million over the next five years to develop electric cars as a means of reducing exhaust fumes. The ministry's goal is to develop a car capable of going 48 miles an hour and of running at least 60 miles without recharging batteries.

Victims' Monument Now Worship Place

TOKYO (AP) — A Buddhist temple, dedicated to traffic accident victims, has become a popular centre for worshippers.

The Shoko-ji (Holy Light) temple, located on the top of 4,265-foot Mount Tateshina, in Nagano prefecture (state), 100 miles west of Tokyo, was built with $445,000 donated by the public, including the president of an automobile sales company.

Takehisa Watanabe, manager of the temple, said in a telephone interview that 1,600 persons visited the temple last Saturday and Sunday and many of them lighted candles and burned incense to pray for traffic victims.

Even as the prayers were being offered, 114 persons were killed throughout Japan in weekend traffic accidents when millions flocked to beaches and summer resorts to escape a heat wave.

The temple was opened July 9 at ceremonies attended by Japanese dignitaries, including Prime Minister Eisaku Sato. Since then one traffic accident has occurred in the temple's vicinity, seriously injuring a young man.

Japanese Residents Recall Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — On Aug. 6 and 9 the people of Hiroshima and Nagasaki remember the 1945 atomic bombs which turned their cities into wastelands. For many it will seem only yesterday.

In both cities peace bells will toll, doves will flutter into the sky, Buddhist sutras will be chanted in memory of the dead. After these solemn pauses, Hiroshima and Nagasaki will return to everyday living. On the surface, inhabitants of both cities are indistinguishable from their 100 million compatriots. Long since rebuilt, neither city at first glance seems any different from other Japanese cities.

Nagasaki, which wants to forget, has a single monument to mark its black day. Hiroshima, designated a "peace memorial city," because it was first to suffer atomic devastation, maintains a museum of atomic horrors, a cenotaph and a peace park. A gleaming white building has been erected by the Chugoku Press close to the hypocentre of the pikadon, "the lightning bomb" which added a grim chapter to the history of the Second World War.

"We could brew it quicker... but it wouldn't be near so good"

BILL WALKER

That word "snicker" has already come to have a significance of sorts in the Canadian Football League season, which is barely a week old. How meaningful remains to be seen or snickered at.

Coach Jackie Parker used it after the Lions got beaten up by the Roughriders a week ago. This was because Jackie had indicated better things, and that the Lions would be able to take care of themselves. And so everyone felt sorry for Jackie, now in his first full season, and laughed along with the Lions. There was little else to do.

But actually it is no laughing matter, as this is the day of decision; the day that will determine where the member clubs will finish the season, and why.

And if you are planning to go to the Grey Cup, get a Stetson, and look for an easy mark in Toronto. The price will be in your favor.

Because that's it on Nov. 28, Grey Cup Day.

The Stampeders will come down from the hills to meet the Toronto Argonauts who have been waiting for this date for 19 long years. It was in 1952 that the Argos last were in the Canadian classic.

But first to the west.

Calgary and Saskatchewan, or Saskatchewan and Calgary. It is that close with the nod going to Calgary. The Riders have lost two great players, Jim Worden and Hugh Campbell. All their veterans are a year older, and have slowed up half a step or more. True, they have a great backfield in George Reed, Silas McKinnie and Bobby Thompson, managed by a superb quarterback in Ronnie Lancaster. And they looked very good against the Lions in the opener. But . . .

And the "but" is there because the Stamps weren't that far behind the Riders last season, and their tough defence should be even tougher with Wayne Harris healthy again.

●

Terry Evanshen may be hard to replace but the Stamps will try with a talented rookie, Hugh McInnis. And in this book Jerry Keeling has come of age at quarterback, and he has an excellent back-up man in Larry Lawrence.

Which puts the Lions and Eskimos in the other section along with Winnipeg. And as the Lions have been discussed before, and Winnipeg is in the middle of a rebuilding program, that leaves everything up to the Eskimos as to how the other two clubs will fare.

Defence has been the recent Edmonton strong point, and quite obviously still is. And they do have a new quarterback in town who can throw th ball almost as well as Rusty Clark. Don Trull is a veteran of American Football League action, and should help. But will the Esks, without "long-zone" Jim Thomas, be able to muster a running game to go with what could be an excellent passing attack? The thought is no, not yet, which puts them on a par with the Lions, who do have fast backs, and a good passing attack, but are weaker on defence. Whichever team improves the most will finish third, and from here that club must be the Lions.

Winnipeg has a new coach in Jim Spavital, and many new players, and a brand new outlook, and will likely come awfully close many times this season, but not close enough to win too many. Which is what happened at Calgary last week. The Bombers stopped short in the stretch, and will do it again, just as they did last night.

There just has to be better ahead for the Lions, although they have been over-rated by the coaching staff. Still, there is the nagging suggestion that there is an explosive quality here that only needs igniting.

Now, if someone can only find a match. . . .

●

In the east, the Argos were almost there last fall. And if it hadn't been for Russ Jackson and a fine Ottawa team, they would have been. This is a high scoring club, loaded with talent, and an excellent second quarterback to go with Tom Wilkinson who did well enough last season. Don Jonas is the 30-year-old rookie from the Continental League on whom the Argos are banking highly, and who eventually could be No. 1 in the signal-calling stakes.

Put the Tiger Cats from Hamilton close up for one important reason. Joe Zuger is back, and running the club. It may be old hat to suggest that the Hamilton team was Grey Cup bound last fall, going 10 games without defeat early in the season. But it is true. Then Zuger injured his throwing hand and the Tabbies went limp. So if he is healthy, watch out.

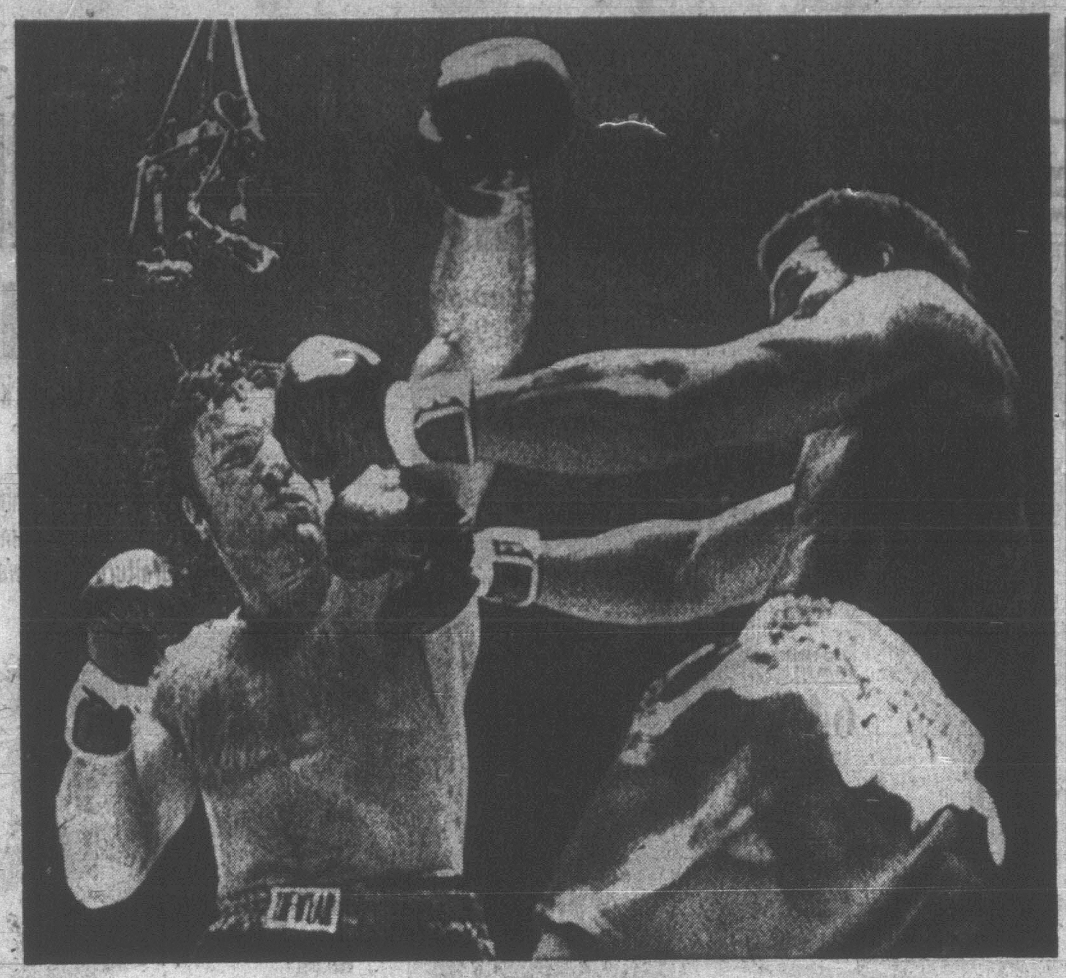

Which puts Ottawa in the playoffs, but only if they can hold off the Montreal Alouettes. There is a new broom in Montreal, and it may not get all the housework done in a single season. Slingin' Sam Etcheverry is comparable to B.C.'s Jackie Parker. He may lift the team spirit by the mere mention of his name, but it will take more than that for the Als to keep up in the tough Eastern Conference. Yes, even with Evanshen, Sonny Wade, and whatever. And the last-named will have to perform awfully well for them to succeed.

But it will be a tight fit.

And all that relegates the champs, Ottawa Rough Riders, to third. First, because they don't have Jackson. They do have a fine replacement in Gary Wood, who is down from the New York Giants, but Margene Adkins and Vic Washington aren't there any more, either. Then, too, Frank Clair has moved upstairs, and new coach Jack Gotta must find a new way of inspiring an old but tough club, especially on defence.

There it is then; make your Grey Cup plans now. (And please don't call, because I had a dream last night and it was Montreal and the Lions on TV in the silly-season final.)

Sure, go ahead and snicker. But think of the odds.

TWO-FISTED APPROACH

Using both gloves to push back George Chuvalo (left) as Canadian misses with looping left is George Foreman. Foreman, unbeaten former Olympic heavyweight champion, stopped Toronto battler on technical knockout in third round of non-title heavyweight battle at Madison Square Garden in New York City Tuesday night. Chuvalo Shuns Plan to Retire

NEW YORK (CP)—George Chuvalo must have known it was coming.

Chuvalo had just suffered a third-round technical knockout Tuesday night at the hands of young George Foreman and the press was gathered in the post-fight interview area with both fighters.

"Will you have any more fights?" was one of the first questions directed at him.

"Yes," was the terse reply from the veteran Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto who has been asked the same question more times than he would like to remember over the years.

"I have a lot of things to think about," he said later in the dressing room, answering the same question again, "but I don't have any plans for retiring."

Foreman, former Olympic heavyweight champion from Hayward, Calif., picked up his 22nd straight victory without a loss and his 19th knockout when referee Arthur Mercante stopped the fight at 1:41 of the third round. It was only the second time Chuvalo had been stopped.

Foreman had scored repeatedly from the beginning of the fight with sharp left jabs and drove Chuvalo against the ropes with a looping left in the third. He then uncorked a beautiful left hook to Chuvalo's head which did most of the damage.

The 21-year-old Foreman then threw every punch in the book at Chuvalo, who did not appear able to fight back. Some of Foreman's punches missed, however, and Chuvalo escaped further punishment only to find himself backed into his own corner seconds later. After Foreman pounded him some more, the referee stopped the fight.

WASN'T HURT

"It most certainly should not have been stopped," Chuvalo said.

"I was hit with some good punches, but I wasn't hurt. He (Foreman) was just blowing off steam. I think they were a bit premature in stopping it. Another round or so and I would've started catching on."

Chuvalo is 32 and this was his 77th fight in a long and varied career which has included a heavyweight championship bout with Muhammad Ali and a crack at the World Boxing Association title in Toronto against Ernie Terrell. He lost both and had been hoping to defeat Foreman in a bid for one last crack at the title.

Chuvalo now has a record of 59 victories, 16 losses and two draws. He has knocked out 51 of his opponents.

Prior to his fight with Jerry Quarry here some New York sports writers said Chuvalo was washed up. Angry at the suggestions, Chuvalo knocked Quarry out in the seventh round.

A crowd of 12,526 paid $107,185 to see the fight.

Chuvalo was guaranteed $50,000 and Foreman earned $17,500, his largest purse.

VICETTES ADVANCE TO FINAL

Meanwhile, in the other semi-final, Cablevision Juniors were upset by Tillicum Athletic Club, 6-5, at Central Park to force the series to a third and deciding game at Central Thursday.

BLUES NEXT IN LINE AFTER POSTPONEMENT

Victoria Royals' scheduled Western Canada Soccer League game tonight with Vancouver Cougars has been postponed.

According to Royal manager, Brian Hughes, the game was postponed in order to accommodate a match between the mainland side and the Winnipeg Blues of the Prairie Division.

The Royal-Cougar game has been re-scheduled for next Wednesday.

Victoria, which is in first place in the Coastal Division, is scheduled to play its next home game against the Blues on Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Burrards Break Adanacs' String

Mathematically speaking, the picture is simple.

Victoria Shamrocks, who have seven games remaining in their Western Lacrosse Association schedule, need to win at least four times to tie Coquitlam Adanacs for third place and the final playoff spot.

That's assuming, however, that Adanacs will lose most of their five remaining games.

Shamrocks have a chance to start a victory streak tonight while facing league-leading New Westminster Salmonbellies in the first tussel of a three-game series.

Game time is 8 in Memorial Arena.

Meanwhile, Coquitlam dropped a 10-8 decision to Burrards in Vancouver Tuesday and ended a six-game winning streak.

Playing before only 600 fans, both teams mustered a loose defence and most shots were wild.

Vancouver led 4-0 before Coquitlam answered back with seven minutes remaining in the first period, led 5-3 going into the second frame and boosted that up to 7-4 going into the final 20 minutes.

Bill Rawson and Bob Holmes led Vancouver with two goals each while Mike Gates paced Adanacs by scoring twice.

Renfrew Rink Reaches Final

Hughie Renfrew's quartet from the host Victoria Lawn Bowling Club will meet the Jack Lambrecht foursome from Seattle in Saturday's rink final of the annual men's tournament currently underway at the Beacon Hill greens.

Renfrew advanced to the final Tuesday with a 17-10 victory over Harry Tuck of Nanaimo while Lambrecht defeated Colin Fleck's Burnside quartet 15-8 in the other semi-final encounter.

Sharp Show By Brothers Sparks Leos

WINNIPEG (CP)—British Columbia Lions may have themselves a quarterback.

Head Coach Jackie Parker saw signs of long-awaited consistency Tuesday night in Paul Brothers, whose off-and-on performances have sometimes been a questionable factor in the Lions' talent-laden backfield.

In the dressing room, Parker was full of praise for the way Brothers marshalled the team back from a one-point half-time deficit to squelch Winnipeg Blue Bombers 48-21 in their Western Football Conference game.

Parker said he watched closely the eight-play sequence early in the third quarter that started the Lions' runaway.

Brothers began at his 27 and wound up by running out of the pocket and scampering 19 yards around left end for a touchdown.

"He did it perfectly," said Parker. "He was checking the defences and called every play just right."

SPAVITAL DIFFERS

Maybe so, said coach Jim Spavital in the losers' quarters, but he never should have got away with that touchdown run.

"If it had been (Carroll) Williams it might have been different, but Brothers isn't the kind of runner who should go 19 yards. It was terrible tackling."

Bombers fought back to a slim half-time lead but collapsed in the final 30 minutes. Three lost fumbles and four pass interceptions broke up good marches and led to B.C. scores.

The fumbles in particular drew Spavital's ire.

"I've warned them time and again about tucking the ball into their gut," said the head coach.

Jim Evenson, returning to the lineup after recovering from an appendectomy, scored B.C. touchdowns on plunges of one and two yards.

Jerry Bradley picked off a Wally Gabler pass and ran it 32 yards to paydirt. Brothers threw scoring passes to Lefty Hendrickson for five yards and to Jim Young for 60 to open the game. Ted Gerela kicked six converts and field goals of 27 and 31 yards.

VAN PELT MAKES UP

For Winnipeg, Amos Van Pelt attoned for two fumbles by scoring touchdowns on a an eight-yard run and a four-yard pass from Gabler. Ken Nielsen, Winnipeg's most potent offensive weapon, caught six passes for 84 yards including a 19-yard touchdown and Gene Lakusiak kicked three converts.

The Lions rolled up 22 first downs to 18 for Winnipeg. The Lions had four in the first half, the Bombers four in the second.

On the ground, it was 247 yards to 133 in B.C.'s favor. Gabler completed 12 of 20 passes for 267 yards; Ron Johnson, who appeared briefly late in the game, clicked on three of six for 16 yards, and Van Pelt was unsuccessful on a throw off a halfback roll-out.

Brothers accounted for 227 yards on 11 pass competitions in 15 attempts. Carroll Williams, who came in when B.C. had the game sewed up, had his only pass intercepted.

A crowd of 17,340 saw the game.

Larks Jolt Argos

MONTREAL (CP)—The new-look Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference came up with a strong two-way effort in their season opener Tuesday night, upsetting Toronto Argonauts 34-27.

Sonny Wade, starting his second season with the team, delighted 26,743 fans as he scored three touchdowns and passed for two more.

The 23-year-old quarterback said later it "was one of those games when everything goes right." Rookie head coach Sam Etcheverry added that "it's a great feeling to start off like that against a team that's supposedly going to win the Grey Cup."

Toronto's outstanding flanker, Bobby Taylor, who caught two touchdown passes, was injured early in the fourth quarter trying to snag a goal line pass and did not return to action.

LOOKED GOOD

Taylor's pass catching was one of the few bright spots for the Argos, kept at bay by a strong Montreal defence except in the third quarter.

Toronto went ahead 3-0 in the first quarter when Don Jonas booted a 39-yard field goal but the Als bounced back early in the second when Dick Smith flipped an eight-yard touchdown pass to Wade after taking a handoff from the Montreal quarterback.

Terry Evanshen, obtained from Calgary Stampeders in an off-season trade, took a 15-yard touchdown pass from Wade less than three minutes later and Montreal jumped into a 14-3 lead.

Toronto replied with a touchdown by Taylor, alone in the end zone to gather up a pass from Wilkinson. But the Als took a 20-10 lead into the third quarter after Wade carried the ball across the goal line on a one-yard plunge. Pierre Guindon missed his only convert of the game when he tried for the extra point.

Wade scored his third major of the contest early in the second half to extend Montreal's lead to 17 points but the rest of the third quarter was mostly Toronto.

JONAS STARTS FAST

Wilkinson was replaced by Jonas and the new signal caller directed the Argos down the field, capping the drive with a 21-yard touchdown pass to Tony Moro.

Colwood's Comeback Checks William Head

Down 2-1 going into the last two innings second-place Colwood Inn rallied for three runs to defeat William Head, 4-2, Tuesday in the Steelers' last Stuffy McGinnis Softball League game of the season at Heywood Avenue Park.

Taking a two-run lead on a run-scoring single by Jim Ouellette and run-scoring double by Ralph Sterman in the second frame, William Head held Colwood down until the sixth when Ron Griffis led off with a double, advanced to third on Amos Happy's single, and scored when Terry Tweedy hit into a double play.

With the score tied, 2-2, Ray Mellings singled in the seventh and crossed home on two Steeler errors for the winning run.

Ken Griffin then doubled in Bruce Smith for the insurance marker.

Favored Netters Rolling Along

TORONTO (CP) — Seeded players continued to advance easily through second round play in the Canadian closed tennis championships here Tuesday.

Top-seeded Mike Belkin of Montreal, nursing an injured foot, beat Mike Carroll of Ottawa 6-2, 6-1, to avenge a defeat several years ago when Carroll beat him for the Canadian junior title.

The 25-year-old, who injured his foot in his first Davis Cup match against Brazil in the North American zone final, advanced along with seven other seeded players.

Second-seeded John Sharpe of Toronto toyed with John Racjic, also of Toronto, 6-2, 6-0. Fourth-seeded Keith Carpenter of Toronto ousted Bob Howes of Vancouver 6-3, 6-1.

Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., third-seeded, scored a 6-3, 6-4 win over Joe Osadca of Toronto. In other play, fifth-seeded Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver beat Andre Cote of Montreal 6-3, 6-3, while sixth-seeded Harry Fauquier of Toronto, trounced Dave Brown of Toronto 6-1, 6-1, by hitting shots deep to the baseline and waiting for Brown to make errors.

Roger Skillings of Victoria was defeated 6-2, 7-5 in the second round of the men's singles competition by Ed Pribyl of Toronto.

Ex-Victorian Susan Butt, now playing out of Vancouver, downed Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver 6-2, 6-2 in the women's second round and partnered her opponent to a victory by default in doubles competition.

Eighth-seeded Brian Flood of Toronto advanced by beating Jim Shelton of Vancouver 6-1, 6-1.

Top women's seeds also had little difficulty advancing to quarter final play.

First-seeded Andree Martin of Montreal defeated Sylvia Rysanek of Toronto 6-1, 6-1. Jane O'Hara of Toronto, rated No. 2 and the current Canadian junior titleholder, beat Nicole Boucher of Montreal 6-1, 6-1.

Veteran Louise Brown, seeded third in the womens and first in the seniors, breezed past Claire Sutton of Montreal 6-0, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Susan Eager of Vancouver got past Michell Carey, also of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-1.

Three-Hitter by Jay Stops Langford 12-0

Sparked by the three-hit pitching of Larry Jay, Molsons blanked Langford Drywall, 12-0, at Central Park Tuesday to take a solid hold on sedond place in the Victoria Major Men's Softball League.

With each team having played an equal number of games, Molsons are two games ahead of third-place Lake Cowichan.

En route to victory, Jay gave up his three hits in the first two innings and retired 14 consecutive batters before Langford's Wade Burns was walked in the bottom of the seventh. It was the only walk issued by Jay, the only walk issued by Jay, three-run homer and two singles by Jim Wilson, two-run singles by Jerry Lavendar and Bob Lowe, and three hits by Jim Morgan.

WITH CAP'N BUD

Poor-Boy Cruise Opens New Views

By Jack Scott

Being some notes on a two-dollar ocean cruise.

Sailing time 5:15 p.m. Weather sunny, sea ruffled, barometer steady. Inner Harbor wharf crowded with elegant, plastic sailboats flying Old Glory. Welcomed aboard clinker-built 32-foot Water Tourist by our skipper, Bud ("Don't Spell It Backwards") Sims.

Amiable, semi-grizzled sea dog, started harbor tours more than 20 years ago, now carries 8,000 passengers annually, mostly Yankee. Never lost a passenger. Toot toot. Anchors aweigh.

Out past Ocean Cement plant, hideous eyesore fated to go, none too soon, then quick glimpses of the romantic past. Old Customs House now armed forces recuiting centre. Remnants of the walls of Fort Victoria, founded 1843, now a parking lot. Old Court House in Bastion Square, now Maritime Museum. McQuade's, the ship chandlers, most fascinating shop in town, started in a waterfront tent in 1858. First post office, first bank, both over 100 years of age. Robert W. Service a teller there before the muse and the gold beckoned him north. Fellow passenger, stout lady from Sacramento: "Robert who?"

Scott

Under the Johnson Street bridge. Built in 1922. Four little electric motors hoist massive, counter-balanced, double-lift spans to 85 degrees in one minute, 15 seconds. Some hoist. Past sunken whaling ship, rusted harpoon gun and crow's nest still intact. Past old navy frigate, sistership to Onassis' Christina. Past old Canora, CNR train barge sold for scrap. Sad to see proud old ships gone to burial grounds. Past great piles of global mooring buoys used to support wartime submarine net across Esquimalt harbor. Past Victoria Machinery Dept. Quick peek at giant red and yellow steel hydraulic press. Bends cold steel up to four inches, hot steel up to seven inches. Some bender.

★ ★ ★

Under the Point Ellice or Bay Street bridge. Sombre reflection upon that tragic, sunny May 26 in 1896 when 124 people gaily bound for the sports day at Macaulay Point so overloaded the street car that the wooden centre span gave way. Fifty-five killed or drowned. Victoria's blackest day.

Threading our way now through the fir, hemlock, balsam log booms alongside B.C. Forest Products mill. Employs 1,100 men, payroll $7.7 million, cuts 136 million board feet of lumber each year. Unfortunate place for a mill. Huge scows loading wood chips for pulp mills. Each scow carries 900 tons. Each ton worth $18. Fortunate place for a mill owner.

Small atoll to starboard. Deadman's Island, once burial ground for the Songhees. Murder victim dumped there years ago, hence the name. Hasn't every port a Deadman's Island? Out of Selkirk Waterway, into the Gorge. Motel row. Dingle House restaurant, home of good roast beef. Favorite warmer-water swimming spot of a generation ago, now polluted. Scum on the surface. All aboard indignant. Full turn at the Gorge Bridge and reversible falls. Friendly waves to the Gorge Hotel. First Esquimalt beer parlor after prohibition ended in 1922. Wasn't until 1958 that Victoria followed suit.

Back down the Gorge, past stone-walled ledge built into the waterway. Site of Victoria's first lawn bowling club. Now Sunset Lodge, Salvation Army rest home for 27 elderly ladies. A toot on the horn to the ladies. Farther down the yacht Centurion out of Winnipeg. Winnipeg? Yes. Trucked out in '68. Splendid old mansion up in the trees south of Banfield Park. Widow's walk high atop house, built by sailing ship captain whose cruises took anywhere from six months to two years while wife walked, watched, waited. Brought back exotic trees and shrubs as gifts. Seventy-five varieties still growing, they say.

Past clutter of towboats, barges and scows of Island Tug and Barge. Sudbury II. Biggest, most powerful on the Pacific Coast, 216 feet, 1,300 horsepower. Brief glimpse Princess Mary restaurant, home of good seafoods. Mary's old cabin originally a coffee shop for tugboat men then opened to eager public. Past Marabell, hydrographic survey ship, originally yacht of Dr. Ballard, dog-and-cat-food man. All land here once home of the Songhees, bought out for industrial reserve in the boom of 1908. About $10,000 to each family, our captain says. Sounds unlikely.

Past the oil company storage tanks to the outer harbor. Slight chop. Views of distant Sooke Hills, Olympic mountains, Juan de Fuca straits. Bentinck Island visible through the gap. Leper colony closed in 1952 when one white woman, five Chinese left for Louisiana treatment centre. Straits rough, cold-looking. Water 46 degrees. Only three swimmers, Bert Thomas, Marilyn Bell, Cliff Lumsden, made the 18-miles across. Whatever happened to Marilyn Bell? Full turn. Homeward-bound. Parliament buildings ahead. Thirty-three copper domes washed with vinegar to turn green. Outlined at night by 3,330 lights. Some carbon filament bulbs installed in 1912 still working.

Empress Hotel dead ahead, looking feudal, handsome. Built on mud flats, creosote pilings driven down 90 feet to bedrock, concrete slab over all. Main wing completed 1908, new wing in 1929, 250 rooms in each wing.

Fond farewell to captain. Sacramento lady off to buy Service poems. All agreed the best two-dollar ocean cruise ever.

MOVING IN, archivist Fran Gundry begins the tedious job of reshelving some of the thousands of tons of priceless books, manuscripts and documents in the new provincial archives building at Belleville and Government this morning. The move is from shared space with the provincial library in the Legislative Buildings. Delayed a couple of days by a leaky roof, the material is expected to be in place and the archives open early in September. (Bill Halkett Photo).

Museum Draws Million

The B.C. Museum welcomed its millionth visitor this morning—office machine mechanic Ernie Shorrocks of Nanaimo.

Immediately ahead of him was his wife, Astrid, and immediately after were daughter Phyllis, 9, and son Earl, 8.

The new provincial museum opened in August, 1968.

While no precise door count is kept, an official said "pretty close" estimates are made and on this basis Shorrocks was the No. 1 million.

CPR Insists E&N Is Hopeless

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

. . . After Pumping $150 a Year Into Publicity

By DON VIPOND

Islanders from Courtenay to Victoria jammed courtroom D at the Law Courts Building this morning to take their whacks at the CPR for trying to discontinue the Dayliner service.

It is the opening of a hearing on CPR's application to drop the daily-except-Sunday service because it's a money-loser. Sitting for the Canadian Transport Commission are D. H. Jones, chairman, and J. M. Woodard.

Indications are they will be hearing briefs and verbal presentations for the rest of the week, mostly from people who want Ottawa to force CPR to keep the Dayliner rolling between Victoria and Courtenay.

An overflow crowd of about 100, including mayors from Nanaimo, Ladysmith and Duncan, an alderman from Courtenay, and lawyers keeping a watching brief for Victoria and the province of Ontario, regional and ratepayer association representatives and individuals with something to say are on hand.

Jones has promised them all a chance to have their say and to question witnesses.

The chairman pointed out early in the hearing that the question of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway's Dayliner service operating at a loss is not an issue.

The federal government commission has already audited and accepted financial statements covering the years 1966 to 1968 which show the Dayliner service lost more than $100,000 each of these years.

The question the commission must settle, he said, it:

● Should CPR (which owns the E&N) be allowed to discontinue the Dayliner service.

● Or is it in the public interest to order CPR to maintain the service, with a federal subsidy covering up to 80 per cent of the loss.

Carrying the load for the CPR this morning was its lone witness, T. P. James, chief of passenger services.

He said that in his view there are no changes which could be made in the Dayliner operation which would eliminate the operating loss.

The railway had "considered" having the Dayliner start in the morning in Courtenay, rather than the current practice of getting under way from Victoria. But James said "it wouldn't materially change the final result."

He said the cost of establishing a maintenance depot at Courtenay would involve an additional $10,000 to $15,000 but later admitted maintenance might still be done in Victoria, particularly if the Dayliner laid over during the day.

For most of the morning James was peppered by questions from lawyers and the audience which brought to light:

● CPR spent only $150 annually from 1966 to 1968 advertising the Dayliner service. The money went for 7,000 pamphlets which devoted a few words to the quality of service and set out its timetable.

● A survey of passenger origin and destination conducted by CPR was made in October, when use was below the annual average and less than half the busy summer months.

● CP's Dayliner schedule doesn't allow the service to connect with CP's ferry service to Vancouver from Nanaimo and to Seattle from Victoria.

● CPR isn't about to release the figures on how much it makes from its freight service over the same rail line and the commissioners don't think they have the authority to force it.

Among the more memorable quotes at this morning's session:

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney: "They've lost money for the last three years and they'll lose money for the next 30 years the way it's run now."

James: "We've found from our surveys people don't care for the railway."

CPR solicitor T. G. Mathers: "The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Co. takes the position that there is alternative transportation but will make no comment on whether it is adequate."

James, on whether Dayliner passengers arriving in Victoria at 5:30 p.m. can connect with the CP ferry to Seattle, which departs at 5:30: "They'd have to wear roller skates."

How to Make Connections? 'Wear Roller Skates'

Haddock Fails To Get Okay On Rail Brief

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock failed Tuesday to receive committee approval to submit three suggestions to the Canadian Tramsport Commission hearings today on the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway bid to end passenger service.

As a result, Victoria will make no presentation before the hearings today, unless Haddock chooses to present his suggestions on his own behalf.

After a closed meeting of council's Group B committee, Ald. Clyde Savage said Haddock's request was denied because the committee did not have the authority to speak for council on the issue.

NOT AVAILABLE

Haddock was not available for comment this morning. But on Monday he announced he would ask for committee approval to send city solicitor T. P. O'Grady before the commission.

Haddock's suggestions called for improvement of service on the E & N but did not formally oppose the Canadian Pacific Railway's application to discontinue the Dayliner service.

On Monday, Haddock also said he wanted to ask the CPR for land concessions if it is permitted to discontinue the E & N.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell at Cambridge Bay; Douglas, in Georgia Strait; Racer, in port; Ready, in Johnstone Strait patrol area; Rider, at Kitsilano; Vancouver, in port; and Quadra, on station Papa.

PARK PATCHES PROPOSED

Two patches of land described by Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen as having "very limited commercial value" may become pocket-sized city parks.

Council's parks committee Tuesday endorsed a motion by Clyde Savage — at Pollen's suggestion — asking the city to take steps toward acquisition of the properties.

The first lot is opposite the Memorial Arena on the corner of Blanshard and Discovery. It has an assessed value of $6,400.

City Planner Geoff Greenhalgh told committee the lot slopes sharply making commercial development impractical. And Pollen said two landmark trees hundreds of years old could be saved if the lot is turned into a park.

The second land unit is an abandoned service station at the corner of Fort, Pandora and Belmont near the Oak Bay Junction.

Pollen said he did not know the assessed value of the property, but he knew several businesses have recently shown interest in it.

He said he thought the land could become a small green area with benches for shoppers and persons waiting for buses.

DETOUR PLANNED FOR PAT BAY

A section of the Patricia Bay Highway from Royal Oak Avenue to Falaise Crescent will be closed for several months beginning about Aug. 15 for road widening.

Service roads around the closed section have been built and will be paved before they are put into use. The roads run from Royal Oak Ave. to Quadra and from West Saanich Road to the open section of the highway opposite Royal Oak burial park.

Building Stirs In Exurbia

Construction activity in the unorganized areas of southern Vancouver Island the the Gulf Islands picked up in July and seven-month figures are ahead of the same period last year.

Permits worth $578,378 were issued in July compared with $390,882 in the same month last year.

For the first seven months, permits worth $3.1 million were issued compared with $2.9 million in the same period last year.

Residential construction was down — to 193 houses so far this year compared with 266 in the first seven months of last year. But this remained ahead of Saanich which issued permits for 133 houses.

The figures for the unorganized areas since April 1 cover the non-municipal region from Port Renfrew to the Gulf Islands, but nearly all the activity is in Langford-Colwood-Metchosin which was the only part covered before April 1.

Construction activity in Sidney picked up slightly in July, but remained down for the year.

Perfits worth $203,620 were issued last month compared with $167,350 in July, 1969.

In the first seven months of this year, permit value is $1.4 million compared with $1.6 million in the corresponding period last year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AT THE START OF THIS week, a couple of friends bound up-Island on vacation paused at our house for a cup of coffee. They weren't precisely gloating, but we found them almost disgustingly happy.

Their station wagon was overloaded with the mess of gear people take along on summer holidays. It seemed to my envious eye that they'd made a point of stowing their salmon rods where we couldn't miss noting them.

As if that weren't enough, they insisted on discussing what they'd do with the fish they hoped to catch.

They would have some smoked, they told us cheerfully. Some they'd freeze, and maybe they would bring home a couple of those bouncing, still-unhooked coho in cans.

All this was pretty hard to take. But there was comfort in the knowledge that they would be glumly unloading that wagon in their home drive about the time we are setting out for holiday country.

I can see that picture now, or rather a series of pictures in glowing preview.

As a prelude to takeoff, we will do all our packing the night before. No deciding at the last minute that it might be a good idea to cram in a rubber boat, a long-handled clam spade, and a well-sooted hibachi.

Also, this time we'll make a really early start. No sleeping in. No lazy breakfast and last-minute errands. We'll set out under the morning star—provided, of course, that it happens to be shining—and once on the road, we will move right along.

That last hope may prove to be a trifle unrealistic, since there have been times when we've prolonged a journey of three or four hours by several days. Still, a vacation shouldn't be all hurry-scurry.

But here's one thing we definitely won't do, or so I tell myself while our vacation remains a dream yet to be realized. There'll be no indulging in the batch of worries that come under the general heading of 'I wonder if . . .'

Here are some examples:

I wonder if we turned the back burgers off?

I wonder if we packed the sleeping bags?

I wonder what we forgot this time? (Something, for sure, as we'll learn when we set up camp.)

And along with a ban on 'I wonder,' we'll guard against such discoveries as a fisherman friend made while posting through Parksville.

He had packed his fishing rods. That he remembered distinctly. But his reels and his well-stocked tackle kit were still sitting on the kitchen counter a hundred-plus miles south in Victoria.

Nothing like that will happen to our holiday. And this time, we'll be spared all those trials that a little care and forethought would keep at bay.

Anyone not a complete idiot should be aware, for instance, that a small boat nuzzling a pebble beach doesn't have to be launched with a running shove and a scramble over the bows.

Last time I tried that stunt, the boat skidded out from under me at the cost of two skinned elbows, and a snootful of salt water.

I'm determined, too, that if good luck brings another four-pound cutthroat trout to a fly tied in hope on a winter evening, bad luck coupled with stupidity won't take it away.

I can see that fish still, green back peppered with speckles, broad silver side gleaming in the instant before a loop of line whipped around a button on my fishing vest, and the fish went free.

And another thing. This holiday I'm not going to be selfish. I'll keep in mind that although my dear one likes to fish, she might prefer to vary the vacation mix with other pursuits. Nice walks, maybe, or trips to towns up or down the highway, and other such time-consuming jazz.

It will rain just enough to dampen the woods, and those showers will come only at night.

This is how a vacation still weeks away shapes up from behind this typewriter.

And even if things don't work out in quite that fashion —even if the rains do more than merely dampen and the fish refuse to hit—we'll come home convinced we've had a fine time.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

My old professor of medicine used to say that if a man wakes at 2 a.m. with a severe pain in a red and swollen big toe joint, he has the gout. Sometimes gout will attack one of the other joints, such as the knee or elbow. A quick way to confirm the diagnosis of gout is to make a laboratory study of the amount of uric acid in the blood, and if it is higher than the normal 7 milligrams, there is the diagnosis. What happens to cause the trouble is that the uric acid crystals accumulate in a joint, and are like so much sand in it, causing much pain and disability.

Some experts on arthritis have said that it is one of the best forms for a person to have, if he must have one, because we doctors know the cause and can usually give great relief within 12 hours; also with new drugs we can often keep the man from getting more attacks of swelling and pain. Some people can be recognized in a moment as having gout, because they have little lumps of what looks like cement on the outer edges of their external ears, the so-called tophi, which are made up of a salt of uric acid.

There are two main treatments for gout; one is to relieve the severe pain of an acute attack, and the other is to prevent further attacks from coming. For the severe pain of an acute attack, the physician usually prescribes the ancient drug colchicine. This has been used ever since the time of the ancient Greeks, who found a plant growing around the cityof Colchis, in Asia Minor. I have read that the drug was introduced into the United States by Benjamin Franklin, who suffered from gout.

A drug that can sometimes work as well as colchicine is phenylbutazone. The newest drug to keep elderly people from getting acute attacks is allapurinol which came on the market a few years ago. It was synthesized in 1956 by Drs. Gertrude Elion and George H. Hitchins, while they were looking for something else. The man who thought of using it for gout was Dr. Wayne Rundles, Duke University Medical School.

A person with gout should not eat too much and should not get fat. The foods he might do well to avoid are sweetbreads, liver, kidneys, tongue, anchovies and meat extracts. From chemicals in these foods, the body can make uric acid. Many a man's gout is made much worse by drinking too much alcohol. When I was young, doctors used to say that the beer drinker had poor man's gout, and the champagne drinker had rich man's gout.

★ ★ ★

It is well to fight gout, because it can predispose a man to get into serious trouble with heart and arterial disease. I have seen quite a few men who were incredulous when their doctor said they had gout after having given them one blood test. Because they had none of the usual symptoms of gout, I sent them to two more laboratories from whence the reports sometimes came back normal. I did not blame the first laboratory people, because in some men the amount of uric acid in the blood goes up and down from day to day; hence, it is a good idea to have the very important laboratory test repeated.

Some readers will wonder why I haven't mentioned gouty women. The reason is that one rarely finds gout in a woman; it is generally a man's disease.

HIGHWAYS MINISTER SUSPENDED

Schreyer Regime Jolted

PRISON TERM FOR SLINGSHOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rodney Dunnett, 24, was given sentences totalling 2½ years on charges resulting from mob demonstrations outside the United States consulate and the city police station May 8.

Dunnett was sentenced to six months for possession of an offensive weapon, a slingshot; 12 months consecutive for aiding a prisoner to escape and 12 months consecutive for assaulting a police officer. He was also given a six-month concurrent sentence for obstructing police.

Provincial court judge Les Bewley, in passing sentence, said:

"It is illogical to the point of paranoia and dishonest in the extreme to assert that anyone can commit any crime in the furtherance of one's political views and then demand exemption from punishment because of one's motivations."

He said the time had come when "exemplary sentences must be imposed" in such cases.

Election Looms In Manitoba

Times News Services

WINNIPEG—Manitoba's New Democratic Party government, already precarious, got a severe jolt today that could precipitate a fall election when a cabinet minister was suspended from the legislature.

The opposition gained a 29-27 voting edge over the government when Highways Minister Joe Borowski was suspended for refusing to retract remarks linking opposition members with alleged highways department irregularities.

Borowski said the courts would soon be dealing with members of the former provincial Conservative government.

Although the suspension was only for the morning, Borowski told reporters outside the chamber:

"If the house does not permit me to speak the truth, then I don't want to sit in the damn place."

If he stays out, it will further complicate the political problems of Premier Ed Schreyer.

LACKS VOTES

Barring any change of heart by the opposition on amendments scheduled to be introduced at the afternoon sitting, Schreyer already lacks enough votes to pass his compulsory state automobile insurance legislation.

He has said defeat of the measure would be tantamount to a non-confidence vote and valid cause for an election.

There are 28 NDP members in the 57-seat house, including speaker Ben Hanuschak and Borowski. There are 22 Conservatives, four Liberals, one Social Credit and two independents, including Liberal Democrat Larry Desjardins who last week bolted government ranks on the insurance issue.

Borowski, 36-year-old MLA for Thompson, was asked repeatedly by both sides of the House and by the speaker to withdraw his remarks about the former Conservative ministers. At one point he told opposition members to "go to hell."

Conservative leader Walter Weir threw a rule book on the centre floor of the chamber as debate raged on.

When the speaker asked him a final time to retract, Borowski sat silently and shook his head.

3-FINGER SALUTE FROM WAC

Premier Bennett says he has just the right salute to give to young people who flash the two-fingered "peace" sign at him.

It's the three-fingered boy scout salute which Bennett says means, "have you done your good deed for today?"

He said he used it on a couple of long-haired folk in Winnipeg. He appeared pleased with the results.

A spokesman for the boy scouts said he wasn't sure that Bennett's interpretation of the sign was exact, but didn't contradict the premier, either.

Forest Inquiry Rivals Tangle

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—The Nemetz inquiry into the coast forest dispute resumed Tuesday, with the two sides arguing over the outlook faced by timber companies in B.C. and the United States.

MEDIATION REPORT READY IN TWO WEEKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the British Columbia Appeals Court said Tuesday his report containing recommendations to end the contract dispute between 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America and the vital British Columbia coast forest industry should be ready in about 10 to 14 days.

The open sessions of the one-man inquiry were expected to end today, but Mr. Justice Nemetz plans to hold closed-door meetings with both sides later this week.

International Woodworkers of American representing 27,000 men, has maintained B.C. operators will outpace American competitors over the next few years with prospects of increased production and expanding international markets.

The union's main demand is for a $1 an hour increase on the current base rate of $3.12.

Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., bargaining for 116 coast firms, argued last week world markets are shrinking and cited rising labor and other operating costs as justification for postponing any wage increase for another year.

Most of the discussion Tuesday centred around the topic of stumpage rates in the U.S. and B.C. Stumpage is defined as the rate paid by companies to the state or provincial government for the privilege of cutting trees.

TAX ADVANTAGE

An F.I.R. witness, Robert Wood, management consultant for Rim Resources Ltd., said the over-all cost of cutting and processing timber is cheaper in the U.S. than here, because while American companies pay higher stumpage rates, they benefit under U.S. capital gains taxes.

Wood attempted to show by an illustration that a U.S. operator could make a greater net profit than a B.C. operator if they logged identical stands of timber.

B.C. firms logging Crown land must pay a great deal more than U.S. firms working on private land, he said.

However, IWA regional president Jack Moore pointed out that much of the logging done by major B.C. firms takes place on private land, not Crown land, with companies paying royalty rates that vary from $1 to $9 per 1,000 board feet, depending on when the land was purchased.

"How would you compare the stumpage paid by MacMillan Bloedel in the Alberni Valley with what is paid in the U.S.?" Moore asked. Wood said he did not have the information.

"I understand it's fairly low," Moore added.

'Employees Regarded As Servants'

TIMES STAFF

VANCOUVER — Coast sawmill and logging companies regard their employees as servants, the International Woodworkers of America charged Tuesday.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said at a hearing into the dispute between the union and 116 employers that the employers proposals for ending work stoppages were reminiscent of the master-servant relationship.

"They tend to harken back to the Master and Servant Act, and this is why we have some of the problems we do," Moore said.

'LOT OF BUNK'

"A lot of bunk," retorted John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for the companies.

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemez, who heads the inquiry into the forest dispute, commented:

"I don't think anything useful can be obtained by this. I heard it all in 1966." (Nemetz headed a similar inquiry into a dispute between the IWA and interior companies.)

The exchange came as the union prepared to rebut two FIR briefs presented last week.

Employers called for a ban on all work stoppages and slowdowns, and asked for adoption of a system of penalties for workers who participate in strikes.

DRUG RAID NETS KENNEDY'S SON

Times News Services

HYANNISPORT, Mass. — Robert F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late senator, and R. Sargent Shriver III, son of the former United States ambassador to France, have been arrested on drug charges, it was learned today.

The two 16-year-old youths were to be arraigned in district court today along with 15 other persons arrested Tuesday night in marijuana raids carried out by local police in and around Hyannisport.

Judge Again Denies Manson Mistrial Bid

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Superior court judge Charles H. Older today denied a defence motion for a mistrial in the Tate-LaBianca murder case based on President Nixon's remarks about the guilt of Charles Manson.

Judge Older said that he was satisfied that the jurors hearing the case are "able and willing to be fair and impartial" in deciding a verdict for the hippie leader and three young women codefendants.

"The time has come to place this in its proper perspective," Judge Older said.

The judge said it was not important whether Manson had deliberately invited prejudice by holding up a newspaper in front of the jury Tuesday with the headline, "Manson Guilty, Nixon Declares."

"The important point is whether the members of this jury are capable of rendering an impartial verdict in the case," he said.

The latest trial crisis came when Manson, chief defendant, brandished the Los Angeles newspaper before the eyes of the jury.

When Daye Shinn, lawyer for defendant Susan Atkins, 22, told the judge he had inadvertently let Manson get hold of the newspaper, Older sentenced him to three nights in jail for contempt.

Shinn will be let out during the day to defend his client.

Soviet Freighter Put Under Arrest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sheriff's officers today boarded the Russian freighter Sergey Yesenin in Vancouver harbor and placed the vessel under arrest.

They tacked to the vessel's wheelhouse a warrant which had been issued Tuesday by the Exchequer Court after the British Columbia government filed a writ seeking unspecified damages as a result of a collisoon between the freighter and the B.C. ferry Queen of Victoria Sunday.

The formal arrest was made despite assurances from the ship's Vancouver agents that it would remain in port until investigations are completed.

B.C. Supervising coroner Glen McDonald said earlier an inquest into the collision would call several witnesses from the freighter.

The 14,700-ton freighter cut deep into the port side of the 4,900 ton ferry—carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50—in Active Pass, a narrow and tricky channel in the gulf islands between the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Ann Hammond, 31, of Victoria, was fatally injured and her seven-month-old son, Peter, killed on the car deck of the Queen of Victoria. Sheila Taylor, 17, of Allendale, N.J., was killed in a sundeck lounge.

Eight others were injured.

TOLL STILL UNCERTAIN

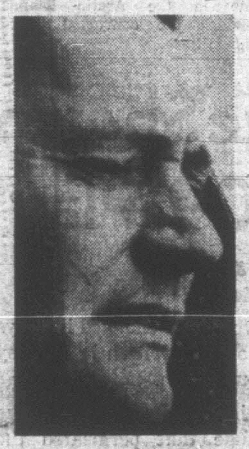

It is not known for certain that only three persons died, because no passenger list was kept.

A spokesman for Mr. McDonald said about six Soviet seamen will be among an estimated 30 witnesses to be called Thursday.

Meanwhile, a closed hearing Tuesday conducted by the department of transport heard four witnesses from the Sergey Yesenin. More Soviet witnesses will be heard today, and crew of the Queen of Victoria will be called.

Davis Willing To Meet Coast Fishermen

By PETER MEDWID

COMOX — Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said he is prepared to meet West Coast fishermen to discuss the harassment of Canadian fishermen by the Russian fleet operating off the West Coast.

"I'm available at any time for a meeting. The fishermen can meet the prime minister and myself if they wish this weekend at Ocean Falls.

"But if they can't make it, I will be happy to come to the Island to meet them."

PREMIERS SUPPORT WATER BOMB PLAN

The conference of premiers in Winnipeg was "very enthusiastic about a B.C. proposal for a national water bomber fleet, Premier Bennett said today.

Bennett, who returned Tuesday night from the conference, said the premiers supported his suggestion that the federal government be approached to form the national airborne firefighting fleet.

B.C. will co-operate with other provinces in the battle against pollution and in favor of a better life on all fronts, Bennett said. See details on Page 31.

Small Businesses 'Special' Benson Says, Hinting Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons finance committee today that his officials are studying plans to give relief to small businesses when new tax law is presented and suggested a timetable for implementation of the government's white paper on taxation.

He said his department has a special group working on several plans to encourage the growth of small business.

"Sometime this fall" the officials would have some conclusions on the problem.

But, answering questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the minister declined to describe the incentives.

Mr. Benson repeated earlier estimates that legislation based on the white paper might be implemented by Jan. 1, 1972.

He said the government would wait to see the reports presented by Commons and Senate committees studying the white paper.

It would then take "several months" to draft legislation incorporating the white paper proposals and suggestions of the committees.

So the legislation could be presented to Parliament next spring, and go into effect Jan. 1, 1972, Mr. Benson said.

While refusing to give details, the minister told the committee the department is considering several changes to the white paper.

"Major changes will have to be made in a number of areas," he said.

"The government is impressed by many of the arguments that have been made for changes in the white paper proposals."

He said it "would not be proper" to define the government's present position on the proposals before the parliamentary committees have published their reports.

Mr. Benson said the growth of small businesses was a "special problem" because of their difficulty in raising capital.

Mr. Stanfield, a guest at the committee hearing, said he was glad Mr. Benson had recognized changes were needed in the tax system, and that no changes would be introduced in 1971.

He asked whether the government was planning tax relief for low-income groups before implementation of the rest of the white paper.

Mr. Benson replied this was a budget matter and would only be announced in the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government still considered as a "serious proposal" the white paper suggestion to tax deemed realization of capital gains on stocks every five years.

The finance minister said "all proposals in the white paper are serious" and repeated that no announcement would be made until publication of the committee reports.
